PUBLIC INVITED TO BIRD BANDING EVENTS AT MT HAGGIN WMA

Mount Haggin Wildlife Management Area will host several opportunities for both kids and adults to observe bird banding while learning about the ecological effects of past mining activities and current restoration projects along the Clark Fork River. These events are part of the University of Montana's Avian Science Center's "Bird's-eye View Education Program" in cooperation with FWP. They are free and open to all.

Participants will:

- See birds "in the hand"
- Learn why biologists capture and band birds
- Find out what kind of data biologists collect
- Gain bird ID skills and learn a few common bird songs
- Find out why riparian areas are so important to birds.
- Learn the history of mining activities in the Upper Clark Fork Basin and the effect those activities had on bird communities

Bird Banding Schedule at Mt. Haggin 2013:

Saturday, June 1, Thursday, June 13, Thursday, June 20
Monday, July 1, Monday, July 15, Tuesday, July 23
Monday, August 5

Visitors should plan to arrive at either 7:00 am or 9:00 am in order to participate in the program. For more information about this program or to arrange a group visit, contact Megan Fyelling (megan.fyelling@mso.umt.edu) or Sharon Fuller (Sharon.fuller@mso.umt.edu).

Please keep in mind that these programs are weather dependent – if the forecast is for rain or high winds, we may have to cancel – contact Megan or Sharon at 243-2035 for an update.

Visitors should wear shoes and clothes appropriate for hiking near riparian woodlands & consider bringing snacks or a lunch, as well as water, sunscreen, a hat, and bug repellent (the mosquitoes can be quite numerous!) Bring binoculars
if you have them and a camera if you'd like – this unique
"bird-in-the-hand" situation creates nice photo opportunities.

BISON FOUND IN RIVER DID NOT DIE FROM MALIGNANT CATARRHAL FEVER

Results from lab tests confirm that the first of three dead bison found in the Yellowstone River did not die from malignant catarrhal fever (results on the other two bison are pending and expected within one to two weeks). The exact cause of death could not be determined from tissue samples. However, there was no sign of disease. The only evidence of abnormality on the carcass – visible to FWP Wildlife Veterinarian Jennifer Ramsey – was trauma to the animal's pelvis.

Within the past two weeks, three dead bison were spotted in the Yellowstone River. With two separate efforts, FWP crews were able to retrieve tissue samples from each bison: the first near Emigrant, and the other two closer to Gardiner. Ramsey also documented trauma to these other two bison in the form of broken ribs in one, and a fractured pelvis in the other. She believes these traumas to have been suffered before death.

Given the recent introduction of domestic sheep in the Gardiner area, FWP looked into the possibility of malignant catarrhal fever in these bison. Malignant catarrhal fever is a viral disease which may be carried by domestic sheep without any symptoms, but can cause fatal infections in bison.

UMW BULLDOGS SIGN GREAT FALLS STAR JOEY MARZION

University of Montana Western men's basketball head coach Steve Keller announced the signing of Great Falls Charles M. Russell High School's Joey Marzion to a Frontier Conference Letter of Intent.

Marzion, a 6'1" guard, averaged 20 points per game last season for Great Falls. He is the son of Dennis and Jill Marzion and will major in wildlife biology.

"We are very excited Joey decided to play for the Bulldogs," Keller said. "Joey has great quickness and speed and is probably the most athletic guard in the state. We look for Joey to be a great player in the Frontier Conference."

Exercise has more benefits than just weight loss.

Exercise is a powerful tool for self-improvement. Its benefits reach beyond physical benefits to mental ones, from increased self-confidence to stress reduction. Not only will you see results, you'll also feel them inside. Exercising gives you a sense of accomplishment, and can trigger changes in your overall mental state to help you focus, relax, cope and otherwise gain better control of your life.

Here are some exercises that can build your inner strength as much as your outer strength. They may help you shed a few pounds, too.

Yoga

What it is: A series of postures and deep-breathing exercises practiced as part of an ancient Indian system of philosophy.

Physical results: Firms and tones muscles and increases flexibility.

How it empowers: Increases self-confidence. Yoga can also help you de-stress.

Pilates

What it is: Exercises done on floor mats or specially designed equipment that help build your "core" — your back, abs, inner thighs and hips.

Physical results: Once you get your core stronger, your whole body becomes stronger. Pilates also increases flexibility.

How it empowers: Pilates improves your posture. It also increases your sense of control and self-awareness

Weight training

What it is: A routine involving lifting weights to develop muscle — free weights and weights on the bench.

Physical benefits: Improves strength and builds muscle, which increases your calorie building at rest.

How it empowers: Ever feel like weight training takes forever? Good. That means you're focusing — and improving your concentration

Running

What it is: Something many of us avoid. Physical benefits: Enhances endurance, aids in weight loss, and improves cholesterol, blood pressure and overall health.

How it empowers: You see someone who can't make it through it a 10-minute run, and soon they're doing fine with a 45-minute run. Runners really find a stick-to-it-ness.

Transfer that skill to work projects and relationships, and you're sure to find success. There's also a release of endorphins, which can lead to stress and anxiety relief.

Superbugs and Supermarkets:

By: MJ

Superbugs are and antibiotic-resistant bacteria. A test conducted in 2011 by the National Antimicrobial Resistance Monitoring System, found that meats in the supermarkets contain significant amounts of the superbugs. The tests showed that antibiotic-resistant bacteria were found in ground turkey, pork chops, ground beef and chicken.

CONTRIBUTORS OF SUPERBUGS: The antibiotic usage of factory farms that produce most of the 8.9 billion animals produced for food consumption. Livestock producers often inject or feed animal's drugs to encourage faster growth and also to protect animals against infection in crowded living conditions. Pharmaceutical makers encourage abuse of antibiotics in the livestock industry as it makes them a lot of money. In 2011 they sold 30± million pounds for use in animals being produced for food. The Pew Campaign calculated that antibiotics used for the treatment of humans were around 7.7 million pounds.

The Task Force on Antimicrobial Resistance warned that "drug choices for the treatment of infections are becoming increasingly limited and expensive if you can get them. Antibiotic misuse today is threatening the effectiveness of antibiotics prescribed by doctors when treating humans.

SUGGESTIONS TO PROTECT YOU: 1) Wash hands to limit transfer of bacteria. 2) Maintain you immune system by eating nutritious food, good sleep habits, exercise and avoid stress when possible. 3) Don't overuse antibiotics - don't pressure your doctor into prescribing them. 4) Heat kills bacteria - cooked your food well. 5) Beware of what you are eating and drinking when traveling.
