Welborn's Weekly legislative Review

HELENA:

As we move briskly into the second half of the 63rd Legislative Session I would like to take this opportunity to talk about some different measures working their way through the process that have created interest among my constituents. The first is the bipartisan Hunters Against Hunger proposal, which I carried in the House as well as cosponsored with Senator Kendall Van Dyke (D) of Billings, or more precisely SB 123 has now passed both the House and Senate Chambers and is setting on the Governor's desk waiting for his signature to become law.

SB 123 will give hunters the opportunity to donate $1 or more to help end hunger when purchasing for their big game license. This money will in turn be used for the processing of any wild game that is donated to this program for the benefit of food banks and shelters. SB 123 builds upon successful voluntary donation programs by directly connecting Montana's hunters to help those in need. It also helps overpopulation, because in many areas across the state, deer are overpopulated and hunters can legally harvest more than one animal. This program would enable hunters to expand their own hunting opportunities beyond their own meat harvest needs and participate in this program.

It is mutually agreed this is the kind of solution that makes Montana a better place to live, work, hunt, fish and raise a family. Montanans don't care where great ideas come from, or from what party they originate, they want us to work together for commonsense solutions that make a real difference in their daily lives. This bill does just that.

We have been working on this together for the past two sessions in finding creative solutions involving hunters to help end the hunger many Montanans face. This new law will strike that balance. This will also help many landowners with an extra tool for reducing the large population of deer and elk on some private land, and in turn creating an avenue for hunters to put the extra hunting opportunity to use for a great cause. It is also a way for the public to get involved in a voluntary way, without costing the tax payer a dime.

The 2012 Montana Food Bank Network Client Hunger Survey shares that over 14.5% of Montanans are currently dealing with food insecurity across the state. This new law will aid in bringing that number down.

From more of a global perspective, the other item I would like to touch on this week is HB 2 or better known as the major budget bill each session. The House Appropriations will be voting on the state's budget this week after three days of public testimony on the best way to spend more than $9 billion over the next two years.

I feel the Appropriations committee has worked very hard to reach this point, rarely does the executive and legislative branch get this close this quickly in the process.

At the moment, the governor's requested budget and House Bill 2, the Republican-led appropriation subcommittees' proposal, differ by about 1 percent.

The money in HB 2 comes from many sources, including $3.6 billion from the state's discretionary bank account: the general fund. It does not include all spending, though. Such things as potential raises for state employees as I mentioned in last week's article, or money to fund construction projects at colleges across Montana are contained in other bills.

There's still plenty of opportunity to make changes, which is certain to happen, and please remember the budget isn't likely to be adopted until the session's end. We most certainly can expect debates over restoring federal money

2013 Championship Preview

The 76th edition of the Buffalo Funds-NAIA Division I Men's Basketball National Championship will begin Wednesday with the first of 31 games taking place. Thirty-two teams will converge on Municipal Auditorium in downtown Kansas City, Mo., with the national champion crowned on March 19. Coined college basketball's oldest national championship, the format is single-elimination and eight games take place the first three days, with the quarterfinals on Saturday and the Fab Four to run on March 18.

For the first time in the history of the championship, ESPN3 will broadcast live the semifinals at 6 and 8 p.m. CDT. The championship final will again be televised nationally on CBS Sports Network, with tip-time at 7:35 p.m. For more broadcast information, click here.

The first 28 games will be available via live video stream, in partnership with NeuLion, the NAIA official digital media partner.

The field is comprised of 17 automatic berths from 10 conferences and one unaffiliated group (Association of Independent Institutions and Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference). In addition, there are 15 at-large selections, which were determined using the final regular-season Coaches' Top 25 Poll released March 6.

The event opens with a match-up between No. 6 SAGU (Texas) (29-4) and Science & Arts (Okla.) (17-9) at 9 a.m. on Wednesday. Immediately after the second game that pairs No. 3 Lee (Tenn.) (29-3) and Voorhees (S.C.) (22-11), the NAIA Parade of Champions will take place.

Top seed and undefeated Columbia (Mo.) (33-0) will take on six-time national champion Oklahoma City (17-10) Wednesday at 7 p.m. The Cougars are trying to become the third team in championship history to win the title with a perfect record and the first since Oklahoma City in 1992. Meanwhile, the Stars are back in it for the first time since 2010.

Defending national champion Concordia (Calif.) (22-10) punched its ticket by virtue of winning the Golden State Athletic Conference tournament. At one point of the season, the Eagles were 16-10 before rattling off six-straight wins to end the year. Concordia battles No. 12 William Carey (Miss.) (25-5) Thursday at 10:45 a.m. The Eagles look to become the first team since Oklahoma City in 2007 and 2008 to repeat as national titlists.

Local to the Kansas City area, MidAmerica Nazarene (Kan.) (24-9) is making its third trip since 2009 and faces No. 7 Cal State San Marcos (23-6) Thursday at 6:15 p.m. Cal State San Marcos, the At-Large No. 4 team, is one of five newcomers to the championship, joining Arizona Christian (20-9), Hope International (Calif.) (25-7), Philander Smith (Ark.) (25-7) and St. Thomas (Texas) (28-5).

Winner of the Mid-South Conference tournament, No. 2 Lindsey Wilson (Ky.) (29-4) is playing in its 11th national championship. The Blue Raiders take on 2009 national champion Rocky Mountain (Mont.) Thursday at 8 p.m. Lindsey Wilson is trying to improve upon a 4-6 first round record, including two-straight losses.

Tickets may be purchased through Ticketmaster or at the Municipal Auditorium Box Office.
