RUMORS ON THE STREET

By: MJ

People on the street speaking out about what is happening at the city.

1. There is a lack of integrity with the council. I will not say anything more except I did not vote for Mayor Klakken however if I get another opportunity to vote for him I will. He shows he has integrity and wants to follow the law.
2. State Statutes and Charter of Dillon defines clearly the duties of the council and the mayor. Let's just follow the laws and move on.
3. Mayor Klakken is to smart and needs to back down.
4. The council and mayor need to get on with the operation of city government. The council is the policy determining body. Why are they spending time passing resolutions that the Charter and State laws already delimit?
5. Mayor Klakken, as I understand has already said he will have nothing to say about the Breneke or Warner law suits. My question is: how much money will the city of Dillon collect if they win the law suit? How much will it cost the city to prosecute?
6. How can (7) council person sign a letter and not have a meeting. Do they think the people are complete idiots?

THANK YOU

Thanks to the Beaverhead Sno riders and all who made last Saturday the best snowmobile ride every. It was a complete surprise. Every thing was perfect. The snow, the weather, etc. Love you all. All Trafelet - Beaverhead Sno Rider

MONTANA UNIVERSITY SYSTEM REPORTS SIGNIFICANT INCREASE IN UMW ENROLLMENT

University of Montana Western enrollments have increased 44.3 percent over the past ten years, according to a Montana University System report released at last week's Board of Regents meeting in Great Falls.

UMW Chancellor Richard Storey said the growth represents the highest among Montana four-year institutions. Montana Tech was second with an increase of 19.6 percent.

The report details annualized full-time equivalent student enrollments over each fiscal year. In 2003, Montana Western reported an enrollment of 997. That number has grown to 1,439 students in 2013, or a 44.3 percent increase.

Most recently UMW saw a 5.3 percent increase in enrollment for 2013 over the previous year.

UMW's enrollment increase from 2012 to 2013 is the highest among four-year Montana University System schools. Montana State University follows with a 4.6 percent increase in enrollment.

"Our success is a team effort between faculty, staff and administration. We anticipate that trend will continue as more and more prospective students discover Experience One, our unique scheduling system where students take a single class at a time," Chancellor Storey said.

Montana Western is the only four-year public university in the U.S. offering Experience One, a block scheduling program, where a student takes one class at a time, for three hours a day, for about three weeks before moving onto the next course.

MEETING SET FOR MARCH 13 TO DISCUSS 2014 MOUNTAIN LION SEASON

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks will host a public meeting next week to discuss mountain lion management and tentative quotas for the 2014 mountain lion hunting season in Region 3. The meeting is set for Thursday, March 13 at 7 p.m. at the Methodist Church Annex (114 E. Cedar) in Three Forks.

FWP staff will present current mountain lion management and harvest data. In addition, Region 2 Wildlife Manager Mike Thompson and Dr. Kelly Proffitt will be on hand to talk about the Bitterroot Elk Research Project and management implications. Representatives from the Montana State Houndsmen Association will also be present.

FWP will use the public input from the meeting to develop tentative quota recommendations that will be presented to the Fish & Wildlife Commission at its April 10 meeting. The Commission will finalize mountain lion quotas at its June 12 meeting.

CITIZENS FOR BALANCED USE RELEASES STATEMENT ON RESEARCH VALIDATING NEGATIVE IMPACT OF WOLVES ON CATTLE AND PRODUCERS

A recent study from Oregon State University found that cattle with wolf attack experience show higher signs of stress and abnormal behavior, similar to the human condition Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). The condition in cows was found to cause lower pregnancy rates, fewer- lighter calves and a decreased appetite all of which create a loss to the producer. Citizens for Balanced Use released the following statement in support of livestock producers.

"We know that wolves are an undeniable threat to livestock and the health of our agriculture economy. While the study from Oregon State University really provides evidence of what most producers already know, this study is important as we continue to advocate for more local predator control. Too often, science is manipulated by one faction or another, but in this case, the researchers at OSU have given the ranching community a reassuring piece of evidence that can be used to prove that wolves have a negative impact on the well-being of livestock and the economies that depend on them.

Similarly, a University of Montana study quantified the economic impact of weight loss after a confirmed wolf kill for an average ranch consisting of 264 head of calves. Ranches that experienced a confirmed cattle depredation by wolves had a negative and statistically significant impact of approximately 22 pounds on the average calf weight across their herd. This average weight loss equates to a $6,679 loss at sale for an affected ranch.

Citizens for Balanced Use will continue to stand by the side of our livestock producers. We know that the ranchers, farmers, sheepherders and outdoorsman in our region have the better solutions to wildlife management, and our goal is to defend and promote these solutions. In instances where common-sense management can be applied, CBU is actively engaged in the processes that will bring better management of wolves and our resources."

The Oregon State University study was funded by the Oregon Beef Council and published in the Journal of Animal Science and was co-authored by Cooke and Bohnert. The University of Montana study was published in the Journal of Agricultural Economics authored by Derek Kellenberg, Mark Hebblewhite, Joseph Ramler and Carolyn Sime.

Letter to the Editor

"The legitimate object of government, is to do for a community of people, whatever they need to have done, but cannot do, at all, or cannot do, so well, for themselves – in their separate and individual capacities." This quote is from Lincoln, the first president representing the Republican Party. Lincoln goes on to say that he considers public schools, infrastructure and the machinery of government to fit into this category.

If we compare Lincoln's words to the purity standards implied in the recently released Montana Legislator's voting record hit piece, concocted by former legislator Roger Koopman, we would have to conclude that Lincoln was an 'undocumented Democrat' and that he should have been 'purged' from the Republican Party.

Somewhere along the way extremists have anointed themselves the arbiters of all things Republican. The failed leadership team of Wittich and Priest, along with their mouthpieces Essman and Walker, illustrated their ten year plan to purge the party in a series of leaked emails. Other extremists have proposed candidate 'purity tests' further limiting the electorate's choice in elections, often recruiting Libertarians to run as Republicans to further drive their agenda. Extremists engage in this duplicitous behavior because they recognize it's their best chance for a successful coup.

I have been active in Republican politics in five decades. In the most recent decade, the extremists have begun to pursue a hyper-partisan policy of divisiveness while formally rejecting the benefits of statesmanship and compromise. We now risk becoming a fringe party, misaligned with the needs of the electorate and incapable of sustaining a governing majority.

Extremists work to have us believe the Libertarian fallacy that all government is evil. In their words the only test to be used when judging a bill is, "Does this bill increase or decrease the presence of government?" A question like, "Does state government have a role in ensuring the availability of rural healthcare?" never enters their minds.

The Republican Party I began with would never gut Montana services so brutally that classrooms are crowded, schools are shuttered, roads aren't paved, predators walk the streets, rural healthcare disappears, and infrastructure collapses. Extremists seem willing to do so. They just avoid revealing their plans to the people. Extremists are stealing the Republican brand, moving Montana toward DC gridlock and chaos.

Our party's shift to the extremes is being accelerated by out of state Dark Money. Dark Money is an organized, dangerous enemy that spends millions polishing their message to maximize voter appeal. Sound bites such as 'smaller government' or 'more freedom' are proven favorites. Lost in the allure of the sound bite is the responsibility of detailing real solutions to real problems.

The Republican Party cannot return to greatness in Montana by falling for this extremist dogma. It is not proper or wise for Republicans to simply denigrate and disparage. Re-aligning ourselves with the solutions approach of President Lincoln is the first real step in winning back our brand. The Republican brand I support and respect.

Respectfully;

Representative Jesse O'Hara
