Dillon has a Little Free Library and you're invited to the Grand Opening!

Maria Gallegos is excited to be the Steward for the Dillon Little Free Library #5581 on behalf of Dillon's neighbors and community. The way it works is simple:

- We initially stock the LFL with a variety of good quality books that we hope will interest our neighbors
- You stop by with a book or two to contribute
- You select and take whatever book(s) catch your reading fancy
- You may keep the book you select, or return it in exchange for another one Little Free Library is a book exchange movement started by Todd Bol of Hudson and Rick Brooks of Madison in 2010 and has grown to include little libraries across the U.S. and dozens of other countries. Little Free Library's mission is to:

- promote literacy and the love of reading by building free book exchanges worldwide.
- foster a sense of community and connection as we share skills, creativity and wisdom across generations
- build more than 2,510 libraries around the world (the number of "real" Carnegie libraries built by Andrew Carnegie)!

Check out the LFL story at www.littlefreelibrary.org and look at the many amazing examples of little libraries.

Join us for the Grand Opening
Saturday, June 15, 2013 starting at 9:00

Refreshments served

699 Kentucky Ave- back garden corner

Feel free to drop by any time throughout the day

Please bring a book and a buck!

The book is for you to exchange with the library, and the dollar is a one-time donation to help pay for building costs, upkeep, and a future reading bench to be installed next to the library!

BARRETT HOSPITAL & HEALTHCARE

Beaverhead Foundation Supports Barrett Hospital Foundation

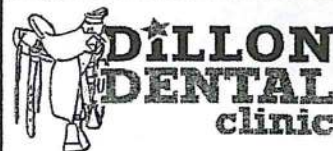

The Beaverhead Foundation recently awarded Barrett Hospital Foundation $3,500 to purchase an Arjo, automatic patient lift. The unit will be added to one of the patient rooms at the hospital, and will make it safer for patients and hospital employees.

The lift system consists of an electric motor with a hand-held control, a lift harness to support the patient, and an overhead track system. Patients can be easily and securely transferred from one chair or bed to another and also transported into the restroom.

Research has shown that mechanical lifts can reduce the risk of accidents and can also reduce the risk of lifting injuries for staff while moving or transporting patients. Without mechanical lift systems, moving a patient can be very labor intensive and can require 2 or more staff.

The Hospital strives to be the model in rural healthcare delivery for the United States in all facets of primary health services.

For more information, please contact the Barrett Hospital Foundation at (406)683-6737.

Person in Control?
By: MJ

Are you a person that meets or sees someone and decides immediately what kind of person they are? Are you a person that makes an instant judgment of another person's character based on how you are feeling at that time? Maybe you are a person that has control issues and your way is the only way?

Example: Have you ever been on a plane and they ask you to turn your cell phones off. You continue using your phone because you are not done using your cell even though you might be hindering the technology of the plane and jeopardizing the safety of others. You then look at the attendant and make a judgment call of what an ugly person they are when in reality they are only looking out for your best interests.

You cannot know what the quality of a person is with snap judgments.

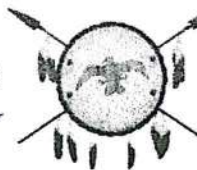

Take time to get to know and enjoy people.

Mazy's Traveling Teapot

by Jean Tilton James

(2nd installment - continued from the Wednesday, June 5th, edition of the Dillonite Daily)

The next few days were full of new experiences. Uncle Charlie let Mazy hold the reins and help steer the oxen that pulled the wagon. Mother allowed Mazy to run ahead of the wagon and pick wild flowers as long as she could always see the wagon and didn't go too far away. Other wagons joined the Rydle family as they traveled. Mother said they were going to St. Paul where they would be joining Captain Fisk for their journey West. She said they were going to help make a passageway from Minnesota to Montana and that soon a railroad would be built along that passageway.

The day they arrived in St. Paul was an exciting day for Mazy. It was her birthday and Mother promised that after she and Benjamin washed up, Mazy could have her hair braided and wear her new hair ribbons. Just after Mother tied the last bow, father came over to their wagon. A man wearing tall boots and carrying a rifle was with him.

"I'd like you to meet my family," father said with a stern look at Benjamin who was making a road in the dirt with a stick. "This is Captain Fisk, Samantha," Father introduced Mother. Mother curtsied and then brought Mazy forward.

"My daughter, Captain Fisk, and our son, both of whom will be good travelers, I am sure," declared Mother as she pulled Benjamin out of the dirt with a little shake. Captain Fisk smiled at them with a twinkle in his eye and Mazy felt bold enough to say, "I have new hair ribbons because it is my birthday."

"Mazy, I am sure Captain Fisk has greater concerns than your little pleasures," scolded Father, but Captain Fisk came over and took her hand.

"The birthday of such a pretty little girl is always the concern of a gentleman," replied the Captain and then he reached in his pocket and gave Mazy a little stone he said had come from a place where hot water bubbled out of the ground. Mazy thanked him and then put the stone in her pinafore pocket for safekeeping. It felt rough in her hand, but it had the prettiest azure blue streaks in it. That night, she wrote in her sketchbook that she had the best birthday ever. "I am sure we will be safe with Captain Fisk," she thought and then added, "and Father, too."

By the time they reached Fort Abercrombie on June 25th, Mazy was tired of traveling. Benjamin made her ever so angry by pinching her when mother wasn't looking. She missed Grandma Jenny very much. She missed Grandma Jenny's oatmeal cookies and how they would sit under the big tree in the yard at home and have tea. Grandma Jenny always smelled so nice and always told her stories about when she was a little girl.

Mazy hated all the dust on her clothes from traveling and wanted a bath in the big tub behind the kitchen door at home. Even though each family got a turn at being first in the wagon line, it always seemed dusty and made Mazy cough. Mother said they might be able to take a bath at Fort Abercrombie, but Mazy knew it wouldn't be as nice as at home. Mazy felt sad every time she thought about home, and finally, Mother told her, "You need to be a big girl and understand that we are going to a new home." Mazy wasn't at all sure she wanted a new home without Grandma Jenny. (continued on Wed., June 19th)

The Children's Writing Corner with Jeannie James

I came to work this morning and was so happy to find our first submission for The Children's Writing Corner. Olivette shows that she is imaginative when she writes and has a real flare for cadance or rythmn with words. Thank you Olivette for sharing with us. Please remember that you can send your work to womacks_printing@bresnan.net. Good writing this week to all you budding authors!

Will the Flowers Wilt and Die?

(Keep the Flowers alive
by Adopting a Median)

Due to the many projects of the Dillon Garden Club, it has become necessary for the group to ask the community for help with the maintenance of the 4 blocks on Helena Street. The median flowers and plants during the growing season are enjoyed by visitors and residents alike, and need some individuals or a group to maintain their beauty with weeding and general clean-up. There are perennials in two of the blocks, and shrubs and annuals in the other 2 blocks. There is an automatic watering system for each block. A member of the Garden Club will serve as a mentor/advisor for the first year to support the new volunteers.

It is the hope of the Garden club that four different groups take on the opportunity to maintain the median of their choice; first come, first choice of blocks. This will lessen the work and allow for more community involvement.

Please help keep Dillon a beautiful town, rich in the heritage of plants and flowers. For more information or clarification, please contact Garden Club President, Diana Peppin at 406-865-0372.

USED AND OR BROKEN CELL PHONES

The Women's Resource/Community Support Center is collecting used and or broken cell phones. As you are doing your spring cleaning, going through junk drawers, please set aside those cell phone, Smart phones, and/or I pads. The Resource Center sends them into Shelter Alliance who then sends us a donation based on the recycling costs. We are putting all the funds collected into a "FUN FUND" for our Middle School Girls Group Summer activities. We have almost reached our goal of $500.00 please help us get there. Together we are "People Helping People".
