Farmers' Market Opens Saturday June 28

The first Dillon Farmers' Market of the summer will be on Saturday June 28 from 9 am to 1 pm at the Wells Fargo parking lot, 20 N. Montana Street. The lot is closed to parking from 7 am to 2 pm, and unauthorized vehicles may be towed. Parking is available in the adjacent public lot. Vendors should plan to be there to set up by 8 am.

Market master Bill Cain will have member applications and copies of the market rules at the market. Annual dues are $5.00 and vendors pay $5.00 per week for a space up to ten feet wide. You need not be a vendor to become a member. Members receive a bright yellow Dillon Farmers' Market shopping bag. Additional bags are available for sale.

2014 will be the 11th season for the farmers' market in Dillon. Last year there were over 60 members, and 20-25 vendors came to the market each week. The market is for home grown and handmade products. It is a good place to find unique, locally-made items and fresh garden produce. It is an opportunity for people to try business ideas. It is a place to meet friends.

The Dillon Farmers' Market supports the Community Food Pantry. Last year over 500 pounds of fresh produce was contributed by vendors. This year, the market will hold a summer sunflower celebration on September 6. More than 60 people have planted special mammoth sunflower seeds contributed by Botanical Interests in hope of growing a prize-winning sunflower.

The Market will run each Saturday through September 27, 2014. For information, visit the web site www.dillonfarmers-market.blogspot.com, check Facebook at dillon-farmers-market, or call market president Catherine Cain at 406-498-6198.

Remember to Put Out Your Campfire

Officials with the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest report a number of abandoned campfires have been found throughout the Forest recently.

While none of the fires grew, they are a concern, officials said.

Even though it has been a mild year so far for wildfires, people are advised to not become complacent when using fire outdoors as it only takes one spark or ember to start a wildfire in Southwest Montana.

Forest Service officials offer these tips for anyone spending time in the outdoors:

- NEVER walk away from a smoldering campfire, whether in a campground or elsewhere.
- ALWAYS make sure a fire is dead out. Mix water,

Eddie & the Fourth of July

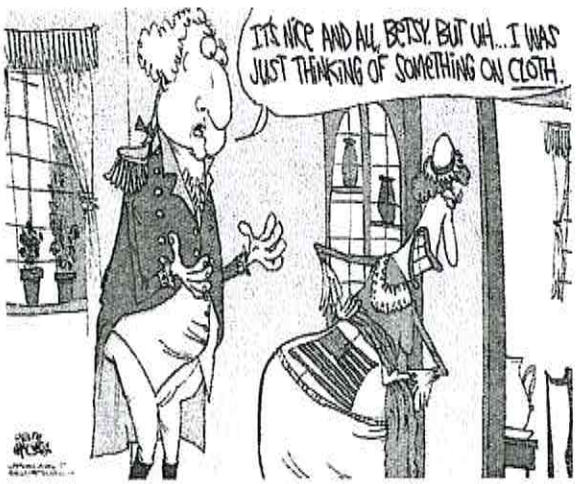

By Tom Purcell

When I drove by Eddie Gabor's old house, I was transported back more than 20 years — back to the wonderful Fourth of July outings my family once enjoyed there.

Eddie Gabor was my grandmother's longtime boyfriend and companion. For the last 20 years of her life, Eddie treated her like gold.

My grandmother had a hard life, after all. Widowed in her late 40s, she struggled for years to pay the bills and tend to the last of her six children.

Then Providence intervened. My grandmother, a regular churchgoer, had caught the eye of another parishioner — a colorful old bachelor named Eddie Gabor.

Eddie and his brother ran a successful office-cleaning business. They had hundreds of employees who maintained the interiors and exteriors of Pittsburgh's biggest high-rise buildings.

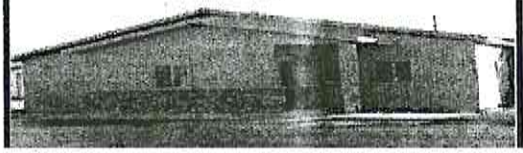

Eddie and my grandmother hit it off instantly. They went to Mass together every day. Eddie took her to Pittsburgh's finest restaurants every night. My grandmother brought Eddie to every family event.

Eddie made the last 20 years of her life her best years — he made our Fourth of July celebrations wonderful, too.

Eddie lived in a beautiful stone home up high on a hill above a park. Every Fourth of July his township gave an incredible fireworks display. Eddie's backyard offered a perfect view.

So every year, he set out tables and chairs. He made refreshments and food. Just before dusk, my grandmother's children, grandchildren, their spouses and more would arrive.

As the adults laughed and caught up with each other, the children danced around the yard, giggling as their sparklers burned bright.

Soon, the sky would fall black and the fireworks would begin. As we "oohed" and "aahed" — as the sky exploded into light and just as quickly returned to darkness — Eddie would be next to my grandmother, as contented as a man can be.

Eddie threw his last Fourth of July party in 1993, five years after my grandmother died. He died the following winter. Our sadness at the loss of both hit hard the next Fourth of July when we could no longer gather at Eddie's to celebrate.

The fact is there was no better place to celebrate the Fourth of July — not just because Eddie made my grandmother's last years so wonderful, but in part because of Eddie's father.

Eddie's father was born in Hungary poor. He came to America seeking a better life for himself and his family. He took the first job he could get — janitor.

Where others may view mopping and cleaning as demeaning work, Eddie's father didn't. He saw opportunity.

He started his own cleaning business. He began by cleaning small commercial buildings and kept moving his way up.

His company was soon maintaining larger buildings. He soon had the means to send his sons to college, so they could help grow and manage the business. He built himself a fine stone home in one of Pittsburgh's finest neighborhoods — the home in which Eddie Gabor would live the rest of his life.

The story of Eddie's father is an American story. Through hard work, he made an incredible life for his family, and unwittingly made an incredible life for my grandmother.

As I first drove by Eddie Gabor's old house, I was initially filled with sadness — sad that my grandmother and Eddie have been gone more than 20 years already.

But as all the memories came flooding back — as I pieced together what the old house really symbolizes — I couldn't help but smile.

The house symbolizes all of the incredible blessings our country bestowed on Eddie's father, Eddie, my grandmother and my family.

That's what I'll be thinking about when I take a drive by the old place this Fourth of July.

Submitted by Chuck Dishno

"Exactly," said Barack the farmer. "That is what makes our free enterprise system so wonderful. Anyone in the barnyard can earn as much as he wants. But under our modern government regulations, the productive workers must divide the fruits of their labor with those who are lazy and idle."

And they all lived happily ever after, including the little red hen, who smiled and clucked, "I am grateful, for now I truly understand." But her neighbors became quite disappointed in her. She never again baked bread because she joined the 'party' and got her bread free. And all the Democrats smiled. 'Fairness' had been established.

Individual initiative had died but nobody noticed; perhaps no one cared so long as there was free bread that 'the rich' were paying for.

EPILOGUE
Bill Clinton is getting $12 million for his memoirs.
Hillary got $8 million for hers.
That's $20 million for the memories from two people, who for eight years repeatedly testified, under oath, that they couldn't remember anything.

IS THIS A GREAT BARNYARD story OR WHAT?

"OUT OF THE WOODS" TO PERFORM AT BANNACK

Bannack State Park will host the "Out of the Woods" band on June 28th at 7pm in the old church. This program is sponsored by State Bank and Trust.

This exciting duo will entertain you with their unique renditions of traditional bluegrass music. "Out of the Woods" is a two piece Americana band that performs original intricate arrangements and puts a spin on the traditional bluegrass sound.

Park hours are from 8:00am until dusk every day. The Visitor Center is open 9:00 am until 7:00 pm daily.

DILLON CUBS SPLIT

The Dillon American Legion Cubs had an exciting game on Wednesday when Caleb Peets threw his first no-hitter at home against Deer Lodge. They won that game 13-0 and brought an end to the Deer Lodge Wranglers' six-game winning streak. Peets said he was throwing his fastball to start and he thought they were right on it so he changed to his changeup and was finding the strike zone with his pitches.

The Cubs scored a run in the first inning and six in the second to get an early lead in the first game.

The second game was won by the Wranglers 5-4 and that brought an end to the Cubs 6 game winning streak also.

It came down to a hit, that look much like a home run, by Ethan Tatarka, hit to left field with a runner on first base. The strong winds blowing out of left field took the sail off the ball and as the left fielder change directions with the ball twice he made a diving catch to end the game. The Cubs had scored in the fifth and sixth innings to get to within one run but couldn't finish with the win.
