New Study Seeks Cost-Effective Estimate of Montana Wolves

Researchers from Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks and the University of Montana released preliminary results today of a new technique for estimating wolf numbers in Montana.

The study was developed to produce a less expensive and more accurate population assessment that accounts for wolves not actually verified in the state's annual wolf count.

Statewide wolf population estimates were derived for the years 2007 through 2012 via a mix of rigorous statistical evaluations; wolf observations reported by recreational hunters during the annual hunter-harvest surveys; and Montana's annual wolf counts.

Results generally estimate a Montana wolf population 25-35 percent higher than the verified minimum counts submitted over the six-year period.

The study's results are contained in FWP's federally required annual wolf report available online at fwp.mt.gov. That report shows Montana's 2013 minimum wolf count at 627, essentially the same as the past two years. The minimum wolf count is the number of wolves actually verified by FWP wolf specialists.

"The study's primary objective was to find a less expensive approach to wolf monitoring that would yield statistically reliable estimates of the number of wolves and packs in Montana," said Justin Gude, FWP's, chief of research for the wildlife division in Helena.

The typical method used to document the state's wolf population focuses on ground and aerial track counts, visual observations, den and rendezvous confirmation and radio collaring to count individual wolves as required by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. The verified count is used to fulfill Montana's obligation to submit an annual wolf population report to federal authorities to ensure wolves are being properly managed above standards that could trigger relisting as an endangered species. Those counts must continue through Dec. 31, 2016.

"This new approach is not only good science," Gude said, "it's a practical way for Montana to obtain a more accurate range of wolf numbers that likely inhabit the state."

From 2007 through 2012, FWP and UM's Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit directed a team of 11 researchers to determine the number of gray wolves in Montana by estimating the: (1) areas occupied by wolves in packs; (2) number of wolf packs by dividing the occupied area by average territory size; and (3) numbers of wolves by multiplying the number of estimated packs by average annual pack size.

For instance, population modeling for Montana's wolves in 2012—where actual counts verified a minimum of 625 wolves and 147 packs—predicted that 804 wolves and 165 packs inhabited the state. Similar estimates are not yet avail-

Gude cautions, however, that future statistically accurate estimates will need to incorporate wolf harvest locations and how the harvest of wolves by hunters and trappers influences where wolves choose to live, their territories, and pack sizes.

"Data on each of these aspects of wolf population size will give us a very solid assessment of the effects of harvest on wolf populations in Montana," Gude said.

By adding additional harvest information, Gude said specific predictions of the effects of different seasons or harvest quotas on wolf populations could provide information vital to establishing successful wolf hunting and trapping seasons in coming years.

"Perhaps the best future use of these statistical methods won't necessarily only be for monitoring and keeping tabs on wolf population numbers, but to better inform the complicated decisions that accompany the public harvest and management of wolves," Gude said.

MONTANA WESTERN HOSTS JOHN N. MACLEAN

The University of Montana hosts well-known author John N. Maclean Thursday, April 24.

To wrap up this year's "Dances With Words" visiting author series, Maclean will present "Old Men and Fire Stories."

Maclean is an award-winning writer whose illustrious career has been spent authoring works based on wildfires. The son of "A River Runs Through It" author Norman Maclean, he left his job of 30 years as a reporter and editor at the Chicago Tribune in 1995 to write and research "Fire on the Mountain." The book covers the South Canyon fire on Colorado's Storm King Mountain that killed 14 firefighters and was published in 1999. The book won the Mountains and Plains Booksellers Association's best nonfiction title that year.

Maclean has written three more books on fatal wildfires and has been nominated for several Pulitzer Prizes. His latest book, "The Esperanza Fire," was published in 2013.

The event will take place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 24, in the Great Room, which is in the Swysgood Technology Center on the Montana Western Campus. The event is free and open to the public.

Private Land/Public Wildlife Council to Meet in Billings

The Private Land/Public Wildlife Council will meet April 23-24 in Billings at the Billings Hotel and Convention Center, 1223 Muldowney Lane.

At the meeting the council will discuss Montana's Block Management program, hear about work accomplished by the License Advisory Committee, and begin evaluating options and possible preliminary recommendations, based upon work accomplished since the March meeting.

Each of the 18 members of the governor-appointed council is interested in issues related to hunters, anglers, landowners, and outfitters, including but not limited to Montana's hunting and fishing access enhancement programs, landowner-hunter relations, outfitting industry issues, and other matters related to private lands and public wildlife.

Meeting times are 8 a.m.-4:45 p.m. on Wednesday, April 23, and 8 a.m.-noon on Thursday, April 24. The public is invited to observe council proceedings. Designated times for public comment are set for 4:30 p.m. on April 23 and 11:30 a.m. on April 24.

For more information about the meeting and the PL/PW Council, visit the FWP website at fwp.mt.gov then click "PL/PW Council"; or contact Alan Charles, FWP Coordinator of Landowner/Sportsman Relations, at 406-444-3798, or by email at acharles@mt.gov.

NEW MEAL PROVIDER NEEDED FOR LOCAL HOMEBOUND SENIORS

Beaverhead Allied Senior Services, (BASS), oversees the Home Delivered Meals Program for Dillon. The Home Delivered Meals Program provides a daily meal to homebound seniors who greatly rely on this program for their daily nutritional needs. As of April 30, 2014 a new provider must be found to prepare the meals for this program. BASS is soliciting bids from local organizations who would be willing to cook and package meals to be picked up and delivered to homebound seniors in Dillon. There are currently nine participants in the program, but here has been as many as 30 people receiving these meals in recent years.

A meal must provide at least 33 1/3% of the recommended dietary allowance and each meal should contain protein, vegetables, fruit, grains and dairy. General guidelines for a meal would include the equivalent to a 3 ounce portion of meat, fish, poultry or eggs; 1/2 cup of cooked, dried or raw vegetables; a medium fresh fruit; calcium equal to 8 ounces of milk and whole grains and starches at least two times per week. Meals must contain 50 calories or less of fat and desserts may be provided to subsidize the calorie requirements. One meal per day is provided Monday through Friday to program participants and a contracted delivery person picks up and delivers the meals.

If your organization would be willing and able to provide these meals BASS asks that you submit a short proposal detailing your ability to produce a daily meal as described above, the kind of variety that would be available and an estimated cost to produce each meal.
Proposals must be submitted by 5:00 p.m., Friday, April 18th and can be mailed to BASS at P.O. Box 1422, Dillon, MT 59725 or dropped off at the Dillon City Office, 25 North Idaho Street. Organizations must be able to begin services by May 1, 2014.

BASS thanks you for your consideration and willingness to help us to continue to provide this vital service to the homebound seniors of Dillon.

BLOOD DRIVE

A Dillon community blood drive will be held on Tuesday, April 22, 2014 from 1:00 to 6:00 PM at the Elks Lodge (27 East Center Street). This drive is facilitated by United Blood Services and sponsored by the Presbyterian Church. Appointments can be made by calling 683-3696, or log on to www.unitedbloodservices.org and use the sponsor code "dillon".

There is no substitute for blood. It cannot be manufactured. It is the "gift of life" that only human beings can give to one another.

To donate blood, volunteers must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in good health. A donor must not have donated blood within the last eight weeks.

Please bring your United Blood Services Donor card or photo identification. Walk-ins are welcome, but those having appointments receive priority.

Spring into action, donate blood, and save a life!
