Welborn's Legislative Transmittal Break review

This week I will share some of the key pieces of legislation passed during the first half of this legislative session which include a bill signed by Gov. Bullock, that passed both the House and Senate in a large bi-partisan fashion, and which I also voted in favor of, will increase basic entitlement funding for schools by $54 million and highlights progress made by the Montana Legislature at this point in our 90-day session.

During my last campaign, I committed to working toward common sense policy regarding bullying, and for the first time in my four terms in the House of Representatives, we are on a track that should help curb the problem, while not interfering with local school board's ability to set workable policy. In the words of one of my colleagues and I couldn't agree more, bullying affects so many of our kids in such a hard, hurtful way.

Montana has moved one step closer to joining every other state in the country in making anti-bullying policy law under a bill endorsed by the House on Wednesday. House Bill 284, sponsored by Democratic Rep. Kimberly Dudik of Missoula, passed on second reading by a vote of 74-26.

The proposal would define bullying, ban it in public schools and require public school districts to adopt their own policies addressing the issue, maintaining local control. It was also amended in committee to allow for court action. Currently, parents of harassed students can take their complaint only as far as a school board, but even some local boards feel like the responsibility to curb the problem fell solely in their laps, but with no real teeth in the law, their hands are still tied. This proposal strikes a better balance, and looks to give both schools and the courts the ability to address the problem in a more comprehensive manner.

In short, if parents don't think something is being done, they can take it to the court system as they work with their schools to do more.

The measure would explicitly define bullying as any repeated harassment, hazing or threatening online or in person.

From 2012 to 2014, 3,000 students in Montana schools were either expelled or suspended for bullying and harassment. Thirty-eight percent of Montana seventh and eighth graders have stated they are being bullied, while 26 percent of high school students say they are being bullied, by 2010, 46 states had established anti-bullying laws. Hawaii, Michigan and South Dakota were the last to make changes, leaving Montana as the only state that hasn't addressed the issue with legislation.

Other major bills that are advancing include a proposed water compact on the Flathead Reservation, which I have written about in previous articles and will keep you posted as the CSKT Water Compact makes its way through the House, now that it has passed in the Senate with Bi-partisan support.

Another key piece of legislation that will define this legislative session, is a measure that would require more disclosure surrounding campaign contributions. The Senate has passed, Republican Sen. Duane Ankney's Senate Bill 289, which is backed by Democratic Gov. Steve Bullock, would require corporations to disclose political contributions favoring or opposing candidates and ballot issues in Montana.

The proposal also would require that the attribution "paid for by" be included on political ads in the state. Opponents say definitions and provisions in the proposal are overly broad. I contend, if you or your donors have nothing to shield from the public, then what is the problem? Why should an in State, out of State or Foreign entity have special privileges when reporting campaign spending, when any of our friends or neighbors are required to report when they contribute to a political campaign? This proposal would make the law fair to all. Nothing more or less.

The U.S. Supreme Court's Citizens United decision in 2010 freed corporations and labor unions to spend as much as they want in political elections. Again, this measure is only about reporting and would make it a level playing field for those that have to report spending now, as well as those that can hide behind the loopholes in our current law.

Gov. Bullock, to date has signed about 70 bills passed by the legislature, most of them just clean up existing law.

Two Republican proposals to cut income taxes have passed from the Senate and the House, mostly along party lines, but I remain hopeful that the Governor will sign these proposals to bring some income tax relief across different income brackets.

Lawmakers from both parties unanimously supported three Republican measures to strengthen mental health care facilities. Many bills tackling issues from drug testing for welfare to suicide prevention training have passed through one chamber. It remains to be seen if they will make it to the governor's desk.

Here's a look at other bills that remain in play or simply may not pass, weather it be lack of support of the full legislature or the veto stamp of the Governor.

STILL ALIVE:

FIREARMS: The House passed a proposal to prohibit enforcement of any new federal gun laws in Montana. The Senate endorsed a bill that would allow people to carry concealed weapons on college campuses and another allowing silencers to be used for hunting. (SB 143, SB 295)

SUICIDE PREVENTION: A bill aiming to lower Montana's high suicide rate by requiring prevention training for public school employees passed the House (HB 374). One requiring similar training for health care providers failed.

HIGH SCHOOL AGE: The Senate passed a bill to increase from 18 to 19 the cutoff age at which public high school students can be counted for state funding. (SB 12)

DISABLED CHILDREN: The House passed two bills aimed at improving the education and health of Montana children with disabilities. A Republican-sponsored bill would create a savings account program to help children with disabilities get specialized education from kindergarten through college. A Democrat-sponsored bill would ensure insurance coverage for kids with Down syndrome. (HB 322, HB 318)

DRUG TESTING FOR WELFARE RECIPIENTS: The House passed a Republican-sponsored bill that would require welfare applicants to be screened for drug use and possibly take a drug test based on answers to a questionnaire. (HB200)

HIRE VETS: A proposal authorizing private employers to give hiring preference to veterans easily passed the House. (SB 196)

As we head into the second half of the Legislative session, please keep me updated on issues important to you, and as the key proposals (CSKT Water Compact, Campaign Finance Laws, Infrastructure Funding, a Montana Made Solution to Medical Reform, and HB 2 the state's Budget) continue to move through the process, I will keep you updated on those as well.

Gianforte Family Foundation will give $1 million

Greg Gianforte announced today that The Gianforte Family Foundation will give $1 million to Montana State University's College of Engineering and Computer Science Department in an effort to help educate and graduate greater numbers of computer science majors. The gift, secured through the MSU Alumni Foundation, earmarks $500,000 for three faculty positions in computer science and $500,000 to increase space for those teaching and studying the computer sciences.

"Our Montana kids have an unmatched work ethic, but we're not preparing enough of them to go to work in our fast-growing high tech sector," said Gianforte, who with his wife, Susan, founded RightNow Technologies. "I, for one, do not want to have to get on an airplane to visit my future grandkids. Our gift will give Montana State University students more opportunity to pursue computer science and to fill the high-paying job opportunities without leaving Montana."

The gift's $500,000 committed for faculty will establish the Gianforte Faculty Fellows program and will support the recruitment and retention of computer science professors - allowing MSU to grow its capacity to develop more computer sciences graduates. The gift will provide funding for the partial start-up and salary expenses of three faculty positions. After three years, the university will assume the full costs of supporting these faculty positions.

The additional $500,000 initiates the Gianforte Computer Science Student Space Expansion Fund with resources aimed at increasing the teaching and learning spaces devoted to computer science students and faculty at MSU.

John Paxton, MSU Computer Science Department head, said the Gianforte gift enables computer science at MSU to better prepare growing numbers of students while boosting awareness about the merits of a computing education.

"Computational thinking abilities are in such demand throughout the state of Montana, and this gift allows MSU to continue delivering the cutting-edge computing education Montana students need and deserve," Paxton said. "Furthermore, the gift shines a spotlight on the economic benefit derived from investing in a strong computer science program and values the impact that MSU can have on the state of Montana."

Brett Gunnink, dean of MSU's College of Engineering, said the gift supports Montana high school students interested in computing.

"This gift to MSU will accommodate the rising interest among high school graduates wanting to pursue computer science degrees and prepare them to become a part of Montana's growing pool of high-tech professionals and entrepreneurs," Gunnink said.

ABOUT THE MONTANA STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI FOUNDATION: The Montana State University Alumni Foundation is a private nonprofit corporation with three subsidiary organizations serving alumni and friends, donors and partners through one mission: "We create lifelong relationships and strengthen our resources to advance Montana State University."

Women & Men

By: MJ

Women are the diamonds or pearls. Men are the component that holds the gem.

MEN: What do men look for in women? They want a woman they are attracted to at their side, they want to be supported, they want to be honored, and they want to be loved... Men do not want to argue or fight therefore they do little talking or communicating. Men are direct communicators. They talk about one thing. Men are internal processors (they work it out themselves).

WOMEN: What do women want in a man? They want a man they are attracted to at their side, they want to be supported, they want to be honored and they want to be loved... Women have more tears than men (water flows easily). Women need to talk to find peace with an issue. Women are multitasking when they are communicating. Women are external processors (they talk about the issues).

SOLUTIONS that may or may not work for you. (1) When a woman is upset a man needs to align with the anger and give her permission to be angry. It is important to empathize (put yourself in her shoes), validate and hear the anger (2) Tell the truth at the moment in a way that is respectful to all. (3) Learn how to dump your bucket on someone else in a way that is not accusatory or condemning to the other person. (4) Learn how to keep your garbage lid on tight so that you do not take in someone else's anger. (5) Stay on subject would like to say a sincere

Thank you

To the nearly 17,000 patient visits seen here with our OPENING 7 YEARS AGO!

We appreciate you who have trusted us for your healthcare needs.

AMERICA is still the best country God ever created.

In our clinic, there is a 1917 photo of a hard-working horse in harness, doing its job.

"Pull it one more mile" is its caption.

I thank my Lord Jesus Christ for the opportunity to do the same in this land of free enterprise, shoulder to shoulder with my fellow Americans. I'd like to extend a special Thank You to our Military and their families.

Together, WE ARE MAKING IT THROUGH THE HEALTHCARE CHALLENGE AND TO HELP OUT:

HEALTH FAIR BLOOD WORK AT THE BEST RATES!

MAR. 10 and MAR 23rd THRU 27TH.

COME IN FASTING FOR 12 HRS, HAVING ONLY WATER TO DRINK

We will be continuing our policy of delivering same day quality healthcare with no appointment necessary throughout the coming years. We will strive to maintain affordable rates & timely visits. We look forward to seeing more of our friends, neighbors and visitors. I've lived in Dillon for over 22+ years, and Lord willing, I'm here to Stay!

THANK YOU, THANK YOU, THANK YOU!

With heartfelt thanks,
