Bulldog football benefits from guest coach

The University of Montana Western football team had a very special guest coach during their fall camp and two-a-days session. A guest coach with a head coaching stint at a Junior College, experience at five NCAA Division 1 schools and more than 25 years of professional coaching, 22 in the National Football League and four in the Canadian Football League.

George Dyer, is referred to as "Coach" by those who knew, spent the better part of three weeks on the practice fields and in the film rooms with the players and coaches of the Bulldog football team.

Coach Dyer's resume is full of big name schools, working with big name coaches, and winning the biggest game of them all; an NFL World Championship, the Super Bowl.

Although reaching the pinnacle of your respective sport as a coach never has an easy road, or a straight road for that matter. Dyer made a lot of pit stops on his way to the top, all of which helped form him into the coach and person that he is today; hard-nosed, hard-working, full of knowledge, and a great teacher. Dyer, who hails from San Gabriel, CA, played college football at Mount San Antonio junior college in Walnut, CA., before transferring to finish his playing career at the University of California-Santa Barbra.

After graduating from UC-Santa Barbra, Dyer coached at Humboldt State University, where he earned a Master's degree in Physical Education.

Humboldt State was Dyer's first of many stops on his road to the Super Bowl. Dyer coached at all of the following schools: Head Coach (HC) at Colinga College, now West Hills College, Defensive Coordinator (DC) at Portland State, Defensive Line coach (DL) at the University of Idaho, Linebackers coach (LB) at San Jose State, Dyer then took a small hiatus from college football and served as the DC for the professional Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the CFL, he returned to the college ranks as the LB coach then DC at Michigan State, and the DC at Arizona State before starting a 22-year stint in the NFL.

Dyer began his NFL coaching career with the Buffalo Bills in 1982, where he worked under head coach Chuck Knox, the duo spent one season in Buffalo. Following the 1982 season Dyer followed Knox to the Seattle Seahawks, where they made four playoff appearances and won an AFC West divisional title in 1988. Dyer spent eight seasons in Seattle as the defensive line coach, three with the LA Rams as the defensive coordinator and 13 overall as an assistant coach with Knox before parting ways after the 1994 season.

"Chuck is and was one of the true 'real' coaches of the NFL," stated Dyer, "he was tough, hard-nosed, a great coach, and a great man."

Following his tenure with Chuck Knox, Dyer joined Mike Shanahan with the Denver Broncos as the defensive line coach. During his time with the Denver Broncos, Dyer was a part of two Super Bowl championship teams in 1997 and 1998, and had five playoff appearances.

Coach Dyer on being a Super Bowl champion, "winning the Super Bowl was great, the greatest coaching achievement."

Dyer spent 8 seasons as an assistant coach under Mike Shanahan in Denver, his final as Assistant to the Head Coach.

Dyer's final season in the NFL was in 2003 with the Lions.

After an eight-year break from coaching, Dyer returned to the CFL as the defensive line coach for the Toronto Argonauts in 2010 and 2011, where he coached CFL all-star Kevin Huntley.

During Dyer's coaching career, he had the privilege of coaching hundreds of professional athletes; watching them come into the league as young 21-year old kids, getting married, starting families, and retire. Some of the notable players he mentioned having great relationships with were; Jacob Green a two-time Pro Bowl selection and over 100 career sacks, Joe Nash a Pro Bowl selection and Jeff Bryant who recorded 63 career sacks, all were with Dyer all nine seasons in Seattle. There were three players in Denver that Dyer made connections with as well, All-Pro and Pro Bowl selection Alfred William, two-time Super Bowl champion Keith Traylor and two-time sack leader and Super Bowl champion Ma'a Tanuvasa.

Coach Dyer brought a wealth of knowledge to the Montana Western football team and coaching staff. He first connected with Western in the early 1990's, through head coach Bob Beers, he originally met Beers at the University of Montana.

Current head football coach BJ Robertson was introduced to Dyer through Beers, who then invited him back to Western to help out with the team.

2015 is the second straight year that Dyer has been to Western to help out with fall camp.

The thing that means the most to Dyer about being at Montana Western is being able to be around the game and more importantly, being with the kids.

Coach Dyer's season outlook for the 2015 Montana Western football team,

"I think they are going to be really good, I don't think there is anyone they can't beat," said Dyer, "they have to stay healthy and have a little bit of luck and they will have a good chance to be special."

Despite the many places that Dyer has lived and coached, he has always had his family to go home to. George and his wife of 51 years, Marj, have three daughters and two sons who have gifted them with 14 grandchildren. Dyer explained that his bond with his grandchildren is much different than the relationship with his children. He could have tough love with his children, but no one can mess with his grandchildren.
