Zombified

Raging Moderate by Will Durst

You see them staggering down our streets, heads bowed as if in prayer, making the occasional grunting noise. Mindless drooling de-animated human husks walking blindly into fountains, crosswalks and lamp posts. Wake up people. We are in the middle of a science fiction movie here. Welcome to the Invasion of the Phone Zombies.

Yes, the Zombie Apocalypse has materialized and we are it. Everywhere you look you find the deathlike trance-frozen faces of we necromantic slaves with twitching fingers, spending endless empty hours mesmerized by our tiny screens. An entire society that can't remember its own phone number, much less that of any significant other. Of course, compared to our magical phones, there are no significant others.

Our smart phones are being manipulated by some very dumb people. Sure, amazing things can be accomplished: check the weather patterns in Outer Mongolia. Translate French past participles into Farsi. Order a chess set made out of imitation crab meat in the shape of the characters from 12 Years a Slave and have it delivered to our house before getting back from work. But in the meantime, we are developing the attention span of high-speed lint. And the personalities.

The contagion has spread everywhere. Stall zombies in public rest rooms that hog the enclosed sanctum to play a quick round of Fruit Ninja. Or two. Nightlife zombies who ignore the jokes onstage so they can respond with multiple LOLs on their electronic leash. Tangentially ambulatory zombies who get into their car but refuse to leave parking spots until checking in with High Command. Vacation zombies who spend thousands of dollars to stare at their phones in distant exotic lands.

And we zombies have proved desperate to swell our ranks. Zombifying others via slide presentations of cute cats cavorting. Even attempting to recruit potential zombie converts through such subhuman treatment as incessant shame and humiliation. "Seriously. That's your phone? Who made it: Daewoo? Is that the fabled rotary cell phone? Must be neat to have Teddy Roosevelt on your speed dial. Bet your roaming charges are huge. Play much 'snake' lately?"

While our forefingers develop biceps and our thumbs evolve to the size of zucchini, society continues its deep deterioration. Groups of friends who have lost the will to converse, huddling together solely for warmth and light. Drivers staring into their laps, their faces reflecting an eerie glow. Entire families walking past each other hypnotized by their devices, going days without engaging in any major argument.

Dealing with the chronically anesthetized is exhausting. Who hasn't tired of politely turning after being addressed only to find it's some zombie in a suit on a Bluetooth talking to himself? But the worst are the suited Bluetoothed elevator zombies. Shut your piehole dirtwipe. Nobody here cares to know how many units need to be transferred to Topeka by Wednesday; we would pay good money to see some Topeka stuffed up your unit today.

In order to contain this pandemic, the CDC should issue a directive that encourages the unzombified to punch Bluetoothed elevator zombies right in their ear. Hard. Multiple times. And when the stupefied ones wake from their narcoleptic slumber and turn with confused expressions, inform them that it was all in the interest of the greater good. A blow for the sake of civilization itself.

As a community resource, the Beaverhead Chamber's Quarterly events calendar for the summer is now online at www.BeverheadChamber.org. In addition to the Quarterly events calendar, the Chamber also distributes its "Weekly What's-Happening" e-mail that includes a week's worth of county-wide events. This includes service organization meetings, fundraisers and special events. The "Weekly What's-Happening" is open to the public and PSA's and notifications are welcome. Deadline for public submissions is each Friday by 3:00 p.m. Send submissions to info@beaverheadchamber.org or call 406-683-5511.

Letter to the Editor

If you've turned on the news or opened the paper recently, you've heard of the deepening and disturbing extent of the VA health system failure under the Obama administration. Men and women who have bravely served their country come home expecting to receive the care they were promised and are instead greeted with unacceptable bureaucracy and indefinite waiting periods. This administration is out of both time and excuses for the lack of oversight and widespread abuse that plague the services our men and women have earned.

This week, I proposed a new independent, bipartisan commission to review the VA and provide an action plan to Congress for how this nation can fully live up to the promises made to those who sacrificed for our country. The Commission for Care would conduct a comprehensive review of our VA facilities and provide in-depth recommendations to Congress and the President for immediate action and legislation needed to address the failings of the VA.

The commission would be made up of representatives from Veterans Service Organizations, major medical facility leadership from the public and private sectors, a representative from rural America, an American Indian representative, and former Cabinet secretaries who served under both political parties.

To guarantee Montana's veterans are receiving the care they need, starting June 11, I will be sending staff to the Fort Harrison VA and the Billings Community Based Outpatient Clinic each Wednesday. Be sure to look out for Marine veteran Maureen Porter who works out of my Missoula office, Marine veteran and Montana National Guardsman Johnathon Kenneway who works out of my Great Falls office and my Billings Regional Director Jim Corson who will be on-site from 1pm - 4pm to help veterans with casework.

Montana's veterans deserve no less.

Sincerely,

John Walsh

Museum of the Rockies provides Geyser Program for Summer Reading

For the second year, the Museum of the Rockies has developed and provided programming and materials for public libraries statewide to support the Summer Reading theme, "Fizz, Book, Read!" The program developed this year is on the Yellowstone geysers. Participants will learn about geysers, supervolcanoes and other thermal features of Yellowstone Park. Each student will create their own mento and soda pop or alkaseltzer geysers, witness a flour volcano experiment to learn about volcanic stages, and receive a list of web sites for further online exploration of the subject.

The geyser program will begin at 10:00 am in the Old Depot Theater. Experiments will be conducted on the south museum lawn. The experiments will be done outside, rain or shine, so children should dress accordingly. Children 5 years old and younger must be accompanied by a parent or caregiver. All summer reading programs are free and open to the public!

Hope you can join us for this explosion of fun and learning!

19TH ANNUAL AUTO FESTIVAL & CRUISE SAVE THE DATE

Dillon's 19th annual Auto Festival & Cruise presented by The White Hat Coalition and hosted by Performance Truck & Auto will be held Saturday, the first day of summer! June 21st, 2013 at the Depot Park.

Hunt Roster Registration Begins June 15

Hunters interested in participating this year in game-damage hunts on private land, possible management seasons, or potential management removals of elk to reduce the risk of brucellosis transmission between elk and livestock can register online with Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks beginning June 15.

Additionally, should opportunities emerge to offer antlerless deer B licenses for use during the archery and general seasons, those too would be awarded through the Hunt Roster.

Prospective hunters must register for the Hunt Roster online between June 15 and July 15 at fwp.mt.gov. Click "Hunt Roster". Internet-based registration can be completed on personal computers, at most public libraries, and at any FWP office. To register, hunters will need their ALS number.

Game damage occurs when animals such as elk, deer, and antelope concentrate on private farms and ranches and consume crops. FWP's game damage hunt rules are designed to respond to the needs of landowners who provide free public hunting during the general hunting season, yet who could nevertheless suffer losses due to wildlife damage without this additional management tool. Management seasons typically occur on a larger scale than game damage hunts.

Elk management removals are a management response to the risk of brucellosis transmission between elk and livestock. These small scale removals reduce commingling events between elk and livestock using very limited hunter presence and harvest to adjust elk distribution in an area. These may take place throughout the winter and early spring and are applied only in those areas with brucellosis. Before the management removal option can be used, it needs to be adopted by the Fish & Wildlife Commission in a 2015 annual work plan.

A final roster for use in game damage hunts, management seasons and management removals, randomly generated from all the online registrations, will be posted by Aug. 1 on the FWP website.

Damage hunts and management seasons, if they occur, could take place anytime from Aug. 15 through Feb. 15, 2015. Management removals for brucellosis risk mitigation could take place after Feb. 15, 2015.

Any deer B licenses allocated through the hunt roster follow on a second randomization of names and would not influence a hunter's eligibility for game damage, management seasons and management removals. Successful hunters drawn for these B licenses would be directly notified by FWP.
