Attorney General Tim Fox Offers Consumer Protection Tips to Military Families

Today is Third Annual National Military Consumer Protection Day

Attorney General Tim Fox is marking National Military Consumer Protection Day today by offering specialized tips to help protect active and retired military personnel and their families from consumer fraud.

"The men and women who bravely serve in our military forces protect our country and its citizens from threats across the globe," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "Unfortunately, they can still become the victims of identity theft, scams, bad lending practices, and other criminal behaviors during the time they are deployed, when they are back on U.S. soil, and after they have retired from military service. Fortunately, there are a variety of easy-to-use tools and strategies that can be employed to help protect our servicemen and women," Attorney General Fox added.

The Attorney General offered these tips for military members and their families to avoid scams and fraud:

- Set up an 'Active Duty Alert' if you're deployed and don't expect to open a new line of credit, such as a car loan, mortgage, or a new credit card. The Active Duty Alert requires creditors to take additional steps to verify your identity before allowing new credit in your name. Active Duty Alerts last for terms of one year, but can be renewed. To set one up, call the fraud department of any of the three credit reporting agencies, or fill out an Active Duty Alert form online. The credit reporting agency you initially alert is then responsible for contacting the other two credit reporting companies.
- Be wary of military-targeted scams such as online postings offering too-good-to-be-true housing rental prices for military personnel, con artists impersonating government contractor recruiters, or scammers pretending to be representatives from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

- Tip 1: never wire money for a housing security deposit and consider utilizing the Department of Defense sponsored Automated Housing Referral Network to find a home.
- Tip 2: Don't share any personal account or identity information someone who contacted you first. Instead, hang up and call the VA directly and ask them if the VA has been trying to contact you. Do this even if the email address or caller ID says Veterans Affairs. Scammers can manipulate e-mail addresses and caller I.D. to make them look legitimate.
- Tip 3: Never hand over identification documents until you have met with a potential employer at their company location during regular work hours.

- Access your benefits through the VA. Some scammers try to charge veterans for services they can get for free elsewhere, like getting copies of their military record, or applying to receive benefits. However, applying for benefits is always free through the Veterans Benefits Administration.
  - o Tip: Don't share any personal information with anyone who contacts you about accessing your veteran's benefits. Instead, call the Veterans Benefits Administration directly so you know you're working with a legitimate representative.

DILLON AREA FALL 2015 HUNTER EDUCATION COURSE

The fall Hunter Education course will be held at the Dillon Middle School on August 17, 18, 19, 20, 21 from 9 am - 12 pm. The Field Day will be held on Saturday, August 22, from 9 am - 12 pm at the Dillon Rifle and Pistol Club Range. In order to successfully complete the Hunter Education course students must attend ALL 5 classroom sessions, pass a written test and attend the field day.

To register for the Hunter Education course students must be registered on the Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks website, fwp.mt.gov, for the Dillon class. Hunter Education courses are found under the "Education" tab. A parental"Acknowledgement of Risk" form and a "Student Code of Conduct" form must be downloaded, completed and handed in on August 17. Students will not be admitted to class if these forms are not completed and handed in at the first class.

Students are required to read the first three chapters and answer the quiz questions of the Montana hunter Education Manual prior to August 17. The manual can be obtained from the Dillon Public Library or Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks office, 730 North Montana St. Students will not be admitted to the class if the assignment is not completed.

Parents are welcome to attend the classes and field day. For parents attending the field day, they are reminded that they must furnish their own eye and ear protection. This is a normal safety precaution for the shooting range and must be complied with.

We hope this course will be successful for all students and they enjoy a safe and rich hunting experience this fall.

For further information on Hunter Education please call Kerry Wahl 490-0956; Craig Fager 683-9305 or Don Darling 683-5088.

Seeking Public Input on Elk Hunting Seasons

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking public comment on proposed guidelines to establish elk hunting seasons before or after the existing archery and general rifle seasons.

The additional seasons, called elk shoulder seasons, would be used where needed to reduce elk populations. "We're looking at what tools we can implement to get elk numbers down in districts where we are over population objectives" said Ken McDonald FWP's Wildlife Division Administrator. A shoulder season could run from Aug. 15 to Feb. 15 outside the five- week general season.

Comments will be taken until 5 p.m., Aug. 10. To see the proposal and comment, visit the FWP website at fwp.mt.gov Click "Submit Public Comments", then click "Hunting & Trapping"

Written comments also will be accepted at:

Community Heroes star in Summer Reading Program

Summer readers will be introduced to community heroes in the regular summer reading program on Thursday, July 16th at 10:00 a.m. in front of the Old Depot Theatre. Representatives from the Dillon Volunteer Fire Department, Beaverhead Search and Rescue, Dillon Police Department and the Emergency Medical Technicians from the Beaverhead Ambulance Service will all be present to educate the children on the various jobs that they do. Children will have an opportunity for an inside view of emergency vehicles; learn about the important way each of those organizations contribute to the safety of our community and will be able to have all their questions answered. Following the program, the children will be given an opportunity to craft a hero's hat of their choosing.

It is not too late for children to sign-up to participate in Dillon Public Library's "Every Hero Has a Story" Summer Reading Program. Stop by the Library any time and library staff will assist you with the sign-up process and explain the program to you. There are still two more weeks full of activities for the children participating in this program. All Dillon Public Library programs are free and open to the public. Children younger than 5 must be accompanied by a parent or caregiver.

Attorney General Fox Urges Congress to Preserve Authority to Enforce State Data Breach and Data Security Laws

Joins Multistate Letter against Federal Preemption of States' Ability to Legislate and Enforce Laws that Protect Consumers from Data Breaches and Identity Theft

Joining a bipartisan effort to ensure that any future federal data breach notification or data security law is effective and provides consumers with the best protection, Attorney General Tim Fox today joined a multistate letter to the U.S. Congress emphasizing the importance of maintaining states' authority to enforce data breach and data security laws, and their ability to enact laws to address future data security risks.

Citing recent efforts in Congress to pass a national law on data breach notification and data security, AG Fox, joined by 46 other attorneys general, cautions against federal preemption of state data breach and security law and argues that any federal law must not diminish the important role states already play protecting consumers from data breaches and identity theft, especially in states like Massachusetts whose laws provide greater protections than federal counterparts.

Attorney General Fox said, "One of our top priorities in the recent legislative session was the passage of HB 74 (Rep. Ryan Lynch – Butte), which requires that notice be given to my office when a consumer data breach has occurred. This new law gives us a better sense of the scope of identity theft in Montana, and might also identify businesses which have lax security practices. This is important, because while notification at the federal level might make sense for nationwide breaches, it wouldn't work for breaches that only impact one state or region." Attorney General Fox added, "Our Office of Consumer Protection needs to have the ability to enforce these laws, now and in the future."

The letter points out a number of concerns with federal preemption of state data breach and security laws, including:

- Data breaches and identity theft continue to cause significant harm to consumers. Since 2005, nearly 5,000 data breaches have compromised more than 815 million records containing sensitive information about consumers – primarily financial account information, Social Security numbers or medical information. Full-blown identity theft involving the use of a Social Security number can cost a consumer $5,100 on average.
- Data security vulnerabilities are too common. States frequently encounter circumstances where data breach incidents result from the failure by data collectors to reasonably protect the sensitive data entrusted to them by consumers, putting consumers' personal information at unnecessary risk. Many of these breaches could have been prevented if the data collector had taken reasonable steps to secure consumers' data.

- States play an important role responding to data breaches and identity theft. The States have been at the frontlines in helping consumers deal with the repercussions of a data breach, providing important assistance to consumers who have been impacted by data breaches or who suffer identity theft or fraud as a result, and investigating the causes of data breaches to determine whether the data collector experiencing the breach had reasonable data security in place. Forty-seven states now have laws requiring data collectors to notify consumers when their personal information has been compromised by a data breach, and a number of states have also passed laws requiring companies to adopt reasonable data security practices.

The letter urges Congress to preserve existing protections under state law, ensure that states can continue to enforce breach notification requirements under their own state laws and enact new laws to respond to new data security threats, and to not hinder states that are helping their residents by preempting state data breach and security laws.

In 2005, 44 state attorneys general wrote a similar letter to Congress calling for a national law on breach notification that did not preempt state enforcement or state law.

Today's letter, co-sponsored by Arkansas, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts and Nebraska, was also joined by the following states and territories: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Northern Mariana Islands, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and West Virginia. The letter is available here: https://dojmt.gov/wp-content/uploads/Final-NAAG-Data-Breach-Notification-Letter-07-07-15.pdf
