Are RULES made to be broken?

By: MJ

If you were at the Labor Day parade you noticed the majority of parade participants were not throwing candy from their moving vehicle.

WHY: The City Council and Mayor agreed upon a resolution that candy would not be thrown from a moving vehicle during the parade.

However, the mayor was throwing candy from his moving vehicle while his opponent in the upcoming election, Mike Klakken and many other parade participants honored the resolution and were not throwing candy. Should elected officials follow their own rules?

The protection and safety of children, participants as well as animals is extremely important during parades and the resolution set-in place a process to do that.

Other participants such as Rep. Steve Daines, honored the resolution by walking and throwing candy.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE HAVING FOR LUNCH

Discover easy planning tips and satisfying meal ideas.

Article By: Amanda Genge

KnowWhatYoureHavingForLunchTopicOftheWeekWhile it may not get top billing as "the most important meal of the day," lunchtime is still an important opportunity to refuel. But making smart lunch choices can get tricky when obligations like work (the cafeteria has those delicious fries!), errands (oh tempting cinnamon rolls at the mall) and appointments (no time to stop — have to hit the drive-thru) put us in places where healthy options may be limited. Whatever your schedule, this month's Routine — know what you're having for lunch — and the tips and meal ideas that follow, will help you stick with Plan-friendly options no matter where you are at lunchtime.

What makes a good lunch?

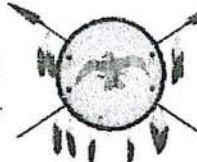

Nutrition wise, the most satisfying lunches combine lean protein, complex carbohydrates, fiber and a little healthy fat. Of course you can boost satisfaction by mixing things up! (The last thing you want to do is bury your brown bag in the back of the office fridge because you just can't bear the thought of staring down another tuna sandwich and apple.) The suggestions below can be rotated into your existing menu or used as a no-brainer starting point.

Don't be afraid of convenience foods. They are a little more expensive, but pre-portioned packages of baby carrots, apple slices, low-fat cheese, fat-free Greek yogurt, hummus, nuts, or canned tuna kits can be a lifesaver when you're in a rush. Just throw a few things in an insulated bag with an ice pack and voila, instant lunch! You can even stash a bag of pre-cooked rice and a can of beans in your desk drawer so you won't be caught off-guard by an impromptu office lunch. Leftovers are your friends, too. When you make dinner, double the recipe or cook a little extra of certain things (like chicken breasts or rice) to refrigerate for lunch. Or if you have time on the weekends for big-batch cooking, assemble and portion meals in single-serving containers. Then store them in the freezer for grab and go weekday meals. You can even pre-cook pasta and rice to bring to work (with sauce on the side).

Make your own salad bar. Keep small containers of your favorite salad toppings and mix-ins handy in the fridge (chopped veggies, hard-boiled eggs, tuna salad, shredded cheese, diced lean lunch meat) or your pantry (dried fruit, nuts) for quick and easy DIY salads. If you're packing lunch, keep the ingredients separate and toss them together in a larger container or bowl just before it's time to eat.

Try a bento-style lunch box. Think lunch boxes are only for kids? The bento trend has become popular for grown-ups too because the multi-compartment Japanese lunch boxes are so convenient and versatile. No need for many separate containers: Just throw in your favorite foods, close the lid and you're all set.

JEFFERSON RIVER FISHING CLOSURE LIFTED

The Jefferson River will reopen to fishing beginning at 12:01 a.m. on Wednesday, September 4, 2013, with improving stream flows and cooling temperatures.

The entire Jefferson River had been closed to fishing since August 24 because of low flows. Prior to that, the entire river was under a 2 p.m. to midnight closure because of high water temperatures. Both of these conditions stress and threaten wild trout.

According to the Jefferson River Drought Management Plan, closures on the Jefferson may be lifted when flows improve to above 300 cfs for seven consecutive days. That criterion has now been met and thermal conditions are expected to continue improving.

"This summer, the Jefferson River at Twin Bridges experienced its lowest flow since 1988; however, thanks to four irrigation canals par-
