Finance Committee meeting:

By: MJ

A remark was made by Councilman Spehar "we have done it before," referring to an action that if proceeded with would break the open meet law. Once again the Mayor explained the law to committee members.

At the Jan. 21, 2015 council meeting the contracts from Piper Jaffray and Bond Council were presented by the mayor to the full council for reconfiguring the Water Sewer revenue funding bonds by using defeasment accounts and buying back bonds. There was sufficient discussion by council all members and they gave the mayor permission to move forward and acquire the contracts. I was surprised to see that on the finance committee agenda they were going to review the contracts. I did not recall or have it in my notes that the council voted to send it to the finance committee.

Councilman Cotton is a member of the finance committee and he made a motion that they recommend to the full council to accept the contracts if the City Attorney agreed they were acceptable after he reviewing them. The motion died on the floor due to lack of a second. Mr. Spehar and Ms. Westad were the other two members present and neither one would second the motion. They gave no explanation of why they would not second the motion. Mr. Dolan had been in court and did not have adequate time to review the contracts before the committee meeting.

Mayor Klakken explained to the members that interest rates could go up at any time. If that happened then the 7± million dollars would be in jeopardy. Ms. Westad said she had it on good authority that the interest rates were not going to go up.

Mr. Spehar did say that he agreed with the Defeasance of 2015 and 2012 Water Sewer bonds however, he did not second the motion. Once again one can only shake their head and wonder what is going on behind the curtains. Explanation: You know, when you go to a live performance and under the curtain you see movement of feet and hear chatter that makes you wonder what is going on. That is the feeling you get at most of the city meetings. Lots of eye movements, smiles, stares with no explanation using lip service.

On the street you hear a lot of annoyance with the council's actions yet only a few people take the time to show up at the council meetings. Once again one can only shake their head and wonder why people don't come to the meetings. When the council had on the agenda an LBGT issue and the council chamber was wall to wall people. Why is it not equally as important to you how the city spends the money they impose taxes on you to collect?

How can the mayor be expected to do the job he has been elected to do when he has no support or working team. Do you feel confident that the city government is functioning on your behalf?

BULLDOGS BURY DIGGERS

In a throwback to the mid-1990s the meeting between Montana Western and Montana Tech had more at stake than bragging rights. The teams entered the contest vying for control of the Frontier Conference and the Bulldogs escaped with an 86-78 win.

Montana Tech opened with a 7-1 run to take command of the first half while shooting 56 percent from the floor and behind the arc. Montana Western kept the game close with nine points by junior Connor Woodill and eight from senior Jordan Overstreet. Tech built a nine point lead with just five minutes remaining, but the Bulldogs answered and clawed back cut the margin to four before an Oredigger half court shot as time in the half expired.

In the second half the Diggers continued to hold a slim lead until junior Tim Lott buried a three to give the Bulldogs the 61-59 advantage with just under 12 minutes to play. The Bulldogs stretched the lead to nine before committing offensive fouls on three straight possessions and giving up a three point play which brought Tech back within five. In the closing minutes senior Stephen McCall took control of the game, ending with 10 assists and 21 points after scoring just six in the first half.

"We played a great second half and just kept getting stops," Bulldog head coach Steve Keller said. The second half defensive effort limited Tech to a .29 shooting percentage. The Bulldogs shot 50 percent from the floor in the second half and notched 18 assists on the night. Junior Dexter Williams Jr. contributed 15 points and 9 rebounds, seven on the offensive boards.

A big night for closely contested upsets in the Frontier Conference allowed the Bulldogs to move back into first place in the standings as the first half of the schedule wrapped up. Montana Western takes to the road next week, visiting Carroll College and Rocky Mountain College.

Records rarely matter when the University of Montana Western Bulldogs and Montana Tech Orediggers meet up to contest for the Digger-Dawg Cup, but the always-anticipated matchup between the I-15 rivals carried a bit more weight tonight as the teams were each seeking to end a lengthy losing streak. The Bulldogs came out hot and held off the Diggers down the stretch to secure the 76-71 win.

The teams entered the game in similar situations, both playing competitively in a Frontier Conference featuring five ranked teams, but still seeking a win. The Bulldogs took the first lead of the game on a slashing layup by junior guard Sierra Higheagle, but the Orediggers answered and held the lead until 16:20 mark. Montana Tech kept themselves in the contest with nine offensive boards in the opening period, helping to make up for a .29 shooting percentage. The Bulldog offense moved the ball well, recording ten assists, five by senior point guard Jenna Banks. The score was tied seven times before the Bulldogs began to pull away to establish a 10-point margin at the half.

In the second half Montana Western built a 19-point lead, but Montana Tech turned up the heat down the stretch to make things interesting. "In the last two minutes Tech found a way to knock down threes, while we struggled a bit from the line," Bulldog head coach Lindsay Woolley said. "Other than that I thought we executed well."

Sophomore Kaye Bignell lead all scorers with 19 points and Higheagle finished with 16. Banks scored 14 points and tallied six assists. "Kaye got great position in the paint, and I was pleased with 18 team assists on just 14 turnovers," Woolley said.

The Bulldogs begin the second half of the Frontier Conference season next week with road games at Carroll College and Rocky Mountain College.

TEAM EFFORT LIFTS BULLDOGS OVER WARRIORS

The Bulldogs of the University of Montana Western stopped a two game skid with a 90-74 win over Lewis-Clark State College.

A slow shooting start by the Bulldogs allowed the Warriors to jump out to 10-point lead nine minutes into the first half. Montana Western senior guard Kris Castro then took matters into his own hands with two quick steals, four assists and eight first half points. Junior Dexter Williams Jr. also caught fire, finishing the period with 13 points, five rebounds and three assists. The Bulldogs pushed their lead to nine points, then went into halftime up 42-35.

Lewis-Clark State opened the second half quickly, closing the gap to four points less than two minutes into the period. The Bulldogs turned up the defense and collected seven steals in the second half, turning the tide on the visitors with a series of fast break layups and a few crowd rousing dunks. The aggressive play of the Bulldogs led to opportunities from the free throw line down the stretch. Montana Western connected on 24 of 35 free throws, led by senior Stephen McCall's 5-5 efficiency from the line in the closing minutes. McCall finished the game with 13 points and 10 boards. Williams Jr. led all scorers with 26 points and 11 rebounds.

Bulldogs head coach Steve Keller was pleased with his team's intensity. "That was a great team effort, to have five guys in double figures and 19 assists to just nine turnovers was key," Keller said. "Dexter continues to be solid and Kris Castro had the best all around game of his career."

Education Matters Rally

Come show your support for Public Education in Montana!

Who: Everyone who is ready to learn how to make quality public education a right for ALL Montanans is invited to attend.

What: A rally to show Montana that here, in Dillon, we support protecting and perfecting our schools, and we support paving this road of opportunity for all Montanans, regardless of wealth or background.

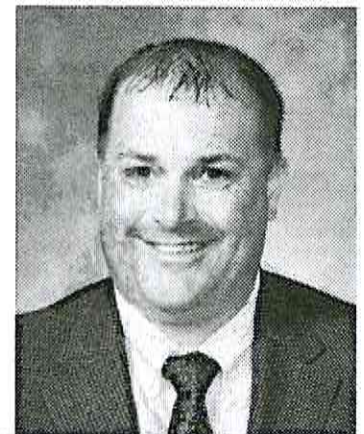

Where: The rally will be held in the community gym at Parkview Elementary School.

When: February 3rd, at 7:00.

Left: Lieutenant Governor Angela McLean will be the keynote speaker. She will discuss Governor Bullock's and her education initiatives and the importance of them becoming reality.

Right: State Representative Jeff Welborn will discuss the work that he is doing in the Legislature with education.

Supported by Beaverhead County
