Concussion

A concussion is a mild traumatic brain injury. It can occur after an impact to your head or after a whiplash-type injury that causes your head and brain to shake quickly back and forth. Concussions are usually not life threatening, but they can cause serious symptoms that require medical treatment.

Anyone can become injured during a fall, car accident, or any other daily activity. If you participate in impact sports—such as football or boxing—you have an increased risk of getting a concussion.

The University of Michigan Health System estimates that approximately 3.8 million people in the United States get concussions from sports injuries every year (UMHS).

Symptoms

It's not true that a loss of consciousness always occurs with a concussion. Some people do experience a loss of consciousness, but others do not. Symptoms of a concussion vary depending on the severity of the injury and the person.

The symptoms may begin immediately, or they may not develop for hours, days, weeks, or even months following the injury. The signs of a concussion may include:

- brief loss of consciousness after the injury
- memory problems
- confusion
- drowsiness or feeling sluggish
- dizziness
- double vision or blurred vision
- headache
- nausea or vomiting
- sensitivity to light or noise
- balance problems
- slowed reaction to stimuli

During the recovery period after a concussion, you may experience the following symptoms:

- irritability
- sensitivity to light or noise
- difficulty concentrating
- mild headaches

Emergency

If you suspect that you or someone else has a concussion, you should see a doctor. If a concussion occurs during a sports practice or game, tell the athletic coach or go to a doctor. Call 911 if the symptoms are severe.

Concussions may be accompanied by injuries to the spine.

If you suspect that the person has a neck or back injury, avoid moving them and then call an ambulance for help. If you must move the person, do so very carefully. You should try to move the person's neck and back as little as possible. This will avoid causing further damage to the spine.

If you, or someone you know, experience any of the following severe symptoms after an injury, you should seek immediate emergency medical treatment:

- inability to wake up (also called a coma)
- seizures
- draining of blood or clear fluid from the ears or nose
- unequal pupil size (one pupil is larger than the other)
- eyes moving abnormally
- lasting confusion
- slurred speech
- repeated vomiting
- weak muscles
- problems walking

Treatments

Treatment for a concussion depends on the severity of your symptoms. Surgery or other medical procedures may be required if you have bleeding in the brain, swelling of the brain, or a serious injury to the brain. However, most concussions do not require surgery or any major medical treatment.

During the first 24 hours after the injury, your doctor may suggest that you have someone wake you up every two to three hours. This ensures that you have not gone into a coma and also allows someone to check whether you are experiencing signs of severe confusion or abnormal behavior.

If you experience headaches, your doctor may tell you to take over-the-counter pain relievers such as ibuprofen (Advil) or acetaminophen (Tylenol). Your doctor may also tell you to get plenty of rest, avoid sports and other strenuous activities, and avoid driving a vehicle or riding a bike for 24 hours or a few months, depending on the severity of your injury. Alcohol might slow your recovery, so discuss with your doctor whether you should stop drinking alcoholic beverages and for how long.

Letter to the Editor

This is an open letter to the Beaverhead Trails Coalition and the people of Dillon Montana.

The reason I write this letter is to congratulate the Beaverhead Trails Coalition on the way they ramrodded the Pigtail Connector project through with NO input from any of the people who live directly in the neighborhood adversely impacted by the project. Imagine my surprise to wake up to a bunch of noise, vehicles and people on a beautiful March Saturday morning. I opened my living room drapes and had a vehicle parked up against my chain link fence. Until that moment I had no inkling that this project was even happening.

All day I watched load after load of willows being hauled out and taken to the dump. Amazing since the area they put the trail through is a wetland, I am surprised they were able to receive the proper permit to even do the project. Since public involvement wasn't high on the priority list for them, not sure permits would be either. Having lived in my house for 17 plus years and having received notice about the billboard and crematorium which were built directly across from my home, imagine my shock at not receiving notice of this project.

In addition to the bridge with no notice, I came home to 160 yards of crushed gravel unceremoniously dumped in Jefferson Street. I honestly believe it wouldn't have been moved if I hadn't gone to see the Mayor. Since no one seems to realize that Jefferson Street is just that, a full fledge street which is no different than Idaho or Reeder. This means that it is laid out to be paved and include sidewalks on either side. That being the case, the approach to the fantastic bridge they put in, is in the street/sidewalk area of Jefferson Street. So it was wasted money.

When I did speak to one of the members of the Beaverhead Trails Coalition, I was told, "You should be glad to have the close access to the walking trail, it will increase your property values, besides if you don't like the increased walking and bike traffic, put in a privacy fence." Really, now I would like to know if the Beaverhead Trails Coalition is going to pay my increased property taxes and install a "privacy fence?"

Luckily on that day all they managed to ruin besides the quiet neighborhood, wetlands, my chain link fence which someone in their group managed to hit and damage, which of course no one managed to take responsibility for or offer to repair, my potential increased property taxes, increases in walking traffic, dogs, bikes at all hours of the night and day and the potential for an increase in crime like there has been in the Laknar Lane area where one of these projects was put in. Really we just couldn't live without a "path" to the W? They could use the current sidewalks and streets with no additional impact.

The reason I put this information out is because of the completely one sided article which was printed in the Dillon Tribune on Wednesday, April 29, 2015. It made it sound like the Beaverhead Trails Coalition had come in and saved Dillon, however Dillon had better watch out for this group which definitely tramples and ignores the rights of individuals. Be Careful Dillon!

Sincerely,

Patricia K. Williams;

Free Tai Chi Classes

If you want to reduce stress and anxiety while increasing flexibility and balance, join us on Tuesdays and Fridays at 9:30 in Jaycee Park (across from Mary Ennis School) for an hour of Tai Chi. Often described as meditation in motion, Tai Chi (tai chee) was originally developed by the Chinese for self-defense but has evolved into a graceful form of exercise. It involves a series of movements performed in a slow, focused manner, accompanied by deep breathing. Each posture flows into the next without pause, ensuring that your body is in constant motion, with low impact and minimal stress on muscles and joints.

Francis Dupuis is a qualified Tai Chi instructor with nearly three decades of experience, and he leads the group on Tuesdays. Fridays are days of further practice, and anyone, even beginners are welcome to join us. It is generally safe for all ages and fitness levels and requires no special equipment.

The Experience of Gratitude

From the bottom of our hearts, the Sparks' Family would like to THANK EVERYONE for their contributions to Archer's Journey.
We have an unspoken amount of support. The generosity of this community created a foundation for Archer to grow upon. Some supported from a distance. Some shared with us their personal connection to the cause. Some were able to come to the event last Friday at Beaverhead Brewery. An event that had soul, a belief in Archer's will to climb the mountains on his journey. Once again, thank you, and please continue to uphold Archer in your thoughts and prayers.
