How Many Health Plans are 'Substandard'? Nearly All of Them.

By Phil Kerpen

Because of a regulation designed to make nearly every plan rapidly lose grandfather status, millions of Americans have received letters informing them their health plans have been canceled. Many of them are unable to even get through the first steps of Healthcare. gov to see what their options there are, and others who are able to see their options are finding they have to pay more and may lose their doctors.

It is therefore a stone-cold fact this famous Obama promise from his June 15, 2009 speech to the American Medical Association (and repeatedly constantly since) has been broken: "We will keep this promise to the American people: If you like your doctor, you will be able to keep your doctor, period. If you like your health care plan, you'll be able to keep your health care plan, period. No one will take it away, no matter what."

Now, as those plans are being taken away, the White House and its shifty, dishonest media apologists have decided to denigrate Americans for liking their plans.

Exhibit A is the New York Times, which claims Obama "clearly misspoke" (over 25 times?) when he said you could keep your plan. Their absurd headline? "Insurance Policies Not Worth Keeping." All those millions of Americans just didn't know any better.

Millions of Americans are being told their plans are "lousy" or "crummy" because they are indeed, in a hyper-literal sense of the word, "substandard."

That is, they fail to meet the new standard for so-called Essential Health Benefits required of all plans in the individual and small-group markets when they lose grandfather status. Among other things, plans must include "maternity and newborn care" and "pediatric services, including oral and vision care" — whether you have kids or not.

According to HealthPocket: "The data shows that there will be a near complete transformation of the individual and family health insurance market starting in 2014. Less than 2% of the existing health plans in the individual market today provide all the Essential Health Benefits required under the Affordable Care Act (ACA)."

Even the best of the best plans are being canceled in the individual market. Bob Laszewski, a top industry analyst, described his cancellation: "I have been in this business for 40 years. I know junk health insurance when I see it and I know 'Cadillac' health insurance when I see it. Right now I have 'Cadillac' health insurance... The new plan would have a deductible $500 higher than the one I now have and... costs 66 percent more than our current monthly premium."

Not in the individual market? Scott Conover did an extensive analysis on Forbes showing that there are also changes in the small-group market — where only five percent of plans offered pediatric dental check-ups — and the large-group market. He found that overall 129 million Americans will no longer have the health plan they had, including millions whose previous employer coverage will be outright dropped.

Gallblader cancer survivor Edie Littlefield Sundby has lost her plan that affordably covered all her cancer doctors and treatments. She wrote in the Wall Street Journal: "if I go with a health-exchange plan, I must choose between Stanford and UCSD. Stanford has kept me alive—but UCSD has provided emergency and local treatment support during wretched periods of this disease, and it is where my primary-care doctors are... Thanks to the law, I have been forced to give up a world-class health plan. The exchange would force me to give up a world-class physician."

The exchange plan wouldn't include her cancer doctors, but it would include maternity care and pediatric dental coverage and the rest of the now "standard" benefits — and that, according to Obama and the New York Times, makes her old "substandard" plan "not worth keeping."

Now that's lousy.

A Creed for Parents

Fear that their children will turn to drugs is the predominant worry of parents today, according to a widely known psychiatrist, Dr. Jack L. Tedrow, a member of the Utah Board of Health, recently outlined this 12- point creed for parents fearful of their children's getting onto drugs.

1. I will not habitually take pills or drink alcoholic beverages in front of my child, nor will I imply that such behavior is sophisticated or our way of life.
2. I will emphasize problem solving to my child all the way I can think of, rather than copping out with mind-altering chemicals--stimulants, sedatives and alcoholic beverages. I will set the example myself.
3. I will stress the excitement and adventure of living in the world of reality to my child so that fantasy and drug-induced illusion will never becomes a substitute for the real joys of living.
4. I will respect my child as a fellow human being and listen to him with honest interest and concern. And I will keep his confidence, giving him honest counsel to the best of my ability even if my own weaknesses are thus revealed.
5. I will see that my child's talents and abilities are developed, thus providing him with the rewarding experience of being original, creative and unique-- a person of worth and confidence.
6. I will give my child a chance to earn his way as young as possible so that he will learn to have pride in accomplishment and thereby, in himself.
7. I will discipline my child as only a loving parent can--not through moralizing, but by teaching him what is valued in our adult society and what is not.
8. I will teach my child to be patient, to learn to postpone some of life's pleasures until tomorrow and tomorrow's tomorrow. I will permit him to know pain, failure, frustration and disappointment, and that we can tolerate more of these things than we ordinarily suppose.
9. I will set an example to my child by obeying the law and in participating in acceptable movements to change such laws as I deem unfair or unjust.
10. I will not criticize, threaten, abuse or argue with my spouse in the presence of or within earshot of my child; thus I will give him the ultimate in security--that of family and home.
11. I will respect the opinions of his school teachers as to any developing delinquent tendencies and obtain professional help as early as possible, if indicated, for him and for ourselves as parents.
12. I will look to my child's spiritual development so that he will grow up to be a person of faith and hope-- not just a grownup man or woman, but a human capable of loving all mankind.

AMA Insight

No matter which side you are on.

The American Medical Association has weighed in on Obama's new health care package.

The Allergists were in favor of scratching it, but the Dermatologists advised not to make any rash moves.

The Gastroenterologists had sort of a gut feeling about it, but the Neurologists thought the Administration had a lot of nerve.

Meanwhile, Obstetricians felt certain everyone was laboring under a misconception, while the Ophthalmologists considered the idea shortsighted.

Pathologists yelled, "Over my dead body!" while the Pediatricians said, "Oh, grow up!"

The Psychiatrists thought the whole idea was madness, while the Radiologists could see right through it.

Surgeons decided to wash their hands of the whole thing and the Internists claimed it would indeed be a bitter pill to swallow.

The Plastic Surgeons opined that this proposal would "put a whole new face on the matter".

The Podiatrists thought it was a step forward, but the Urologists were pissed off at the whole idea.

Anesthesiologists thought the whole idea was a gas, and those lofty Cardiologists didn't have the heart to say no.

In the end, the Proctologists won out, leaving the entire decision up to the aholes in Washington.

All food will be donated to the Dillon Food Pantry in time for the Christmas Holiday Season. Race will begin at 9:30am on November 28th.

Strong Family Campaign

The purpose of this campaign is to generate funds to support programs, activities, scholarships and services for all members of our community regardless of age or ability to pay. Please help us reach our goal of $103,000 by December 31, 2013.
