Welborn's Weekly Legislative Review.

HELENA – The first half of the 63rd Montana Legislature is behind us, however the lion's share of what we were sent here to do still lies ahead. Please allow me to expand.

The first-half focus of any legislative session is primarily on setting new policy and making changes to current law that we as individual lawmakers feel is important to our constituents. Policy measures that didn't pass their respective chamber by Feb. 28 are dead.

As of late Thursday afternoon, 1,005 bills had been introduced in the House and Senate. Of those, 612 bills are still active in their respective chambers. We have also tabled 68 bills in committees, and another 251 died somewhere along the process between the two chambers. Gov. Bullock, to date has signed 55 bills into law and another 12 bills were on his desk at the end of last week. There have been seven resolutions adopted, in which carry no weight of law, but rather just express the will of the legislature.

Now that we are moving into the second half of the session, the heavy lifting of the 2013 session begins hitting it's stride.

Addressing the estimated $4 billion shortfall in state worker pensions is one key issue that still remains. House and Senate leadership has set up a joint select committee to address this issue, and solutions are in the works that will protect the promises made to current employees and retired state workers alike. At the same time, a plan needs to be forged that will not only be more sustainable, but also more fiscally sound. We all have a responsibility to be good stewards of the State's resources, and continuing down a path of un-sustainable growth in the funding of the retirement system isn't the responsible way to handle this issue.

Other big issues that remain:

A pay plan for state employees, especially those in the lower pay bands where certain sectors of state government haven't seen a pay raise in years, while at the very same time some of the division administrators, bureau chiefs, and department heads have seen big increases in their pay.

It's the highway workers, public safety employees and all the dedicated folks from almost every agency that are delivering vital services to the public that have gone without a cost of living adjustment that we need to be mindful of when looking at these increases. I'm hopeful something can be done to take care of those that have gone without any increases first and foremost, then move toward increases for the rest as the budget allows.

Finally, work on the largest issue of all looms as we return this week. The House Appropriations Committee will start taking action on the state budget. As this, HB 2, makes it's way out of committee, and onto the floor for debate during the next couple of weeks, we will all have the the opportunity to help craft a budget that will deliver services back to the tax payers of this State in a responsible manner, and also at a price that makes sense. Once the budget passes out of the House, and hopefully in a bipartisan manner, it then must go through the same process in the Senate.

Other big issues yet to be decided are the State's version of medicaid expansion, education funding, and the bonding bill which includes money for long range and university system building projects.

I will keep you updated as these and other proposals move through the last half of the 63rd legislative Session.

Please stay in touch on the issues that are important to you

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT

This week both Montana Senator Max Baucus and Senator Jon Tester announced that the House of Representatives passed the Senate's bipartisan Violence Against Women Act to reduce domestic and sexual violence in Montana and across the nation. The next step is for the president to sign this critical bill into law.

When the Violence Against Women Act was first passed two decades ago, some folks wondered whether the law would be effective. Since that time, the law has helped reduce the yearly rate of domestic violence by more than 50 percent.

Unfortunately, the law expired in 2011 – the same year that Montanans reported nearly 5,000 cases of domestic and sexual abuse.

The bill that passed Congress this week reauthorizes the Violence Against Women Act while giving local law enforcement and care providers greater resources and flexibility in how they support folks in need. Also, a provision included increases support to Indian Country where domestic and sexual violence is nearly three times higher than the national average.

Something that came up in community discussions was while the talk was about funding for safe havens, shelters, and counseling, inevitably the conversations turned to jobs.

When communities have economic opportunities, domestic violence decreases.

When victims feel they have a reasonable shot at economic freedom they are more likely to leave a violent situation.

The current bill is designed to reduce the rate of domestic and sexual violence against women and children, while empowering survivors and holding offenders accountable. The act now provides more than $4 million for 50 programs across Montana.

Once the bill is signed into law, more Montanans will get the help they need, and more women and children will have every opportunity to lead full, healthy lives.

DISAGREEMENTS

By: MJ

There will always be disagreements whenever you have more than one person in the arena. Disagreements are nothing more than another perspective, view or idea. The problem comes when we think that our idea is the only idea. This tends to make us appear superior to others and it turns people away. When one is made to feel that what they have to say is unimportant, people get angry and stop participating.

Next time you have a disagreement, listen to what the other person has to say before you get on your soap box and start expounding.

Remember, we all put our pants on the same way - one leg at a time. Your ideas are worth being heard.

Participate by getting involved, attend public meetings...

America will be a better place because you took an active part.

WESTERN HASN'T ENOUGH

The Western Bulldogs didn't have enough last night and lost the Frontier Championship game 68-52. Rocky had a run at the end of the first half to take the lead and used that jump ahead to stay there. The Bulldogs with a record of 22-9 will have to wait to know if they receive a place in the NAIA Division I tournament that starts next week.

Jordan Overstreet led the Bulldogs with 15 while Maazin Butler and Tyler Miller each put in 8 points.

The Western men got the shots but they just didn't go through the net. They were very out of balance on the rebounds with out Jake Owsley in the game and fell short 42-28 against Rocky Mountain.

ALL STAR BASKETBALL CLASSIC

The players have been selected for the All-Star Basketball classic that will be held Tuesday, March 12 at the Montana Tech HPER Complex. The players are selected by sport writers and media personnel from those nominated by the coaches of the schools included.

The Chamber of Commerce in Butte Hospitality Committee is sponsoring the game and it will be broadcast on KBOW 550 AM radio.

Players from Dillon to join the teams are:

Treasure State: Girls Team Cierra Lamey - So. and Alex Rouse - Fr.
