Governor visits the University of Montana Western

Montana Governor Steve Bullock made a stop at the University of Montana Western as a part of his statewide "Back to School" tour of education institutions throughout the state.

While at Montana Western, the governor joined leaders in the university's teacher education, school of outreach and early childhood education programs. Bullock said it was important for him to make the stop in Dillon because half of the student body will go on to be educators, and he wanted to explore the university's unique block scheduling with the Experience One program.

Julie Bullard, director of the Early Childhood Education (ECE) program, walked Bullock through the details of the ECE program. Bullard explained how Curious Minds is a unique lab school that serves as the classroom for many online courses and a hands-on environment for on-campus students. At Curious Minds, students get to work with preschool-aged children in a learning environment that encourages both students and the children to learn new things in a very hands-on way. In addition, those who are taking online courses all over the state can observe how the school functions.

Laura Straus, UMW associate professor of education, stressed the importance of continuing to serve current teachers and provide them with a source of professional development courses. Straus also described how the university is taking a different approach with teacher candidates by teaching students how to document their successes with schoolchildren while in the classroom. Straus told Bullock Montana Western tries to find new ways to implement the latest education theories into its classrooms.

"Here at Montana Western, we are very proactive," said Straus. "Since we are a smaller school, we can be more nimble. When we decide to do something, we do it."

Straus also described the university as a unique rural education school that allows students to experience rural education settings and the unique learning techniques used in the small schools used in the surrounding areas.

"Our educational tradition here is very strong," said Straus.

As part of his visit, Bullock also visited a classroom that puts to use the experiential learning technique that is promoted by the Experience One program, in which a student takes one class for three hours a day for three weeks. Bullock visited students of Deb McCabe's education class and observed block scheduling firsthand.

McCabe encourages her students to change their way of thinking so that students learn to really adjust to different children's need when they enter the classroom setting.

"Kids have so many abilities, and it's important for us to figure out how we are going to meet their needs," said McCabe.

While sitting in the front of the classroom, the governor listened to the class of college students share why they are pursuing an education degree. Students then shared their ideas for improvements and their perceptions of the way education is changing. Bullock told the students it was important to hear their thoughts since they are tomorrow's educators.

"For me, public education is the great equalizer," Bullock told the students. "So don't give up... We need to work on valuing educators, and you are going to make a difference."

Governor Bullock to Attend Bannack State Park Re-Opening

Montana State Parks (stateparks.mt.gov) announced Friday that Bannack State Park, including the campgrounds, will re-open to the public on Monday, September 9 at 8am. This state park has been closed since July 17 due to a flash flood that damaged 80% of the park's 60 historic buildings and town site areas with rain, mud and hail.

Governor Steve Bullock will participate in the re-opening celebration and tour the historic town site along with Montana State Parks Administrator Chas Van Genderen and Department of Administration Director Sheila Hogan. 7th grade students from Dillon Middle School will be in attendance to tour and learn how to pan for gold.

What: Governor Bullock tours Bannack State Park town site guided by Park Manager Dale Carlson.

When: Monday, September 9 at 10:30am

Where: Bannack State Park 721 Bannack Road Dillon, MT (406) 834-3413

For directions or more information about Bannack State Park visit: <http://stateparks.mt.gov/bannack/>

The town site and its 60 core buildings have been cleaned and repaired by a property restoration company and are ready to re-open. Two historic buildings (Turner House and Assay Office) will remain closed due to structural damage that will be repaired in coming months.

Bannack State Park is a National Historic Landmark and Montana's First Territorial Capital. It is the site of Montana's first major gold discovery in 1862. Bannack became a state park in 1954. Today, visitors can enjoy walking the town site and learning about one of Montana's best preserved ghost towns, families can camp, picnic, bird watch and enjoy the historic surroundings.

In 2012, more than 32,900 people visited this state park, a 5% increase over the previous year. 'Bannack Days' is held every July and is typically the most attended special event in the state park system.

By Chuck Dishno

We all know or should know that throwing candy or anything else from a moving vehicle in the Labor Day Parade is dangerous to the children who, in their excitement, run out into the street trying to beat their peers in grabbing the best pieces. Certainly our Mayor Marty should have been aware of this and police chief, Paul Craft, should have been aware of the lurking dangers.Maybe it wasn't on the parade application but it certainly has been discussed in council chambers and most parade participants have been aware of this careless act.Shame on Mayor Marty for not taking the safety of the children in Dillon in this thoughtless act. And shame on Lynn Westad for trying to stick up for her boss. Also her letter to the editor in all caps is like saying "shove it."My name is Chuck Dishno and these are my observations and thoughts.Hitchin' Post

DILLON LAND ACQUISITION

The BLM Dillon field Office will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Sept 10 to celebrate the recent acquisition of three parcels of land totaling nearly 100 acres.

The parcels were part of the former Mantle Ranch and are located along the Big Hole River near the old Sodak Mill Site. The acquisition created a consolidation block of public land along the Big Hole River, achieving resource management objectives which include protecting wetlands and wildlife habitat, providing recreational opportunities, and securing public access.

In exchange, the BLM conveyed nearly 244 acres of up-land range along Highway 91 North that adjoins the Jim and Dave Hagenbarth's base ranch operation. This includes an isolated 40-acre tract situated on the Big Hole River which had limited public access.

For details and directions to the ribbon-cutting, call Angela Brown, BLM Realty Specialist at 683-8045.
