2015 Legislative Actions

By: MJ

On May 13, 2015 the Dillonite Daily printed Representative Welborn's Final Weekly Review. Welborn speaks of the prominent "Infrastructure Bill - SB 416" that he supported. Obviously there were concerns about parts of the bill as it was supported and rejected by elected officials on both sides of the isle. Why are representatives and others using the press as a tool to target, discredit and debase people that voted against the bill? This is sandbox play and uncalled for. The vote has been taken - time to move on. Question: What is the reasoning behind representatives getting the press to publish articles on the infrastructure bill?

CSKT Water Contract bill was another argumentative bill supported by Welborn that passed. Welborn stated in his article that the vast majority of farmers and ranchers he communicated with were in favor of the bill. Question: Was the majority 2-10-20-50... The word majority is an emotional feel good word, however it is a word that gives no facts. Water is the most precious commodity we have and water rights have been an ongoing battle. Without water the repercussions are endless; businesses go broke, bankruptcies, people lose jobs, higher prices in grocery stores... Did the CSKT Water Contract sacrifice Western Montana water right holders and assure holders of water rights on the east side of the divide their water? CSKT was a complicated bill.

Following will be an article on HB-123 that directly effects the people while dealing with the government.

Dillon Junior Fiddler Show

Bringing their new show to Dillon audiences, the Dillon Junior fiddlers are performing for the benefit of the Beaverhead County Museum on May 28th at 7:00 at the Old Depot Theater. "On the Air with the Dillon Junior Fiddlers" harkens back to the days when radio shows were a major entertainment in most homes. Oliver Snordly, a zany radio announcer, will delight the audience with his commentary on a variety of fiddle groups who are scheduled in for the "Anytime, Anyplace Fiddle Show" on KPOP, Dillon's radio station, for the good times only. You will meet the kids who milk the cows at Delbert's Dairy and enjoy the lovely harmonies of the Singing Glory Gospel Group, among others. This is a show that will bring laughter and tears to the whole family. The opening night for this production was in April as a benefit for the Ravalli County Museum in Hamilton.

Tickets for the benefit are available at the Beaverhead County Museum and at the door the evening of the performance for $10 per person. All proceeds from the show will be given to the museum.

Attorney General Fox Announces $158 Million Mobile Cramming Settlements with Sprint and Verizon

National Mobile Cramming Settlements Now Total $353 Million
Attorney General Fox announced today that his Office of Consumer Protection—along with the Attorneys General of the other 49 States and the District of Columbia, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, and the Federal Communications Commission—reached settlements with Sprint Corporation ("Sprint") and Cellco Partnership d/b/a Verizon Wireless ("Verizon"), that include $158 million in payments, and that resolve allegations that Sprint and Verizon placed charges for third-party services on consumers' mobile telephone bills that were not authorized by the consumers, a practice known as "mobile cramming."

Consumers who have been "crammed" often have charges, typically $9.99 per month, for "premium" text message subscription services (also known as "PSMS" subscriptions) such as horoscopes, trivia, and sports scores that the consumers have never heard of or requested.

Sprint and Verizon are the third and fourth mobile telephone providers to enter into a nationwide settlement to resolve allegations regarding cramming. Attorney General Fox announced similar settlements with AT&T in October of 2014 ($105 million), and T-Mobile in December of 2014 ($90 million). All four mobile carriers announced they would cease billing customers for commercial PSMS in the fall of 2013.

"Two more mobile carriers will now have to make things right for consumers who were wrongfully charged for services they didn't want in the first place," said Attorney General Tim Fox.
"I encourage Montana's Sprint and Verizon customers who are eligible for refunds or credits to file claims, and I thank our Office of Consumer Protection for its diligent work in recovering a total of over $723,000 in settlement monies from mobile carriers since last year."

Under the terms of the settlements, Sprint will pay $68 million and Verizon will pay $90 million. Of these amounts, Sprint and Verizon are required to provide $50 million and $70 million, respectively, to consumers who were victims of cramming. Sprint and Verizon will each distribute refunds to harmed consumers through redress programs that will be under the supervision of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. Sprint will also pay $12 million to the Attorneys General and $6 million to the Federal Consumers can submit claims under the redress programs by visiting www.SprintRefundPSMS.com and/or www.CFPBSettlementVerizon.com. On those websites, consumers can submit claims, find information about refund eligibility and how to obtain a refund, and can request a free account summary that details PSMS purchases on their accounts. Consumers who have questions about the redress programs can visit the program websites or call the settlement administrators at: (877) 389-8787 (Sprint), and/or (888) 726-7063 (Verizon).

The settlements, like the settlements entered into by AT&T and T-Mobile in late 2014, require Sprint and Verizon to stay out of the commercial PSMS business—the platform to which law enforcement agencies attribute the lion's share of the mobile cramming problem. Under each of the four settlements, the carriers, including Sprint and Verizon, must also take a number of steps designed to ensure that they only bill consumers for third-party charges that have been authorized, including the following:

- The carriers must obtain consumers' express consent before billing consumers for third-party charges, and must ensure that consumers are only charged for services if the consumers have been informed of all material terms and conditions of their payment;
- The carriers must give consumers an opportunity to obtain a full refund or credit when they are billed for unauthorized third-party charges;
- The carriers must inform their customers when they sign up for services that their mobile phone can be used to pay for third-party charges, and must inform consumers of how those third-party charges can be blocked if the consumers do not want to use their phone to pay for third-party products; and
- The carriers must present third-party charges in a dedicated section of consumers' mobile phone bills, must clearly distinguish them from the carrier's own charges, and must include in that same section information about the consumers' ability to block
