Welborn's Weekly Legislative Review

From the state budget to tax relief to public-school funding, most of the the big issues remain in play as the 2013 Montana Legislature enters its final week, which doesn't necessarily mean everyone will leave Helena with all they want.

Most Democrats and the moderate Republicans who've banded together to pass many of the session's major pieces of legislation, including the broadly supported and bipartisan school-funding bills, still remain hopeful we can leave town accomplishing what you have sent us to do. Let's take a look at some of the major pieces of legislation still in play.

A half-dozen major items are unresolved and could be part of the endgame negotiations, although some issues are closer than others to getting finished, please understand, it's not much different than any session, when the big issues are up in the air until the final moments. There are many things that many of us feel relatively good about, like the school-funding proposal and the state pay plan, which I have talked about in detail in earlier columns, but the final days will decide these and other critical issues that remain undone. Here's a summary of the status of the unresolved major issues:

State budget: The main state budget bill, which spends $9 billion the next two years, has passed the Legislature, but Gov. Bullock has said he won't sign it in its current form. He indicated he wants to add spending for personnel at the State Prison and additional child abuse investigators, and perhaps make other adjustments. Republican legislative leaders are negotiating with the governor's office over what changes may be acceptable. Any changes must be approved by a majority of lawmakers in both the Senate and House, where Republicans hold majorities.

Medicaid reform: Unless something extraordinary happens, this issue is dead. Sixty votes in the Republican-controlled House are needed to revive the bill. Many of us worked hard for a reasonable approach to this issue over the course of the session. In the end we come up a little short, but I want to go on the record as saying that we had a true bi-partisan, and free market plan that among other things, helped hospitals get better reimbursement rates than full on Medicaid expansion would have, and reaped the benefits of not having to provide the $140 million of charity care that they currently undertake for providing services to uninsured people.

Public-school funding: The Legislature has approved the bill enacting a historic rewrite of how Montana funds public schools, including some $53 million in new money for schools. It increases state lump-sum payments to schools, freezes local school property taxes, spreads oil-and-gas money among more school districts impacted by oil-and-gas development, and sets aside special natural resource payments for school construction. However, Senate Bill 175 could still be a factor in final-day negotiations, however I remain hopeful this measure is on it's way to being signed by the governor.

Pay raises: A bill is headed to the Governor to give most state employees their first increase in base pay in four years. It falls short of the proposed across-the-board 5 percent raises in each of the next two years negotiated by then-Gov. Brian Schweitzer and the public employee unions. The amended bill removes the 5 percent raises and provides 75 percent of the money that Bullock budgeted to fund the pay hikes. If the Governor signs the bill, he said he'll reopen negotiations with unions, and he as been instructed by this legislature to start the process by giving the initial raises to the workers that haven't seen a pay hike in six years first, before others are in line for any additional pay increase.

Pensions: Two bills providing a financial fix to Montana's pension funds are headed to the Governor. The funds face a potential $4.3 billion shortfall after their investments tanked during the 2008 recession. The two bills -- one addressing the retirement system for teachers and the other for public employees -- The two bills ask both employees and their local and state public employers to pay more, while reducing benefits a little. They are projected to fix a projected $4 billion shortfall in the pensions for public employees and teachers. Neither of these plans are perfect, but both have bi-partisan support and have the endorsements of both county governments and municipalities that are enrolled in these systems also. I contend both plans are a step in a positive direction for the tax payers of Montana.

Buildings: An attempt backed by the Governor to issue bonds to finance construction of new and renovated university system buildings and other projects appears dead because it can't muster the needed two-thirds House majority. Instead, the Legislature has diverted most projects into another bill, funded by cash rather than bonding and therefore only needing a simple majority to pass. I'm proud to report that the final phase of Old Main at UM- Western is one among other projects that looks to be funded this session under this new plan.

I will do a full report on the session after all the moving pieces that are still in play are either signed into law or die in the process, whatever the case may be. I remain hopeful we will finish the session with not only responsible education funding, but also viable and long term pension funding, state workers pay, and building projects funding. I was elected to work for you toward reasonable solutions, I remain committed to do just that.

please call 683-2735.

BCHS TENNIS

The Beavers varsity tennis teams played Park on Tuesday after having matches cancelled last week because of weather.

The girls struggled in the singles matches and lost all four of the sets. Morgan Peterson went down 6-1, 6-1, Janet Moore went 6-4, 4-6 and 10-8 (10 pt. tie breaker), Morgan Evans and Taylor Eighorn both lost in two. In the doubles matches Whitney Southan/Kansas Suenram won 7-6 (8-1), 6-1, in the second position Holly Hansen/Taryn Judge were defeated 4-6, 7-6, 10-6 (which was a 10 pt. tie breaker for the 3rd set due to time) and Timber McQuiston/Caitlyn Feldt won in two sets 7-5, 6-3.

The boys tried hard but lost all four of the singles matches. Todd Rakich went 6-1, 6-1, Mark Waldrup was 6-1 and 6-2, John Bodnar was 6-1, 6-1 and Austin Finch was 6-0, 6-0. In doubles Mark Wal-drup/Todd Rakich came out on top of their opponents 6-3, 6-2 which was an exhibition match. Michael Thompson/Adam Waldorf won 6-0, 6-0 and in an exhibition singles match Michael Thompson won
6-2, 6-3. The Beavers are coached by Lois Woodard.

A NEIGHBOR IN NEED

John and Vonnie Knapp's home burned down in Argenta. They are raising their 4 grandchildren and could use your help. An account has been set up at Stockman Bank. If you can help them, your donation can be made at Stockman.

Womack's Printing Place is helping to gather a few things that the family is still in need of. If you have any of these things to donate you can drop them off at Womack's, 126 N. Montana Street: Canned food and canned fruit, a freezer any style or size, twin bed mattress pads or blankets, crib mattress pad or blankets, living room lamps, Christmas or other holiday decorations.

For other donations or questions please call Myrna Carpita at 683-4265.

REWARD OFFERED

A reward is being offered for a lost sanwich baggie full of 22 hornet brass. If found please call Tom 509-599-1733

SPRING FLING

Downtown Dillon will have a spring fling on Saturday. There will be story time, face painting, craft fair, petting zoo, and sales, sales, sales.

Go downtown and help support your local merchants.

ALASKAN WAY VIADUCT

By: MJ

Bertha is a five-story tunneling machine that will complete a two-mile tunnel beneath downtown Seattle. Bertha was manufactured in Japan arriving in Seattle via ship on April 2. The 80 million dollar machine will begin tunneling this summer. The tunnel will be completed in 2015 and will move a two mile stretch of SR 99 underground.

Bertha is the world's largest-diameter tunneling machine and today in 41 pieces that will be reassembled near the pit in the west of Seattle's stadiums.

You can track this project @berthadugsSR99.
