Montana Western basketball signs Columbia Falls all-state player

The University of Montana Western men's basketball coach, Steve Keller, has announced the signing of another new Bulldog. Coach Keller's UMW basketball program has signed Columbia Falls, Mont. senior Jared Trinastich.

Trinastich is a 6' 5" 215 pound forward from Columbia Falls

High School. During his senior year he averaged 13 points and grabbed nine rebounds a game for the Wildcats. He shot 78 percent from the free throw line and had 33 blocks on the defensive end. Following Jared's senior season he was selected as the 2014 Montana Class A State Tournament MVP and was selected to the HIT Tournament Team. In addition to those honors he was a first team all-state and all-conference performer following his senior season. He was a two time all-state and all-conference selection as he earned those honors following his junior year as well. Jared put his athleticism on display on the football field as well. As a senior he was selected to the 2014 Shrine Game as a member of the West Team, was selected as the All-State quarterback, and earned first team all-conference honors. He received second team all-conference honors following his junior year.

"We are very excited that Jared Trinastich from Columbia Falls has decided to join our basketball program at Montana Western," said Coach Keller. "Jared will be a perfect four man in our league. He can step out and shoot the three and he is capable of scoring with his back to the basket. Jared comes from one of the best programs in the state and has learned from one of the best coaches in the state in Bulldog alum Cary Finberg. Jared led his team to the state title this past season." Jared plans to study health and human performance while attending Montana Western. He is the son of Richard and Shannon Trinastich.

Real Voter Fraud is Curbing the Right to Vote

By Dick Polman

Everett Dirksen and his fellow moderate Republicans (a now virtually extinct species) transcended partisanship in 1964 and supplied the key votes to pass the historic Civil Rights Act. Now flash forward 50 years. Can you imagine how today's Republicans would respond if a major civil rights bill was on the table?

Actually there's no need to speculate about that, because we already know the answer. There is indeed such a bill on the table - the Voting Rights Amendment Act of 2014 - but, all too predictably, the congressional GOP's reaction has been colder than a meat locker.

This sorry saga began last June, when the five Republican appointees on the U.S. Supreme Court shredded the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The VRA, also enacted with huge support from moderate Republicans, empowered the Justice Department to fight minority vote suppression in nine states, and in parts of six others. (Those states were singled out for their longstanding discriminatory behavior). The VRA was reauthorized by Congress four times - in 1970, 1975, 1982, and 2006 - always with huge support from Republican members.

But the five Republican justices gutted the law's key enforcement powers. Why? Because John Roberts decreed (in one of the most hilarious lines of 2013) that racial disenfranchisement "is no longer the problem it once was." Clearly, that guy needs to get out more.

However, Roberts tossed an olive branch to Congress. He invited the lawmakers to revise and update the law, to maybe make it possible for the Justice Department to stop vote suppression without picking on those 15 states. I thought that was a real howler, since Congress is so dysfunctional, anything more complicated than a Boy Scout resolution strains its collective cognition.

Nevertheless, three months ago, Republican congressman Jim Sensenbrenner of Wisconsin announced that he was co-sponsoring a House bill to save the VRA. He called the act "one of the most important pieces of civil rights legislation ever passed and is vital to our commitment to never again permit racial prejudices in our electoral process."

Under his fixes, any state committing five election discrimination violations over a 15-year span would be subject to Justice Department supervision. Only four states with persistent discriminatory behavior - Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi - would still be subject to ongoing Justice scrutiny. And most voter-ID schemes would be exempt from Justice scrutiny, a big sop to conservatives.

Would you care to guess how many Republican leaders have endorsed his bill, and many House hearings have been held on his bill?

None.

The deafening silence tells us all we need to know about today's Republican party. Sensenbrenner would've had plenty of company back in the '60s heyday of moderates like Dirksen; heck, he had plenty of company in 2006 when the VRA was reauthorized by a Republican House, 390-33. But the GOP has lurched so far rightward in the last eight years that '06 seems as distant as the era of rotary phones.

And while today's House GOP leaves the VRA gutted, 8 of the 15 states formerly under Justice supervision have predictably rushed to enact vote suppression schemes - curbing early voting and Sunday voting (both of which are popular among minorities), ending election day registration, all the usual stuff. One month after John Roberts decreed that racism was over, Republicans in North Carolina ended same-day registration, cut early voting by a week, required photo ID, and killed a program that signed up high school kids to vote when they turned 18.

Jim Sensenbrenner, virtually alone in his House party, says that we need to restore the VRA's protections and "ensure that every citizen has an equal opportunity to participate in our democracy." Good luck, pal. How tragic it is that the congressional Republicans who made history 50 years ago have been so betrayed by their heirs.

New Book Signing Friday, May 9, 3:00 - 6:00 at Wildwood Floral

Out of the beastly trenches of parenthood comes a book so shallow, so immature, so practically worthless you'd wonder why nobody wrote it before. Written by Dillon's own Joe Barnhart, Parenting Made Disgustingly Easy: A practically worthless guide for raising little people is a must-read if you've ever seen, heard of, rented, or actually owned a kid. It's loaded with the myopic insight you expect from a male-type person who can barely remember what he ate yesterday, let alone how he raised three sons. Deep in the book's bowels are a moat, fusion reactor, Pavlov and dog, Curley the Rat, and an imploding quark. As a hidden benefit, the book doubles as a coaster on coffee tables, pickup truck hoods, or practically anywhere a cold beer might get placed. Enjoy! Only $9.99. Perfect for Mother's or Father's Day.

Lura the Knitter...My Mom's Answer to Rosie the Riveter...

By Chuck Dishno

When World War Two started in December, 1941 most young men were either drafted or enlisted in the various branches of the military. My two brothers, Frank and Bud were no exception. I was only 6 years old at the time but remember seeing them get on a troop train in Klamath Falls. I thought I might never see them again.

Because of the draft, the work force all across the U.S. was greatly depleted. Auto manufacturers were converting their plants to make airplanes, tanks and other necessary things for the defense of our country.

To fill the vacancies left by men, many women went to work for defense. This was brought to their attention by an article in Life Magazine titled "Rosie the Riveter". It pictured a young secretary handling a large riveting gun in an aircraft plant. Needless to say, women all over the country volunteered to fill the vacancies.

In my home town, Bly Oregon, population about 400, there wasn't much manufacturing but a group of ladies got together with the American Red Cross and volunteered to knit wool items for the soldiers. This was great with the Red Cross and before long a huge box of Khaki yarn arrived with patterns for gloves, socks, ski type masks and scarves.

The ladies were excited to be able to do something for the war effort and several times a week they would get together and have a knitting party. Sometimes I think they did more gossiping than knitting but my Mom, Lura Dishno was the exception.

Mom had always done things fast and her manual dexterity was fantastic. The other ladies would just sit and watch her needles fly and click. It wasn't long before Mom decided to take some yarn home to knit in her spare time, not that she had that much time but she never let a second go to waste.

After dinner, my Pop would sit and listen to the war news then want to play cribbage with Mom. Mom would oblige him but would get board waiting for him to make a play and would pick up her knitting to fill in the wasted seconds. Pop didn't mind this too much as he usually lost anyway. After a few hands he would get up and go downtown to the pool hall and watch the card games being played and discuss the war. When he came home he would tell Mom about the games and describe every play while she knitted away.

The word soon got out that she knitted about 3 times faster than the rest of the ladies and soon the Red Cross sent Mom her own box of khaki yarn. Mom was delighted and really put on a burst of speed. As soon as she finished one box of yarn she would fill it with the knitted items and call for a pick-up. At one time, the Klamath Falls newspaper did an article about the lady in Bly who was doing her part for the war effort.

Naturally there was quite a bit of yarn scraps left that Mom put to good use. She would tie all the ends of the yarn together and use one or more of the patterns to make gloves, socks and face-masks for me. I used them for years after the war.

When my brothers came home on furlough and saw what Mom was doing they said that they were issued some gloves and socks too. I just hope they got the ones that were lovingly made by "Lura the Knitter" in the little town of Bly, Oregon.

Mom lived to be 95 years old and never slowed down. She made afghans right up to the time she passed away. It was getting a little hard for her to see by then so Roz would finish the edges for her.

Mom now resides in Heaven and I hope she gets to meet up with "Rosie the Riveter" and establish bragging rights for her effort.

I am certain there are soldiers or sailors whose lives were changed by the rivets and yarn.

I love you, Mom!

"Y" NEWS AND UPDATES

Fun in the Sun Day Camp

Summer Camp is for children entering K-6th grade for the 2014-15 school year. Camp runs from 7:45am-5:30pm, Monday-Friday beginning June 2 and ending August 22. The campers will explore a new theme each week and will take a field trip every Friday. Call for more details!

Spring Programs

Stop by the "Y" TODAY and get your family signed up for our spring group exercise programs and aquatic activities. PiYo (T,TH - 6:00am), TabataPower (M,W - 5:30pm), Tabata Power (T,Th - 5:30), Biker Blast and Yoga (see front desk for days and times).

After School Series Adventures

The After School Series provides participants with in depth programming while allowing parents more flexibility. Children will engage in healthy activities, crafts, sports, music, and much more. Children ride bus #9 to the "Y", have a snack, and then take part in the activities offered for that week. Camp ends at 5:30 each day and is offered the entire school year.

Next in the After School Series, (May 12th- May 16th), "Team Sports". The grass is turning green and it is the perfect time to play some team games like whiffle ball, kick ball, and more.

Little Kickers

This soccer league is designed for 4 and 5 year olds. Children will learn the basics of soccer in a less competitive environment that emphasizes having fun. Be sure you stop by the "Y" on Saturdays and check out the fun.

May Membership Special

Join the "Y" during the month of May and receive these membership specials. Single 3 month membership for $100.00 or a family membership for just $150.00. If you wish to continue at the end of 3 months, enrollment fees will be waived and regular monthly dues will apply.

Strong Family Campaign

The purpose of this campaign is to generate funds to support programs, activities, scholarships and services for all members of our community regardless of age or ability to pay. We will be kicking off our 2014 Campaign in May. Thanks for your continued support of the YMCA!

The Southwestern Montana Family YMCA is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization; therefore your donation may qualify as a tax-deductible donation.
