Zoning Document (Parking)

By: MJ

If you are building a new construction, adding on to existing or changing use of buildings beware of all the added requirements of the city via the new zoning document. The old zoning document was withdrawn and replaced with a complete new one. A lawyer from Butte was an active participant in the construction of the new document and paid $8,000+/- that was collected from you via tax dollars and dispersed by the official leaders of city government in 2014.

Examples of some requirements: Chapter 17:48 outlines the requirement for parking for residential and commercial areas. The design of off-street parking shall primarily be the responsibility of the property owner and shall consider traffic circulation, required landscaping, pedestrian access and circulation. 1) Required parking spaces shall be located to preclude stacking along with many more requirements. 2) Permanent parking spaces and driveways shall be paved, have asphalt or approved pavers, a grading and drainage plan approved by the city... 3) Snow removal storage areas shall be provided sufficient to store snow accumulation on site. 4) All residential occupancies shall provide required off-street parking spaces. 5) Parking spaces required for; 1 bedroom home = 1.5, 2 bedroom = 2, three bedroom=3... 6) Off-site parking can be utilized if approved by city officials and provide evidence of a long-term lease agreement, only revocable with the City Council approval.

Beaverhead Conservation District Tidbit

What is a conservation district? Conservation districts are units of local government designed to help citizens conserve their soil, water, and other renewable natural resources. They were organized in the 1930s as a response to the "Dust Bowl." In 1937, President Roosevelt encouraged Montana to adopt legislation enabling the creation of local soil conservation districts. Today, there are almost 3000 conservation districts nationwide, and their conservation activities encompass a wide spectrum of natural resource issues. The State of Montana passed legislation creating its conservation districts in 1939 to provide for local control of natural resource management programs and activities. Montana's 58 conservation districts cover all counties and include more than 70 municipalities included within district boundaries.

Montana's CDs are political subdivisions of the state and are governed by a board of five supervisors elected by local voters in a general election. In addition, a municipality that has chosen to be incorporated into a district may appoint up to two urban supervisors to represent urban interests on the board. The Beaverhead Conservation District has two urban supervisors, one each representing Dillon and Lima. This combination of officials representing diverse views has a relatively broad scope of authorities.

Because of their unique characteristics and proven track record, CDs have been entrusted by the state with mandated activities such as implementation of the 310 Law, water reservations, stream access portage routes, county planning board participation, and local Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL) consultation. Also, CDs serve as the local point of contact for numerous federal programs. This is all in addition to the long-standing CD roles such as educating landowners about sound conservation practices, working closely with local watershed groups, tree planting and organizing outdoor classroom educational activities for school children.

For more information about your local conservation district please feel free to go to a monthly meeting held the third Thursday of the month at 7:00 pm at the USDA Service Center Conference Room, visit the website at www.beaverheadcd.org or call the office at 406-683-3802.

The Butte/Jefferson Ranger District will be hosting an open house regarding the proposed Boulder Lowlands Vegetation Management Project located north of Butte. The open house will be held Thurs., May 21 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Forest Service Office in Butte located at 1820 Meadowlark Lane. Project team members will be on hand to provide information and answer questions.

The goal of the Boulder Lowlands project is to increase the resiliency of the area to insect and disease infestation and reduce the risk of wildfire to local communities and surrounding lands (federal, state and private). To move in this direction, approximately 1,913 acres of thinning, salvage, and prescribed fire are being proposed for commercial and non-commercial treatment. Additional treatment of riparian areas associated with aspen would remove conifers to reverse their encroachment and reduce overtopping and competition.

In 2011 planning efforts began when a collaborative group formulated ideas for actions in the project area. The Forest Service has been working with the "Beaverhead-Deerlodge Working Group" to identify and develop approaches for desired vegetation and fuels conditions in this area. In 2014 the Beaverhead-Deerlodge Working Group provided recommendations to the Governor for landscape-scale treatment areas in response to the Farm Bill insect and disease designation requirement. The Boulder Lowlands project area is located within the recommended treatment areas.

COMMENT PERIOD EXTENDED ON TENDY SHEEP DEPOPULATION PROPOSAL

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks (FWP) has extended the public comment period related to a proposal to depopulate the Tendoy Mountains bighorn sheep herd to May 22.

The proposed action to completely remove this chronically diseased herd and restock with healthy animals is detailed in the environmental assessment released last month. It can be viewed here: http://fwp.mt.gov/news/publicNotices/environmentalAssessments/speciesRemovalAndRelocation/pn_0070.html

In short, if approved, FWP would use public hunting to remove the estimated 30-40 bighorn sheep in the herd (which could take up to two years). Bighorn sheep in the Tendoy have experienced two significant pneumonia die-offs in the last 25 years (1993 and 1999). The population has been augmented three times in those same 25 years, but the population has struggled greatly to rebound with disease likely being carried by some of the surviving sheep.

The public is invited to comment on the proposal until 5 p.m. on May 22, 2015. Written comments can be mailed to Montana FWP, Tendoy Bighorn Sheep Comments, 1400 South 19th, Bozeman, MT 59718-5496 or emailed to tendoybighorncomment@mt.gov.
