Reopen the Vietnam Memorial for their Sake by M/Sgt Ray Bows

For the last several days the Vietnam Veterans Memorial has been closed because of political wrangling in Washington, D.C. However, if artist Lee Teter's magnificent and stirring painting entitled "Reflections" has any meaning and any validity, the souls of our 58,278 brothers and 8 sisters who died in Vietnam are confined within the black granite of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. They are there to touch us and console us when we touch their names in remembrance. They wait in eternal vigilance within its black granites reflective power, drawing their strength from buddies, friends, families and visitors to the National Mall, as they give us solace and strength in return.

For each soul who lingers at the memorial, a moment must be an eternity when their name is being touched, but like-wise when a name is being ignored and passed by for another's, a moment can also be a moment of eternity once the recognition and touch is gone. If you think this cannot be true, touch one of your living loved-ones, hold them for a moment and then let go of them, then imagine what it would be like to never know when you would get to hold them again. The touch of the Wall rings the same way and there is no denying it.

What must the 58,286 souls be going through, after already being forsaken once during the aftermath of the Vietnam War before the memorial was built? "Why have you abandoned us? We cannot know because our only contact with you is the sense of touch. The government has erected barriers that we can see through this black granite, but we do not know why, because our only contact with you is the sense of touch. We cannot hear words of explanation, because our only contact with you is the sense of touch. We are not privileged to news, because our only contact with you is the sense of touch.

We are incarcerated within this black granite to give you strength and to draw strength from you in a mutual agreement of healing, but our only contact with you is our sense of touch. We do not understand why you have abandoned us, and we cannot know until you return."

Regardless of any government internal strife, it is a travesty and a wrongdoing to allow the Vietnam Memorial to be a pawn in the process. It was bought and paid for by donations of families, friends and veterans. Let us insist that the memorial reopens and reopens properly - now!

CITIZENS FOR BALANCED USE URGES TESTER, BAUCUS TO DEMAND THAT SENATE HOLD VOTE ON FUNDING NATIONAL PARKS

Citizens for Balanced Use supports last week's U.S. House passage of funding for National Parks and is now urging the U.S. Senate to vote on the bill to re-open National Parks across the country and in Montana.

"CBU's intimate relationship with public land use and management has given us a good understanding of how the Federal government can cherry pick specific programs for political gain," said Kerry White, CBU Board Director. "While we're used to having public lands used as political leverage, we don't accept it and we hope and urge Senator Tester and Baucus to encourage a Senate vote on opening National Parks."

The House' passage of National Park funding is one of eight bills passed by the House to restore funding to essential programs during the federal government shutdown. Funding National Parks is now in the hands of the U.S. Senate where Senate Majority Leader, Harry Reid has previously refused to allow voting on essential service funding efforts.

"Like all public land in Montana, National Parks play a vital role in the economies of Montana towns," said White. "CBU supports measures that keep people in and on our public lands, and we support the efforts of Congressman Daines and other members of Congress to not let the failures of Washington creep in and harm our communities. Now we look to Senator Tester and Baucus to represent Montanans in the Senate."

Bookstore hosts author Steven Law

Western novelist Steven Law will be signing books at The bookstore on Wednesday, October 9th from 5-7

These books are hard to put down, they are filled with action, plot twists and unforgettable characters. He will be signing four books while visiting Dillon, In Yuma Gold a wanted man is never free, in El Paso Way you can either trust the law or take matters into your hands, Travel the rodeo circuit in True Father and in Old Blue the reader is taken on a cattle drive through the New Mexico Territory.

Law was raised on a farm in Iowa and writes novels, short stories and newspaper articles.

Steven Law and STEVEN ANDERSON LAW are pen names for Steven Anderson, under which he writes fiction and has written a weekly newspaper column, "Suburban Cowboy." He chose the pseudonym in honor of his grandmother, Dorothy Law Crawford, who read many stories to him as a child, and was a huge inspiration to him in education and in life. His grandmother died when he was in high school and using her name on some of his writings is like a blanket dedication for all that she gave to him.

He is the founder of ReadWest Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to increasing the awareness of Western literature.

Law obtained his bachelors degree from the University of Missouri-Kansas City and now lives in the Missouri Ozarks with his son, Tegan, a Siamese cat named Cowboy and Shih Tzu named Obi Wan Kenobe.

SEND THEM PACK'EN

704 S. Pacific Street
Dillon, Montana 59725
October 7, 2013

To the voters of Dillon:

Mike Klakken has the education, knowledge, expertise and experience to put the City of Dillon on track to running with an ear to the citizens and fiscal conservatism.

Because Mike has worked for private enterprise and currently owns a successful small business, he understands how to manage a budget. Mike knows that the enterprise funds are private money and are for managing the sewer and water services and paying employees of that department.

Mike has written and received grants, private and public. He has managed these same grant monies to fund necessary projects.

I believe that Mike listens to concerns of the public. In his business he must deal with complaints and concerns every day and then follow through. He could not have stayed in business for fourteen years without hearing and action on what he has heard.

The terms served as a councilman gave Mike the knowledge to keep the city government running smoothly with an ear to public concerns.

Mike's education proves that he has the perseverance to complete what he begins. A doctorate in physics takes hard work and lots of effort as well as being bright enough to complete the requirements.

It is for the reasons enumerated here that I am supporting Mike Klakken for Mayor. I urge you to do the same.

Respectfully,

Lynn Giles
