Margery Lawrence Henneman

Margery Lawrence "Laurie" Henneman, age 46, died of complications of cancer on July 27, 2014 in her home in Dillon, Montana. The youngest of three children, she was only daughter of John Bell Henneman Jr. and Margery Clifford Henneman, born on July 9, 1968, in Hamilton, Ontario, and raised in Iowa City, Iowa.

Laurie attended Herbert Hoover Elementary School and Southeast Junior High in Iowa City, before matriculating at the St. Paul's School in Concord, New Hampshire, graduating in 1986. She earned her A.B. in Biology in 1990 from Princeton University, where she wrote songs for the Triangle Club, served as a Drill Master of the Princeton University Band, rowed on the women's crew, and served in the Air Force's ROTC program. Laurie became a scientist, earning her Ph.D. in Ecology and Evolutionary Biology from the University of Arizona in 1997. She served as a postdoctoral research associate at the University of Bristol in England and as a visiting scholar at the University of Hawaii, where she studied native insects in the Alaka'i Swamp on Kaua'i, Hawaii and paddled for a competitive women's outrigger ocean canoeing team.

In her professional life, Laurie was an entomologist, and became an expert in the causes and consequences of invasive species to ecosystems. She received national attention in 2001 for her postdoctoral research on invasive species used in biocontrol (<http://mothskauai.biotunes.org/leps/>). Laurie most recently taught both biology and music as an adjunct professor at the University of Montana Western in Dillon.

Laurie's family and friends were her love and passion, and they remember her with surpassing joy. Laurie had a sharp wit, an easy and boisterous laugh, and was exceedingly loyal to those she knew and loved. A scientist first, Laurie gave life to her tremendous creativity and love for the natural world in the blending of art and science. Laurie wrote and recorded a cycle of songs called "Ants of the Desert," enjoyed by entomologists all over the world, and used images of native insects of Hawaii, where she did her early research, in folk quilting. In later years, she took to writing a regular blog on matters of science, ethics, and her own experiences as a cancer patient in the American health care system. Through it all, Laurie remained close to her childhood friends from Iowa City, classmates from Princeton, and her many friends from

By: MJ

I spoke with Mr. Raymond Graham and Ms. Davis about the claims made against them by Councilwoman Westad in an affidavit. Mr. Graham and Ms. Davis spoke with Mr. Fitch, county attorney and they believe from that conversation that there will be no charges filed due to lack of creditable evidence. It appears the case has been put to bed once again.

CONFLICT or DISCORD: When the new mayor was elected one would expect some conflict, some friction and even hostility. People are coming together that have preconceived opinions, have different interest and resources. Societies are defined by inequality that produces conflict. Seven (7) months have gone by since the election and the conflict continues. WHY?

According to research setting goals often will disperse conflict. Setting goals gives a common ground to start from thus optimize human progress. Does the council have long term goals that they are working toward for the betterment of the community?

You hear a lot about consensus as a way to solve conflicts. People think that if you come to the middle and agree you have censuses and solved all the problems. This is just another way to manipulate people and convince them that they are doing the right thing by agreeing to a consensus process even though their mind tells them it is not right. Consensus, in reality allows the more powerful to impose their conceptions on others.

I have been attending as many council and committee meetings as my time allows and it appears that the mayor has been trying to increase the positive aspects, enhance the learning curve, effectiveness and performance of all groups and personnel involved in city government.

Let's hope the conflict will start to diminish for the greater good of the community and taxpayers.

KEYS FOUND

A set of three (3) matching small brass keys was turned into the City of Dillon (7/30/14). The citizen who found the keys located them outside of the entrance to the Dillon City Court. They keys look to be for either filing cabinet(s) of some sort or possibly a safety deposit box. They may be identified and claimed at the Dillon City Court. Their telephone is 683-6690.

She is brave, stubborn (in a good way ☺) and willing to fight for her life.

Letter to the EditorSEN. (GEN.) JOHN WALSH

Gen. Walsh served his country in combat during the war in Iraq and did so in a very outstanding manner. It also seems quite obvious that one of his primary goals was to bring his Montana soldiers all home in one piece. Here he went so far as to endanger his own career to protect his soldiers.

Most soldiers who experience combat suffer with PTSD to some degree, some more than others, but all affected. If this caused Gen. Walsh to forget to provide proper references in his masters thesis at the US Army War College then the least we owe him is forgiveness for that minor infraction.

Also, in evaluation the situation around Gen. Walsh's studies, we need to evaluate all factors involved. In all advanced studies like this there is usually an advisor assigned to each student who generally holds a higher rank than the student involved. It's the advisors responsibility to advise the student as to all of the expectations involved in his studies, the standards to be met and to inspect and approve all of the students work.

The records show that Gen. Walsh's thesis was approved and he was awarded his masters degree. If, in reality, the thesis was improperly referenced, why didn't the advisor pick that up before submitting the thesis for further approval???

But, we also need to keep in mind that proper references are not always required in all situations. For example, if a thesis is not to be published then referencing may not be important. I can also imagine that the military may wish to keep reports or thesis brief and therefore referencing may be purposely omitted.

In my opinion, Sen. Walsh is one of the most outstanding politicians that I have seen in an awful long time. In Iraq he took responsibility for correcting a major failure in mission planning for the sake of his troops. He simply just radiates honor, integrity and devotion to duty. Why should we then crucify him for this minor infraction, which probably wasn't his fault anyway.

ON the other hand, his opponent has never been in the military and his one major accomplishment was in exporting badly needed american jobs.

Sincerely yours,

Johannes Soyland, Ph.D.
