Welborn's Weekly Legislative Review

HELENA:

I would like to take the opportunity this week to share some thoughts on some possible fixes to the State's broken retirement system. I also will share some of the discussions surrounding this issue, as it has generated a lot of interest among the citizens of this district.

We as a Legislature are inching closer to finding a fix to this bruised pension system when the Joint Select Committee on Pensions last week decided to advance both of the major proposed fixes. The same Committee on Pensions opted to leave the big decision to the House of Representatives, which will have to choose between a plan to fix the current system and another to end the current system as it now stands, in favor of a defined-contribution plan.

Analysts say Montana's public pension system, which includes both state and local government employees, faces a roughly $4 billion shortfall in the next 30 years if no action is taken. I will go record as saying that we simply can't allow this to happen, and by taking no action, it certainly will continue down a path that will put the financial stability of our State in jeopardy.

Personally, I join many legislators that prefer a plan that does away with the pension plan in its current form for new employees and replaces it with a defined-contribution plan that is similar to a 401(k) savings plan. Supporters argue taxpayers would no longer have to guarantee employees' future benefits, while opponents argue it is unfair & creates huge upfront costs to fix the plan for current employees.

Gov. Bullock wants a fix within the current defined-benefit system. The final version of that plan, covered in two separate bills, forces both employers and employees to pay more. The pension inflationary adjustment would also be cut, under amendments made by the pension committee.

Supporters say that plan takes a measured approach to fixing a valuable benefit for state employees, while opponents argue it just throws more money at the problem. I would agree this plan is better than taking no action at all, however, it's still a bandage on a system that is hemorrhaging with un-funded debt.

I have reason to believe both plans will go to the full House floor after both outside actuaries and legislative analysts calculate the final effect of some changes made in committee. Each bill aims to bring the pensions systems back into balance in about 30 years.

Some of my colleagues feel that both bills could face a constitutional challenge in court because they adjust contracts with current employees. I would contend that the state faces a bigger court challenge if the pension system runs out of money.

The fact is that the current pension system is already paying out more money each year than it takes in and continues to dip into the invested reserve. Even if we trim that defined benefit plan, the problem for me is that the taxpayers are still at risk. Bottom line is we have to make some tough decisions, and rein in the unfunded liability in a way that makes good on the agreement made to current and retired employees, while moving a forward with a plan that will make the system actuarially sound.

Another measure that has gathered some attention, and on the surface seems like a reasonable approach, is SB 195, a proposal that would make it illegal for employers to track employees actions on social media sites such as Facebook regardless of illegal or inappropriate actions by the employee where it could be damaging to the employer.

The bill's sponsor claims that its impetus is to protect job applicants from having to disclose social media usernames or passwords, provide access to social media sites, or divulge personal information on social media sites. This proposal goes way further than what it looks like on the surface.

SB 195 furthermore does not include exemptions for businesses needing to do employee investigations. Therefore, an employer would be prohibited from investigating a sexual harassment situation, hostile work environment, or other workplace problems emanating from an employee's social media activity.

Furthermore, there is no exemption for necessary business purposes. The bill creates strict liability if the employee happens to use the same username or password for work accounts as they do for social media sites. If an employer requires the work account username and password, they would violate the law under this bill.

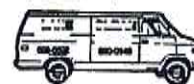

Again, I will contend that this is a laudable goal, but SB 195 greatly exceeds that general purpose and will have significant unintended consequences. This is a classic example of how good intentions can cause major implications, and therefore why I simply can't support such a proposal.

Great Harvest University Bakery

Open March 20, 21 & 22.

Hot Breads, Sweets and Sandwiches

Proceeds to benefit Beaver Booster Club

For more than 30 years, whole grains have been at the center of Great Harvest's commitment to healthy living. We grind whole grains into whole-wheat flour daily on-site in our bakery to retain important nutrients and because we believe fresh tastes amazing! Our whole wheat comes from the best source on earth: family farms on the dry high plains of the American heartland, where perfect growing conditions, coupled with decades of farming tradition, produce an exceptional crop.

Whole grains are fundamental to a healthy diet and active lifestyle.

In fact, the USDA Dietary Guidelines recommend we eat at least three ounce equivalents of whole grains every day. Score around 1-2 ounces with just two slices of any of our whole grain breads!

On the menu this week is our new Rosemary Bleu Bread. Rosemary Bleu Bread is 100 percent whole grain and features bleu cheese, rosemary, roasted walnuts and raisins. It's a savory bread that marries the popular taste of bleu cheese, with sweet, chewy raisins and rich crunchy roasted walnuts.

Rosemary Bleu is perfect with a hearty meal, salad or bowl of soup. And it's arguably the most amazing bread ever created for a gourmet roast beef sandwich.

Celebrate whole grains with Great Harvest by coming in for a free slice!

2013 Buffalo Funds-NAIA Division I Men's Basketball National Championship No. 13 Georgetown (Ky.) (28-8) defeats No. 6 SAGU (Texas) (33-5), 88-62

With Tuesday tonight's victory, the Tigers become the 15th team to win multiple national championships.

Of the 15 programs that have won two-or-more titles, Georgetown snaps the second longest drought in between championships (16 years). Oklahoma Baptist went 45 years in between trophies.

Moves to 59-30 overall record in the national championship, which ties Oklahoma Baptist for the most in championship history.

Tigers are participating in their record 22nd-straight event.

The 32 championship appearances are the most in NAIA history, five more than Central Washington's 27.

The 26 point margin of victory is the most since 1977, when Texas Southern won by 27 in the 71-44 over Campbell (N.C.).

Georgetown is the fourth program in the 76-year history to advance to the title game for the fifth-or-more time. Oklahoma Baptist holds the record of eight trips in the national championship final, Oklahoma City went seven times and Concordia (Calif.) has gone five times.

Live a Life that Matters:

By: MJ

Ready or not someday it will all come to an end. There will be no more sunrises - no minutes, hours or days. All the things you collected whether treasurers or baubles, will pass to someone else. Your wealth fame and temporal power will be irrelevant. It will no longer matter what you owned. Your grudges, resentments, frustrations, and jealousies will finally disappear. Your hopes, ambitions, plans, and to-do list will expire. The wins and losses that once seemed so important will fade away. It won't matter where you came from, who you knew or on what side of the tracks you lived in the end. It won't matter if you were handsome, beautiful, what color your skin was or what your gender was.

So what will matter? What will matter is not what you bought -- but what you Built; not what you got, but what you gave. Your successes will not matter; but your significance will matter. What you learned will not matter, but what you taught will matter. What will matter is every act of integrity, compassion, or sacrifice that enriched, empowered or encouraged others to emulate your example. . What will matter is not your competence, but your character. It will not matter how many people you knew, but it will matter how many people will feel a lasting loss, when you're gone what will matter is the memories, memories left behind that live in those who loved you. What will matter is how long you will be remembered, by whom and for what. Living a life that matters doesn't happen by accident. It's not a matter of circumstance but of our choices.
