ATTENTION 4-H & FFA MEMBERS

A Feed Clinic will take place on January 20, 2013 at the 4-H Building at the fairgrounds. This event will begin at 1 pm.

The following local ag based businesses will be discussing feeds and other livestock related topics for the upcoming year:

• West Feeds • Lakeland • Murdoch's • Rocky Mountain Supply
Two veterinarians will also be available to share knowledge and answer questions.

LOCAL BUSINESS RECOGNIZED

The Big Sky Weekly is a newspaper published for Big Sky patrons and visitors. Locals and visitors from afar logged on to explorebigsky.com or filled out surveys by hand, weighing in on their favorites in Big Sky. This survey was conducted in a "write-in" format. Those filling out surveys had the chance to nominate anyone or any business they chose.

Thanks to all the voters for helping dig up the best of the best, including top restaurant, apres ski joint, and outdoor shop around.

In the category of 'Best Ski Mountain in Montana' our own Maverick Mountain came in third after Big Sky Resort and Moonlight Basin.

Congratulations Maverick Mountain!

GENETICALLY-ENGINEERED SALMON ONE STEP CLOSER...

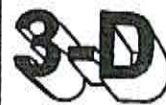

Western Ag Reporter • Sortin' Pen • Thursday, 03 January 2013

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has announced that genetically-engineered salmon, which have the potential to grow to market size in half the time of conventional salmon, don't appear likely to pose a threat to the environment or to the humans who eat them. If the fish get the final go-ahead, it would be the first transgenic animal (one whose genetic makeup has been altered) to be approved by the FDA. The agency says it will take public comment on its report for 60 days before making a final decision on approval. "With respect to food safety, FDA has concluded that food from AquAdvantage (the company that produces the genetically-engineered salmon eggs) is as safe as food from conventional Atlantic salmon and that there is a reasonable certainty of no harm from consumption," says the FDA assessment.

Opponents say the new salmon is a "dangerous experiment" and have pressured FDA to reject it, and they have expressed serious concerns that FDA will not require the genetically-modified salmon to be labeled as such. The salmon would be an all-female population with eggs produced in a facility on Prince Edward Island in Canada and shipped to a growing facility in Panama where the fish would be raised to market size and harvested for processing.

MONTANA CHAMBER CHOICES

Montana Chamber Choices is sponsoring the Shape Up Montana Program again this year. Shape Up Montana is a three-month team wellness program conducted by Big Sky State Games that engages participants in a sustainable physical activity and healthy eating program. The program will run from February 1st to May 1st. Montana Chamber Choices customers will receive a discount upon registration. You must choose "Montana Chamber Choices" in the drop down menu on the registration page.

There are two divisions that each team may choose from. The accumulated activity division is split into 5 groups: beginner, intermediate, experienced, professional and family. This division is based by tracking activity performed with the support of a web based activity calculator. The weight loss division encourages healthy, appropriate diet and physical activity. Wellness calculators are available to help aid all team members. Participants in both divisions can try different health clubs for free during SUM Fitness Week (March 12-18). Facilities will be listed at Shapeupmontana.org.

There are many benefits to offering a wellness program like Shape Up Montana to your employees. Studies have shown that employees who exercise as little as once a week tend to incur health costs 1/2 to 1/3 lower than those who don't (sales and marketing management). Another benefit in offering a company sponsored wellness program is workers tend to have improved productivity and morale. Worker productivity plays a major role in the success of a business. Additional studies have shown that healthier employees spend fewer days away from work due to illness, which in turn saves the company thousands of dollars. Wellness, nutrition and physical activity programs also help decrease depression and help employees manage their stress levels, which contributes to their productivity on the job as well as presenteeism. (Welcoa)

This year with Shape Up the first 500 team captains who register will receive gifts! Each team will have the opportunity to complete a weekly challenge. There are prizes for the top teams, along with weekly nutrition and fitness tips. So give your employees the gift of wellness this holiday season and encourage them to register for this three month interactive

DAMAGE CAR ENGINES (15% ETHANOL)?

By: MJ

American Automobile Association (AAA) contends that 15% ethanol blended gas may damage car engines. Government has authorized the use of E15 instead of the standard 10% blend.

The Automobile Assoc. of America stated that less than a fifth of the cars on the road have been approved to use the fuel blended with 15% ethanol, and there might be problems with warranties for engine damage that might have been caused by fuel.

Flex-fuel vehicles (FFV) have been produced since the 1980s, and dozens of models are currently available. Check Your Owner's Manual to see if your vehicle is a FFV. FFVs typically get about 25-30± percent fewer miles per gallon with blended fuel.

The government supports ethanol usage: 1) with a 51 cent-per-gallon tax credit to the companies who blend ethanol into gasoline; 2) provides fuel economy credits to automakers who build flex-fuel vehicles; 3) Congress passed a initiative in 2007 as part of the Energy Independence and Security Act requiring refiners to blend up to 36 billion gallons of ethanol into gasoline by 2022.

Today the national gas supply has absorbed as much ethanol as it can under the 10% rule. To increase productivity the blended percent must be increased.

Some experts are saying that to get big into ethanol, they need to tap into cellulosic ethanol. Cellulosic ethanol can be made from a variety of other sources such as: leaves, rye straw, wood pulp...
