Pima Medical Institute to Offer Only Veterinary Technician and Vet Assistant Programs in Montana

New Collaboration with the University of Montana Western Makes Courses Possible

Pima Medical Institute is proud to announce the introduction of a veterinary technician associate degree and veterinary assistant certificate in collaboration with the University of Montana Western. Classes begin in November.

Pima Medical Institute – founded in 1972 in Tucson, Ariz. – offers both the degree and certificate at several of its campuses, including in Arizona, Colorado, California, Colorado, Texas, Nevada and Washington State. Pima Medical also offers other certificate, associate and bachelor's degrees in multiple healthcare-related specialties at its many campuses and through its online education.

No other educational institutions in Montana offer a veterinary technician associate degree or a veterinary assistant certificate.

"Students will come from all over the state and beyond to attend these programs," said Pima Medical Institute Chief Executive Officer and President, Fred Freedman. "This new partnership with the University of Montana Western is strategic in that all parties benefit from the relationship, especially the students."

Students who enroll in the veterinary technician associate degree or veterinary assistant certificate program will have access to a state-of-the-art learning facility, study under instructors with years of professional experience and have access to the university's facilities, such as housing, dining and recreation.

"There's already huge interest in these programs," said University of Montana Western Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Karl Ulrich. "Many of our equine studies students are interested in the programs our collaboration will create as a way to enhance their education."

With more than 2.5 million head of cattle and an estimated $1.4 billion in annual livestock sales, it only makes sense to increase the number of highly trained veterinary technicians and veterinary assistants within the state of MT.

"Currently I have to go out of state to recruit vet techs," said Dr. Rick Scherr, chairman for the Montana Veterinary Medical Association's Vet Tech Board and founder of Big Sky Animal Medical Center in Great, Falls, Mont. "I often fly to Denver to recruit techs because there aren't any in Montana. It's a problem for veterinarians across the state. Adding these programs will really help to fill that gap."

In order to enroll in the veterinary technician associate degree program, students must have finished Pima Medical's veterinary assistant certificate program first. Both programs combined are approximately 18 months in length. Veterinary technician students learn how to become veterinary nurses. The curriculum focuses on animal behavior and care, surgical assisting, laboratory testing and nursing procedures.

The veterinary assistant certificate is an approximately seven-month program that trains students to be skilled in providing post-operative animal care, surgical assistance, teeth cleaning, medication administration, blood draws, lab work and much more.

"We need highly trained people in these roles," Ulrich said. "Pima Medical has played a vital role in making these programs a reality."

Both programs will allow students to work with small and large animals in a newly equipped facility on the University of Montana Western's campus. Students who enroll will be eligible to live on campus, use the university's facilities, such as the library and gym, and get meals on campus.

In addition, Pima Medical students will work with the Beaverhead Animal Shelter in Dillon to provide animals with services such as spaying and neutering, dental cleanings and lab work. Pima Medical often works with a city's shelters and humane societies, resulting in a greater level of animal care and increased adoption rates.

Beaverhead Animal Shelter's director, Susie Brown, is excited to start the partnership with Pima Medical students. The shelter has on average 150 animals a day that are brought in from four counties and beyond.

"It doesn't matter what it is - a dog, cat, horse, pig, hamster - we take it. We provide a lot of care for these animals, but naturally it takes funding. This partnership with Pima Medical will really help," Brown said. "Students will get hands-on experience working with animals, and the animals will get the care they need."

DILLON CUBS HANDLE BANDITS

The Dillon Cubs handled the Belgrade Bandits with a 8-1 win last Thursday. Nate Simkins pitched eight good innings with the Bandits getting their only run at the beginning of the game.

The Cubs had help from the five errors that the Bandits committed and they capitalized on them. Logan Wilson and Nick Huber each had two RBI's. R.J. Fitzgerald got on by a hit to the pitcher who then had a wild throw to second that advanced Jamey Richardson and put runners on second and third. Wilson got Jamey in on a sacrifice fly and Fitzgerald came in on a wild pitch.

Belgrade had a pair of stranded runners in the 5th and 6th innings but could not get the job done against the defense of the Cubs.

CUBS DO IT ALL FOR WIN AGAINST HELENA

The Dillon Cubs played a doubleheader against the Helena Reps on Friday in Helena. They had great leadership from Logan Wilson who pitched a complete game and drove in two runs to lead the team to a 4-3 victory for the first game that saw several errors from both teams. The Reps left runners stranded in the 7th inning that could have tied the game but couldn't get the job done at that important point of the game.

Mark Waldrup had two RBIs in the game driving in Kohltin Starkel in the second inning and Nick Huber doubled in the sixth inning then made to third on a wild pitch and came in for the winning run by Waldrup's single to center. Jamey Richardson came across the plate with the help from teammate Wilson's hit in the third inning.

The team had hitting, pitching and defense, all they needed for the games with some help from 8 errors that Helena made in the two games. The defense helped Nick Huber in the second game take the win 7-4. The Cubs had three runs in the top of the second drove in by Nate Simkins, Jamey Richardson and R.J. Fitzgerald.

Waldrup had an RBI single and Simkins had a sacrifice fly to get the swing going their direction and they held on to that to finish the game.

Range Monitoring Workshop

Montana State University Extension Service in conjunction with the Dillon Forest Service and the Beaverhead Conservation District are hosting a range monitoring clinic on June 25th at 1:00 pm in the Big Sheep Creek area on the co-managed Pine Creek BLM/Forest Service allotment. All are welcome to attend this event. Those interested in attending may meet at the Forest Service office in Dillon at 11:30 am or the Dell exit at 12:00 pm.

Jeff Mosley from the MSU Extension Service will discuss how, when, where, and why to monitor grazing for both short term and long term assessment. It is vital for land managers to keep record of land use. Permittee and landowner monitoring is becoming more and more important as multiple use stakeholders take a closer look at land use. This monitoring is becoming a vital component that is helping to allow continued responsible grazing on public lands especially as sensitive species such as sage grouse, Arctic grayling, and west slope cutthroat become a larger concern. For more information or a detailed agenda contact Katie Bonogofsky, Dillon Ranger District 683-3959 or Jamie Cottom, Beaverhead Conservation District 683-3802 or beaverheadcd@gmail.com.
