Letter to the Editor

SVANTE REVISITED by Johannes Soyland, Ph.D. Dec. 7, 2013

Svante Arhenius (1859 to 1927) was the first scientist to predict that increases in the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere can lead to increases in the atmosphere's temperature. He predicted that a doubling of the relative amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere could lead to a temperature increase of perhaps 4 degrees C.

Dr. Arhenius was an outstanding scientist. He became a member of the Royal Swedish Academy of Science and a founding member of the Nobel Committee in 1901 and was the Rector of the Nobel Committee until his death. He was the first Swedish Chemist to receive the Nobel Prize in Chemistry. He became a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1910 and a foreign honorary member of the American Academy of Arts and Science in 1912. He was a very popular scientist but also had many enemies.

Unlike modern environmentalists, Arhenius felt that "global warming" would be a positive thing, greatly increasing the amount of arable land in the northern hemisphere, thereby helping to feed the growing population masses. Also unlike modern environmentalists, Arhenius recognized that heat absorbed by carbon dioxide, like all other elements or compounds, would be re-radiated outwardly. But, his greatest criticism, from his fellow scientist of the time, was that, like modern environmentalists, he failed to recognize that the increased heat would also re-radiate back out into space. Since the world is round, over 50% of the heat would be re-radiated into space and, since warmer air rises higher up into the atmosphere, even more of the heat would radiate into space. You may all remember the infamous "W" that the environmentalists sketched in the atmosphere implying that the energy would be trapped here on earth. The argument that energy from carbon dioxide would not radiate back into space is highly illogical. Energy radiating out from any object would naturally radiate in all directions.

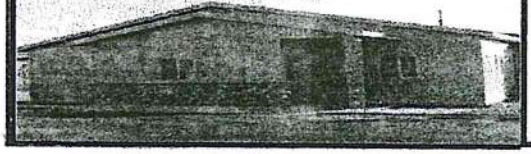

The contention that any object would retain the energy it had absorbed is also highly illogical. If that was the case, such an object would eventually burn up. Some 300 million years ago the earth went through a geological period called the "Carboniferous period" when the atmosphere, as it was first developing, contained mostly carbon dioxide and no oxygen. The oxygen was all tied up in either minerals or as carbon dioxide. But, nothing disastrous happened then and nothing will happen now. Back then plants started growing, the earth became very green and oxygen began appearing in the atmosphere. There is no logical reason why increasing carbon dioxide would have any other affect now than it did back then, 300 million years ago.

Arhenius did, however, recognize that carbon dioxide was not the only factor influencing the earths temperature. These also included variations in the earths orbit around the sun and, thereby it's distance from the sun and the total amount of energy received, as well as variations in solar activity that also affected the amount of energy radiated out towards the earth..

Since carbon dioxide would carry more heat, increased carbon dioxide would also increase the amount of re-radiation into space. As it got hotter, it would rise faster in the atmosphere and increase re-radiation. Increased carbon dioxide would also increase plant growth and transpiration, increasing the amount of water vapor rising up into the atmosphere and re-radiating.

The argument about rising sea levels also doesn't hold water, (pun intended). A lot of the ice on earth already floats on water so its melting would lower sea levels. Increased air temperature would also raise the relative humidity and thereby lower sea levels. There is no evidence that sea levels are actually rising. The Maldives are not sinking. Sea currents are taking sand from one side of the islands and depositing it on the other side. Land masses on earth have always been rising and falling as a result of tectonic activity so accurate measurements of sea levels are impossible.

We keep hearing all these wild prognostications like "All of the ice on Greenland has melted", it very definitely has not. Retreating glaciers is not a factor of global warming, it's the result of changes in snowfall during the winter months. It is still cold enough for glaciers to grow, if they just got enough snow and all glaciers are definitely not retreating.

Of course there are environmental problems that need to be solved but, at least in the West our industry has made gallant efforts to solve them. But, we must also remember that industrial pollution has been around for about a thousand years while environmental awareness has only been around for about 50 years. But, when you look at the environmentalists' favorite causes they are generally all based on bad science, half truths, outright lies and innuendos. The environmentalists appear to be totally inwilling to tests their theories with even the simplest of scientific tests.

CARBON DIOXIDE

I refer back to the argument about carbon dioxide above. There is no scientific reason why any "greenhouse gasses" would not re-radiate there absorbed energy back into space. When we recognize that there was a period in the earth's history when the atmosphere was made up of primarily carbon dioxide, the Carboniferous Period", and nothing serious happened then, we can rest assured that nothing serious will happen now. It is virtually impossible for the atmosphere to reach the same levels of carbon dioxide as it had during the Carboniferous Period.

TREES

Mankind is currently enthralled with the concept of planting trees to remove carbon dioxide and save the earth. If you read Popular Science you may have seen articles, written by some of our supposed brightest scientific thinkers, where they propose huge cities with "vertical forests" growing up the sides of the buildings and huge floating trees, all with the goal of converting carbon dioxide to oxygen and water. Yet when you consider the entire life span of a tree, it doesn't convert a single gram of carbon dioxide to oxygen. When it's young and growing it produces oxygen but when it dies it begins to rot and produce carbon dioxide again. The only way to stop this would be to truncate the life span by encasing all the produced wood in plastic or blasting it into space. But, that would also eventually remove all the water, or hydrogen and oxygen, from the earth too

LEAVING EARTH TO SAVE IT

None of their other ideas for saving the earth make any economic sense at all, assuming they're even technically feasible, which they undoubtedly are not.

How would anyone like to spend a few thousand years riding in a spaceship, to go populate a planet they have never seen, on the other side of the universe, with no chance of ever coming home.

We are stuck here, until either the sun explodes or it spins into our black hole, and we just need to make the best possible use of what we have; and, be grateful that a more intelligent being than man kind is in charge.

DRIFT GALLERY ANGEL TREE

It is that time of year again for everyone to remember the ANGEL TREE at the Drift Gallery. The Angel Tree isn't a normal giving tree this tree is what we call a tree of need. Every name on the tree is asking for things that the children are needy. These little angels are asking for coats, clothing, bedding and hats, gloves ect. This maybe the only time of the year that these children receive new clothing or have the chance to receive bedding. The tags on the tree give the information, you pick the angel that interest you check the angel out and bring the gift back in. The Drift is located on 12 South Idaho (between Patagonia and the Dillon Liquor Store). For more information call Lily at 683-3456. Come in and help a child believe. We have a record number of kids this year.

MONTANA KIWANIS GOVERNOR IS THE FEATURED SPEAKER AT DILLON KIWANIS

Mike Miller, Governor of the Montana District of Kiwanis International, will be the featured speaker at the Wednesday, Dec. 18 meeting of the Dillon Kiwanis. The Kiwanis meet every Wednesday at 12 p.m. at the Dillon Elks Club in downtown Dillon.

Thank You

This is a note of sincere appreciation to all of you who have helped your neighbors this past year through the work of the Dillon Wood Bank. With both individual and corporate support we have been able to upgrade out delivery equipment, allowing over 300 cords of fuel for heating and cooking to be shared out with 103 families. Along with generous contributions of wood, we've also been given donations to pass along to folks that have filled specific needs in those homes. We've been gratified that so many of our clients have brought their own labor to this cause. One of the ongoing needs is for unused chain saws lying around in garages; we repair them and give them to people who are then able to cut their own wood. Please call Harry Neeley at 596-3690 to put these tools back to work. We consider ourselves privileged to have a hand in helping where it's needed. Thank you .

FIRE CALLS

The Dillon Volunteer Fire Department was called on Monday at 6:13 pm to sparks coming from a chimney at 5200 Blacktail Road.

On Tuesday at 11:45 am they were called to a house fire at 1902 Browns Bridge Road. The Melrose Volunteer Fire Department responded and arrived first and had the fire contained to the kitchen. The fire started after a pan was left on the stove.

CHRISTMAS WISHES

To all of my friends and all the people I have meant over the years, I am reminded of Just how many of our brothers, sisters, and other family members who are not at home for this Christmas. I look back to Christmas 1961 and for a while thought that I was never to see another Christmas. Time has passed and in July 1962, I was able to have my Christmas.

I look now to hope that for those who are not with us now, We will hold Christmas trees and other celebrations open for the return of each of our presently missing from home family members. There are and were many others who may have spent more than one Christmas away from their families.

Sincerely May All have a very Merry Christmas and a most wonderful New Year!

George Fryett
