Dean Ovitt, 59

We are all better people for having loved Dean Ovitt, 59, who passed away May 20, 2013 in Dillon following a heroic effort to conquer melanoma. Dean was born in Dillon, MT on February 16, 1954. He grew up in Boulder, MT with his parents Felma and Amil Herseim and nine siblings. He met his high school sweetheart and beloved wife Mary Catherine Keating in elementary school. Dean graduated from Jefferson High School in Boulder and studied business at University of Montana and Idaho State University.

Dean and Mary were married in Boulder, MT on July 13, 1974 and lived in Missoula, MT before moving to Burley, ID in 1978 where they were blessed with two daughters.

Dean enjoyed a successful sales career in Burley. His success continued in Dillon as the general manager of Big Sky Motors and later as business manager at Intermountain Irrigation.

Dean lived his life with a commitment to family and friends, passion for golf, and heartfelt generosity to his community. Dean was the recipient of many community service awards including the Dillon Chamber of Commerce Businessman of the Year, 2008 UM Western Alumni Service Award, and recognition by the Beaverhead Golf Course for successful fundraising. He was a man of achievement and optimism who loved life.

Dean is survived by his wife Mary, daughters Kate (Curtis) Hitchcock and Mandy (Mike) Lee, mother Felma Herseim, sister Vicki (George) Taylor, brother Richard, step-siblings Lynette Dougherty, Pam Schleicher, and Gary Herseim; and Norman Ovitt.

Dean was preceded in death by his dad Amil, sister Valerie, brothers Dale and Don, and step-brothers Bob and Craig.

The family is grateful for the expertise and compassion of the professionals at the Huntsman Cancer Institute and hospice care provided by Dr. Karen Weed, Kelly Osborne and Marie Holt of Barrett Memorial.

A memorial service will be held Monday, May 27th at 3:00 pm in the Keltz Arena, UM Western campus. Memorials may be made to UM Western Foundation, Huntsman Cancer Foundation or Barrett Memorial Hospice.

ing their needs. Is their care transition seamless? Do they receive follow-up treatment? Is the care they receive what these folks want?"

The clinical data analysis portion of the research will be performed through the International Heart Institute Foundation because of its existing infrastructure, interest and expertise in the specific research of clinical outcomes and comparative effectiveness. Specific discharge subgroups will be the focus and likely will include orthopedics, pneumonia, stroke and heart failure patients. "Together with our University colleagues and critical access partner hospitals, we seek to optimize the health care experience in western Montana," Knapp said.

Tom Seekins, director of the Rural Institute's Research Unit, said the project is part of a larger effort to ensure that patients get the treatment that has the greatest chance of achieving the outcomes they want.

"Studies have shown that the cost of re-hospitalization is one of the highest avoidable costs in medicine – one that medical providers, hospitals and insurers are trying to control," Seekins said.

Researchers at Boston University demonstrated that a re-engineered discharge process improved patient care and reduced costs. Those researchers were careful to note, however, that their model worked well in a large city where the resources and people are close, but a different approach would be needed in rural areas.

"Say you have a hip replacement and the surgery goes well," Seekins said. "But you are sent home without a plan that takes into account that you will need help caring for an elderly parent who lives with you, and something happens that sends you back to the hospital. That can be very expensive for everyone. But if you have a plan that takes such demands into account, you're more likely to heal successfully."

Raveslout said the project is designed to develop and test an innovative discharge planning process. The first part of their research will involve talking to patients in the target communities to learn about their experiences and the degree to which their needs were met. Then, a design team – made up of representatives from the rural towns and hospitals, the Montana Hospital Association and Montana State University – will use the data to engineer a new rural model for testing.

"We will get the patient perspective on what's important when you discharge back home," Raveslout said. "We want to design new components for discharge that are just as precise as any medical treatment."

The study is one of 51 projects totaling $88.6 million approved for funding by PCORI's Board of Governors on May 6. All were selected through a highly competitive review process in which scientists, patients, caregivers, and other stakeholders helped to evaluate more than 400 applications for funding. Proposals were evaluated based on scientific merit, how well they engage patients and other stakeholders, their methodological rigor and how well they fit within PCORI's national research priorities.

The awards are part of PCORI's second cycle of primary research funding. This new round of funding follows PCORI's initial approval of $40.7 million in support for 25 projects under the institute's national research priorities. All awards in this most recent round of funding were approved pending completion of a business and programmatic review by PCORI staff and issuance of a formal award contract. More information is available at <http://www.pcori.org>.

About PCORI

The Patient-Centered Outcomes Research Institute is an independent, nonprofit organization authorized by Congress in 2010. Its mission is to fund research to provide patients, their caregivers and clinicians with the evidence-based information needed to make better-informed health care decisions. PCORI is committed to continuously seeking input from a broad range of stakeholders to guide its work.
