Forest Service Reminds Hunters To Store Food, Attractants and Animal Carcasses Safely

In recent years many public lands in Montana, including the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest, have implemented Food Storage Orders that affect hunting practices and how hunters set up camp. The Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest would like to share some tips for storing food, attractants and carcasses to help hunters develop good habits as bear populations expand.

- Bring your animal carcass home or to the butcher while you finish your hunting trip if you live within driving distance. If you're from out of town, some businesses offer storage for carcasses. There are many butchers, outfitters or other businesses with walk-in freezers can provide space to hunters.
- Plan for animal carcass storage while camping. Bring storage for the carcass for example, in the form of a truck with topper, enclosed trailer, horse trailer with full doors, or certified bear resistant containers. If you use hang poles, the carcass must hang ten feet high at its lowest point and four feet away from climbable supports and must be 100 yards away from your camp. You may also want to bring pulleys and ropes to help hoist your carcass between trees.
- Pack a tarp or strong plastic sheet to gut your animal in case you down your game near a trail or need to leave your carcass overnight. Gut piles are the most attractive to bears and other scavengers. If you use a tarp or plastic sheet to drag the gut pile away from your animal you may avoid finding a bear on your carcass in the morning. You must drag gut piles at least 200 yards from National Forest system trail to help prevent trail users from surprising a bear feeding on it.

- Don't hang or butcher your animal in camp. Blood on the ground is a powerful attractant to bears and other scavengers.

- When retrieving game, leave a member of your party to "attend" the carcass if possible.

- Borrow bear-resistant containers for FREE from your local Forest Service office. There are a variety of items from coolers to panniers to backpack barrels. Please call ahead to find out what is available at each office.

- Take advantage of the permanent food storage boxes in many of the Forest Service campgrounds for your food and other attractants.

- When in doubt, call your local Forest Service or MT Fish, Wildlife and Parks office. They are happy to help you plan your trip and troubleshoot any attractant storage concerns. Be aware that Montana State Wildlife Management Areas have similar requirements.

Remember that all attractants must be acceptably stored at night and attended or acceptably stored during the day. Carcasses or partial carcasses may only be left on the ground if they are one-half mile away from any sleeping area and 200 yards from any Forest Service system trail.

The Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest instituted a forest-wide order on June 1, 2014 which is in effect from March 1 through December 1 annually. The storage requirements and tips can be viewed online at: http://www.fs.usda.gov/Internet/FSE_DOCUMENTS/stelprd3844391.pdf. For more information contact your local Forest Service office.

YOU'RE BRAIN:

By: MJ

Your brain is a thinking organ that learns and grows by interacting with the world through perception and action. Mental stimulation improves brain function and actually protects against cognitive decline, as does physical exercise.

The human brain is able to continually adapt and rewire itself. Even in old age, it can grow new neurons. Severe mental decline is usually caused by disease, whereas most age-related losses in memory or motor skills simply result from inactivity and a lack of mental exercise and stimulation. In other words, use it or lose it.

Furthermore, the five-year study at the Laval University in Sainte-Foy, Quebec suggests that the more a person exercises the greater the protective benefits for the brain, particularly in women.

Life's Too Serious

By: Joe Barnhart

This fantastic news just in: "The Y chromosome is safe." A few years back, Australian Professor Jennifer Graves suggested the Y chromosome might become extinct soon, possibly in the next five million years. I suspect she never married and smelled of gin. Well, needless to say, news of ol' Y going bye-bye led to erratic male behavior including baseball cap hoarding.

Thank heavens Dr. Jennifer Hughes of the Whitehead Institute (motto: Zits R Us), after an exhaustive study involving shaven chimps in polyester suits, confirmed, without a doubt, "The Y is not going anywhere." Reassuring; don't you know it. Especially after decades of men browbeaten into finding their feminine sides and crying openly at Little League Baseball games.

Remember chromosomes from high school Biology class? Neither do I. But surprisingly, there are 23 pairs including one sex pair of which females have XX and males XY. The Y chromosome plays the crucial job of testes development and male hormone secretion. Of course, whenever my high school Biology teacher noted these facts us guys would slug each other and wiggle like we were going to wet ourselves. I'm sure your class was more sophisticated.

But if the "Y" vanished, so would the amazing male body; a fascinating collection of gadgets, levers and buttons jammed into one finely tuned machine. For example, watching a college football game, I ingested the following: a 20oz. bottle of chocolate milk, buttered popcorn, Sugar Babies, two bottles of a chilled wheat ale, chocolate covered raisins, more popcorn, a Hostess Cherry fruit pie (warmed), and ... okay, maybe I lost count of the wheat ales. I got home, slept soundly and upon rising, had a regular bowel movement.

This is possible because the Y chromosome emits a unique hormone whereby eating volumes of garbage means absolutely nothing. In contrast, women can't stomach such bottom-feeding techniques except when attending Greek baby showers.

To lose the Y chromosome would be tragic; crippling light beer advancement as we know it. So, guys, for the sake of future generations, strengthen your "Ys" by practicing these classic behaviors:

* Without covering your mouth belch in public. While

* Reveal plenty of butt cleavage while bending over. Any plumbing project is a great place to start.

* Lift the lid, "do your thing," then saunter back to breakfast without a care.

* Scratch like there's no tomorrow. Hey, some areas just itch more.

* Parade openly in scraggy sweat pants which, for all intents and purposes, make underwear obsolete. Deodorant? Why bother?!

I get goose bumps envisioning men everywhere in control of our own chromosome destiny. Bright horizons where we can slug each other, drink chocolate milk, spit, and tell bladder-bloating secretion stories to our grandsons.

HUNTER, BOWHUNTER EDUCATION INSTRUCTORS NEEDED IN DILLON

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking volunteer instructors for its hunter and bowhunter education programs in the Dillon area. Currently, there are no bowhunter education instructors for the Dillon community for 2016, so bowhunters are especially encouraged to apply.

Hunter and bowhunter education are state mandated courses which are taught by dedicated volunteers. Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking more of these dedicated men and women to help serve these areas. Anyone who is at least twelve years old is eligible to apply.

The heart of Montana's Hunter and Bowhunter Education programs is the corps of dedicated volunteer instructors. They stand as examples of how each hunter should demonstrate ethics, behavior and responsibility to themselves, landowners, other hunters and the resource.

These instructors choose to honor Montana's hunting heritage and "Pass it On" by sharing their skills, experiences and their love of hunting and Montana's vast resources with those new to hunting and the outdoor adventure.

For information on becoming a hunter or bowhunter education instructor, please call Sara Smith in the FWP Helena Region Information and Education Office at (406) 444-9948 or visit <http://fwp.mt.gov/education/hunter/instructors/> to learn more and apply.
