Ed Rose, 58

Ed Rose of Lima past away on Friday September 20th. The car he was driving went off the road 13 miles south of Lima, on a Forest Service road in the mountains.

Patrolman Joseph Wyant said that the driver was not wearing a seat belt and died from blunt-forced to the head and neck.

Although speed was not a factor, it is unknown if alcohol or drugs were involved.

Cross Country

The Dillon boys cross country placed sixth over the weekend at the Corvallis Invitational cross country meet. Dillon's Own Sage Schoonen was fourth overall in 16:07.

The Dillon girls placed fourth as a team, Beavers' Caleigh Buckmaster was top local finisher in 11th place at 21:04.

Why Duck Dynasty Viewers Flock

By Tom Purcell

Like millions of Americans, I've become a "Duck Dynasty" fan.

"Duck Dynasty," as you surely are aware, is an A&E reality show that presents the Robertson clan, the long-bearded owners and operators of Duck Commander in West Monroe, La. Duck Commander hand-makes duck calls.

The story is a rags-to-riches one.

Phil Robertson, the patriarch of the family, started his duck-call business some 25 years ago. The avid outdoorsman was dissatisfied with the duck calls that were then available, so he made his own.

He did about $8,000 in revenue his first year, but slowly built up the business over the next few decades, hiring a lot of relatives along the way.

His son, Willie, took over the company and has grown it to a $45 million annual business — one that has made the Robertson family mighty wealthy. They were wealthy before "Duck Dynasty" became a hit cable show that draws record-breaking numbers of viewers.

Many media critics have been speculating as to why the show is so popular — and some, such as Rolling Stone, say the show and the characters are nothing but a big con. As usual, so many in the media are getting it exactly wrong.

It's true that each episode is scripted and staged with fairly typical sitcom plots. But what is also true is that the Robertsons are totally authentic characters.

There are Phil and Kay's three bearded sons, who all work at Duck Commander, their wives and kids and, of course, Uncle Si, a gray-bearded Army veteran who is daggone colorful and funny.

These people are unapologetically religious. They believe that when you marry, you really do become one flesh. Their families are intact and functional, and the show celebrates these simple values.

The characters are politically incorrect and unapologetic about that, too. They happily go into the woods to shoot, skin and cook their dinner.

Unlike most sitcoms on TV these days, the fathers are not dribbling idiots. They are respected by their kids. And grandfather Phil is respected by his grandkids.

The characters are all self-deprecating and don't mind being the butt of the joke — because it is clear they are all in on the joke and having a grand time creating the show.

It is orderliness that draws us in — the orderliness that is missing in too many American homes that are broken up by divorce or headed by single parents. In the case of the Robertsons, order is made possible by their faith.

And nobody understands that better than Phil.

He explains in his autobiography that he was not a good man in his 20s. He quit teaching — he has a master's degree in education — and ran a bar. He frequently got drunk and into trouble and was not very nice to his wife and young kids.

But he eventually found his way to church and his Christian faith transformed him. He became a changed man and has since tried to live his life according to the Bible.

Media critics compare "Duck Dynasty" to typical sitcoms, but if there is any one show it should be compared to, it is "The Waltons," another fine show about a functional, intact family.

Much like "The Waltons," most "Duck Dynasty" episodes show the entire Robertson clan sitting around the dinner table and saying grace before they break bread together.

It is their togetherness that draws in viewers. We like the way they celebrate simple, traditional values with humor and self-deprecation. We like the way orderliness guides their lives and brings order to their families.

You have to be a cynic to miss the obvious reason so many viewers are tuning in. And most big-city media critics are too cynical to understand what "Duck Dynasty" is really about.

MONTANA WESTERN RODEO TEAM GEARS UP FOR HOME PERFORMANCE

The University of Montana Western Rodeo team is slated to host its annual rodeo at the Beaverhead County Fairgrounds Sept. 27-29.

The performance round on Friday begins at 5 p.m. The rodeo continues on Saturday with rodeo slack events begin at 9 a.m. Saturday evening marks Senior Night and the performance starts at 6 p.m. Fifteen seniors and their parents will be honored at the performance. The top ten short round is at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

King Cattle Company will provide the stock for the event. The timed cattle are provided by Dick Lyman, Charlie Hahnkamp and Megan Burns.

Danger Dave Whitmoyer from Helena will provide the entertainment, and Rooster Reynolds will announce. The bullfighter is Ryan Hamilton, who will be assisted by Monty Johnson and regional champion Newt Novich.

Over 250 contestants from ten colleges and universities will compete for points and a trip to the College National Finals Rodeo in June 2014.

The rodeo is free to the University of Montana Western faculty, staff and students with ID. Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for children ages 8-12 and free to children 8 years old and under.

Access and Services to be Limited at Crystal Park and Price Creek Campground

Dillon, Mont., Sept. 20, 2013 – The Pioneer Mountains Scenic Byway is undergoing road work to repair severe frost heaves in the Moose Park area. Beaverhead County has temporarily closed the Byway from the Grasshopper Overlook (Mile Maker 13.4) to the Mono Creek cattle guard (Mile Maker 20.4) which will close through access north to south. As a result of this work, services at both Price Creek Campground and Crystal Park will be limited for the remainder of the year. Water and garbage service will not be available, and fees will not be charged. Visitors are advised to bring their own potable water and to pack out all of their garbage.

The Byway will be open to public access on weekends, and from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. Mondays through Fridays while road repair work is occurring.

For additional information contact the Dillon Ranger District at (406) 683-3900.

Democrats Bolt.....What are they afraid of?
Submitted by Chuck Dishno

During the second portion of a House Oversight and Government Reform hearing about Benghazi Thursday on Capitol Hill, the majority of Democrats on the Committee left the room and refused to listen to the testimony of Patricia Smith and Charles Woods. Ms. Smith is the mother of Sean Smith, an information management officer killed in the 9/11 Benghazi attack. Charles Woods is the father of Navy SEAL Tyrone Woods, who was also killed.

The only Democrats who stayed were Ranking Member Elijah Cummings and Rep. Jackie Speier. Of the 17 Democrats there 15 bolted rather than hear the testimony. It is like spitting on their graves.

Fire Calls

The Dillon Volunteer Fire Dept. was called Saturday at 10:16pm to the Montana Pride Building, next to 5747 Highway 91 South, for a tractor on fire. The tractor was running a generator for power at a Wedding Reception and started on fire. We extinguished the fire. On Monday at 1:38pm we were called to 790 North Montana Street for a pile of weeds burning.
