Vigilante Theatre Company's Final Performances

Thursday night, July 11th, the Vigilante Theatre Company will present, WHO SHOT THE SHERIFF? at the Dillon Elks Lodge beginning with a social hour at 5:00 followed by Act I at 6:00 and dinner at 6:45. Act II will complete the evening at 8:00. After 32 year of entertaining regional audiences, this will be the next-to-last performance of this highly successful theater company, with a final show in Chalice, Idaho this weekend. Bruce Hurlbut wrote and directed the murder mystery that will be presented.

The Vigilante Theater Company was founded in Dillon in 1981 by John Hosking and Rhonda Smith at the University of Montana Western. Following an invitation from the Department of Media and Theatre Arts at Montana State University, The Vigilante Players moved to Bozeman in 1983 where the company has continued to reside.

From its inception, The Vigilante Theatre Company has endeavored to bring professional performances to Montanans of all ages by creating original works written by award-winning Montana play-wrights and performed by talented Montana actors. Local audiences will remember enjoying such shows as HISTORY MYSTERY TRAIN and THE LEWIS AND CLARK SHOW.

Co-Founder, John Hosking, has performed with Shakespeare in the Parks and the Virginia City Players. While touring in the Northwest with "A Contemporary Theatre" of Seattle, he was involved with ACT's Theatre for Young Audiences and Main Stage and was invited to perform at the Kennedy Center. John was a member of the Founding Board of the Emerson Cultural Center in Bozeman, MT.

Rhonda Smith, the other co-founder of the company grew up surrounded by wheat fields on the Fort Peck Reservation of Northeastern Montana. While receiving a B.A in theatre from MSU and an M.F.A from Wayne State University's Hilberry Repertory Company, she was twice honored with an Award of Excellence while appearing at the Kennedy Center in Washington D.C. Other honors include the Montana Governor's Award bestowed upon Shakespeare in the Parks while she toured as an actress and company manager. Summers with the Virginia City Opera House prepared her for co-founding the Vigilantes.

The Vigilante Theatre Company will be greatly missed by Montanans who have laughed and cried through the years of comedy and insight into life in the West that this energetic theater company has given its patrons.

Tickets for this milestone dinner theater are $25 per person or $40 for a couple. Please call 683-5552 for reservations.

Elling House Arts and Humanities Host Art Show and Concert

"A Family Compendium" opens at the Elling House Arts and Humanities Center in Virginia City on Friday, July 12th with a reception at 5:30 pm and a concert performed by The Dillon Junior Fiddlers at 7:00 pm.

The art show features the work of Jean James and her family. "Compendium" comes from the latin word, compendere meaning weigh together," says James. "My family are all engaged in the arts one way or another. Some are musicians, some write or paint or do photography. We have a weaver and spinner, a potter and a metal worker and I currently paint on silk fabric and design and construct stained glass. This show is about the joy of making art and the intense pleasure sharing art can be to a family. My family doesn't have some kind of a genetic anomaly that makes us any different than any other family, but we do place value on creative expression. This value over several generations has resulted in encouragement to try various artistic media. I hope this show will promote other families to focus on the arts and support each other's efforts. Four generations of my family will be represented.

RAINBOW WRAP-UP IS PROGRAM AT DILLON ROTARY WEDNESDAY

Cass Cairns, Information Officer with the Forest Service, will give a post-gathering assessment of the recent Rainbow gathering for Dillon's Rotarians and guests this Wednesday. Programs begin at 12:30 in the Episcopal Guild Hall, 203 East Glendale. Visitors are welcome. Anyone wishing to learn more about Rotary should come at noon to be a guest for lunch.

Rainbow Family Gathering in cleanup and rehabilitation mode: Management delegated back to the Forest

The 2013 National Rainbow Family Gathering is officially over and the final phase of cleaning up trash and rehabilitating disturbed areas is now in progress by Rainbow Family volunteers. This work, conducted with the oversight of Forest Service resource specialists, will continue over the next couple of weeks.

A signed letter of delegation of authority, dated Monday, July 8, returned management of the Rainbow Family Gathering from the National Incident Management Team to the Wisdom Ranger District of the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest.

Key priorities remain the same – to provide for employee and public safety, minimize impacts to natural resources, protect resource values at risk, and provide oversight during the rehabilitation process.

"I anticipate the Rainbow Family volunteers will do their part to return the area back to its natural state by removing all trash and rehabilitate disturbed areas as a result of their activities over the past two weeks," said Russ Riebe, Wisdom-Wise River District Ranger; Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest.

BIG HOLE RIVER DAY PLANNED FOR MELROSE

The Big Hole River Foundation and the town of Melrose, MT are hosting Big Hole River Day on Saturday, July 20th from 11 AM – 9 PM at the firemen's hall in Melrose, Montana. During the day there will be vendors, casting, fly tying, rowing demonstrations, children's activities and more.

A pancake breakfast will be served by the 4-H club at the Hitchin' Post from 8-11 AM. Vendor and crafts booths will be open from 11-5. Evening activities begin at 5:30 PM with music by Mountain Moongrass Band in the firemen's hall followed by the Annual Big Hole River Foundation BBQ, live and silent auctions, and the drawing for the Hyde "Rocky Mountain Skiff" drift boat and trailer.

Vendor and arts and crafts booth spaces are still available. Tickets for the BBQ can be purchased by calling 866-533-BHRF or going to the website at www.bhrf.org and clicking on the events tab. Raffle tickets on the Hyde drift boat are for sale at local shops in Butte, Dillon and throughout the watershed.

Bear Spray Information

For years now, wildlife experts have lauded bear spray as the best defense against bear attacks since it creates a large cloud of painful, peppery mist for a charging bear to encounter. Every season thousands of visitors and residents in the greater Yellowstone area buy bear spray to carry in the backcountry hoping they never need it. In the end, many cans are discarded after their expiration date or due to airline restrictions that prevent travelers from bringing home their bear spray.

Discarded bear spray creates environmental hazards in landfills from heavy metals, harsh irritants and chemical propellants. From 2008 to 2011, thanks to the efforts of the engineering program at MSU, the Gallatin National Forest, the Yellowstone Park Foundation and Mountain State Engineering of Billings came together to find a solution. The bear spray recycling machine was designed and created to safely release the harsh chemicals from the cans and then crush the aluminum for re-use. Following the recycling program's debut, the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest quickly jumped on board by collecting and transporting expired or empty cans of bear spray to the machine located in Yellowstone National Park.

The Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest invites people to bring their used or unused bear spray cans to offices located in Butte, Deer Lodge, Dillon, Ennis, Philipsburg, Sheridan, Whitehall, Wisdom or Wise River.

Bear spray has proven to be the best defense against bears in numerous real-life encounters as well as lab testing. To properly use bear spray: Always carry in a readily accessible location. When you encounter a bear, have bear spray in your hand and ready to use. If the bear acts aggressively, remove the safety and spray the bear as it charges. Spray a one to two second burst when the bear is within 40 feet, aiming low as the spray will drift upward. Keep spraying in bursts if the bear continues to charge. Store bear spray in a cool location, never in a closed vehicle. For more information contact the local Forest Service office in your area.

Mazy's Traveling Teapot by Jean Tilton James (final installment)

That winter Mazy played with her new baby sister, Helen, and tried to help mother whenever she asked. Sometimes she got tired of baby Helen's crying, but mostly she liked it that she could make her sister smile by talking to her. She still missed Grandma Jenny and sometimes wished she could be back home in Minnesota. It was hard to feel like Virginia City was home. Father said they would build a new house this spring and Mother taught Mazy to crochet a doily for their new table. It had come on a steamboat to Fort Benton and then on a wagon pulled by a whole bunch of mules.

Spring finally came, and everything got muddy. It was one of Mazy's jobs to clean the mud from everyone's boots and shoes. She hated that job, but knew better than to complain. Finally the mud started to dry up and the days grew warmer. It wouldn't be long before Mazy would have her birthday. It seemed ever so long ago that Captain Fisk had given her the special stone. She had it saved in a little box along with her hanky from Grandma Jenny. Her sketchbook was almost full, and Mazy liked to look back at the pictures and things she had written on their journey West.

On the day of her birthday, Mazy woke up to the sound of a bird outside the cabin. She liked that sound because it reminded her of Grandma Jenny and having tea parties under the big tree at home. She didn't want to cry on her birthday, so she jumped out of bed before she had any more sad thoughts. It was washday, so she helped Mother do the laundry. They washed and rinsed the clothes in the big tubs that Mother heated on the stove. After that, they went outdoors and she handed Mother the clothes to stretch on the clotheslines with big wooden pins. Tomorrow, they would heat up the irons on the stove, and Mazy would be allowed to iron simple things like Father's handkerchiefs and the pillowcases.

Mazy was disappointed that no one seemed to remember it was her birthday. It was her tenth birthday and she thought that should be important. Later in the day, Uncle Charlie came whistling up to their porch and winked at Mazy, but he didn't say a thing. He left after talking to her mother and Mazy just about cried. She sat down in the shade of the little Lilac bush that Mother had planted and felt very sorry for herself. Even Benjamin got to have a birthday party right after they got to Virginia City.

The door opened and Mother came out on the porch.

"Mazy," she called "I need your help with something, dear," Mazy walked to the cabin as slowly as she could, hoping she didn't have to do more chores. When she went inside, she gasped. On the table were Mother's very best tablecloth and a jar with purple flowers in it. Beside the flowers was a plate of little cakes and next to that was a teapot and some cups.

"Oh, oh, oh," was all that Mazy could say. Then finally she looked at her mother. "Isn't that Grandma Jenny's teapot?"

"It is, my darling girl," said Mother in a quiet voice. I know you still miss her, but she is here in spirit for your birthday tea party. She would be so proud of you for all of the help you have been to me. Someday, this teapot will belong to you, but for now, can we share it? Welcome to tea, my birthday girl."

As they ate the little cakes and Mazy filled Mother's teacup from the pot that would one day belong to her, Mazy knew that she really was at home. She could almost hear Grandma Jenny right beside her telling the story of how the teapot came to America. The teapot had traveled with Mazy all those miles from Minnesota in the wagon and Mazy hadn't even known it.

Yes, Mazy did have a good birthday and for the rest of her life, the teapot would be there to remind her that home is with people who love you. If some can't be there in person, like Grandma Jenny, they can join you in spirit. Later Uncle Charlie gave her a little dollhouse with real little furniture and Mother brought out the new dress she had made for Mazy. Even Benjamin got into the act and brought her a little puppy that Father had helped pick out. It was a wonderful birthday, but the best part was her tea party with Mother and Grandma Jenny.

Author's note: This story is loosely based on accounts of the Fisk Expedition of 1866 from Redwood Falls, Minnesota to Montana Territory. The adventures on the trail were taken from diaries and letters written by members of the expedition.
