Diversity of Flora and Vegetation

"The Calypso Chapter of the Montana Native Plant Society presents:

Please gather for a talk by Dr. Robert Pal, chapter member and new faculty member in the Biology Department at Montana Tech. Dr. Pal's talk, entitled Diversity of Flora and Vegetation in Hungary, will be at 7:00 PM on Tuesday, October 27, 2015 in Room 102 (not 101, as usual) of the Chemistry/Biology (CBB) Building on the Montana Tech campus. Enter on the north side, across the little bridge. All are welcome, hope to see you there."

DANCES WITH WORDS FALL SERIES BEGINS AT MONTANA WESTERN

The first installment in the 2015 fall series of Dances with Words will feature Montana Tech professor Henry Gonshak and his new book, "Hollywood and the Holocaust."

The reading will take place at The Cup located in the basement of the Swysgood Technology Center on the UMW campus on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

"Hollywood and the Holocaust" offers an important look at Hollywood's ongoing representations of the Holocaust aimed at a general readership not usually addressed by volumes on this subject.

Gonshak said the book is a study of the portrayal of the Holocaust in Hollywood films from the World War II era to the present. It includes chapters on thirty films, arranged chronologically, beginning in 1940 with Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" and concluding with Quentin Tarantino's 2009 film "Inglourious Basterds."

In 2000, Gonshak was awarded the Rose and Anna Busch Endowed Professorship for excellence in teaching, research and scholarship, an endowment he still holds.

Gonshak was awarded a Fulbright scholarship to spend a year teaching at the University of Wroclaw in Poland.

Gonshak is an English professor in the Liberal Studies program at Montana Tech. He teaches courses in college writing, British literature, Holocaust studies, creative writing, gay literature, Shakespearean drama, introduction to literature and sports literature. He also teaches in the honors program at Montana Tech.

In addition to his work at Montana Tech, Gonshak also reviews books and local theater for "The Montana Standard."

Next in the Dances with Words fall series will be a short story reading from UMW Chancellor Dr. Beth Weatherby on Dec. 2, 2015. Weatherby has an extensive background as a short story writer and won a Minnesota Book Award in 1997 for her collection of short stories.

Letter to the Editor

Recently I noticed in our local newspaper that law officers arrested eight people in seven days for drug abuse but no one was arrested for selling drugs. I wonder why?

In my experience, drug users aren't the brightest people yet they can easily find a drug dealer yet our law officials can never seem to find one. Why?

It's nice to know now that marijuana is now legal and our highway speed limit is increased we will have potheads driving our highways eighty mph or more and talking on their cell phones. A real comforting situation isn't it?

MONTANA WESTERN STUDENT PRESENTS WILD MUSTANGS EXPERIENCE

Montana Western natural horsemanship student Kelly Wieman recently spoke to Dillon, Montana's local Rotary Club about her experience observing Montana's wild mustangs.

Wieman first participated in the Pryor Mountain study class last summer in which she and other natural horsemanship students went to the Pryor Mountains in southeastern Montana to camp and observe mustang herd behaviors.

"It was a fascinating experience that I never imagined possible," Wieman said. "By watching those horses I was better able to understand my own horse and greatly improve my horsemanship skills."

This past summer Wieman went to the Pryor Mountains again, but this time as an employee. When she came back, Montana Western's Foundation executive director and member of the local Rotary Club, Roxanne Engellant, asked Wieman to present to the rotary club as a guest speaker.

Wieman explained the uniqueness of the Pryor mustangs, in that they're descendants of escaped Spanish mustangs from hundreds of years ago, and not the more recent wild horses which are mostly escapees from ranches.

"I was honored to be asked to present my experience with the Pryor mustangs to the rotary club," Wieman said. "It was a wonderful way for me to connect to the local community and for them to see how Montana Western's Experience One program has allowed me to fashion my learning to fit my unique individual goals so I can thrive and succeed in my field."

In addition to her natural horsemanship studies, Wieman is an intern in the university relations and marketing department, where she is an integral part of communicating UMW's innovative brand.

"Natural horsemanship has opened so many doors for me and allowed me to grow in countless ways. If it wasn't for the smallness of this school and the encouraging nature of its community, I never would have joined the university relations department and found my niche as a writer, photographer, graphic designer and videographer," Wieman said.

Greater Yellowstone Coordinating Committee Continues Public Conversation

The Greater Yellowstone Coordinating Committee (GYCC) will host a public meeting Wednesday, November 4, 2015 beginning at 1:00 PM at Hotel Terra in Teton Village, Wyo.

The GYCC is a group of eleven federal land managers who work together to manage more than 15 million acres of public land in Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming.

GYCC managers are inviting the public to join them for an open session that will serve to continue the conversations and dialogue started at previous meetings held in Bozeman, Montana as well as Cody and Jackson, Wyoming.

During the "Continuing the Conversation" portion of the meeting, several managers will provide an overview of the feedback provided by the public from the three recent public conversations and GYCC's proposed next steps. Members of the public will be encouraged to ask questions and provide additional thoughts on how GYCC can better engage the public and effectively communicate the great work of the subcommittees, as well as the accomplishments, issues, and challenges of GYCC land management agencies. A draft agenda is available at: <http://fedgycc.org/meetings-and-events>.

The public session will also provide updates from GYCC subcommittees and will highlight collaborative native fish restoration efforts in Shoshone National Forest and Yellowstone National Park. The afternoon session will close with a highly anticipated presentation by David Quammen, the sole author of the May 2016 Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem National Geographic Magazine. A question and answer session with David will follow.

All are welcome. For more information please contact Acting Executive Coordinator Bianca Klein at Bianca_Klein@nps.gov.

NOTICE FROM THE BEAVERHEAD COUNTY ROAD DEPARTMENT

Beginning on Tuesday, November 3, 2015, the Beaverhead County Road Department will place a temporary bridge over Bridge #1 at the bottom of Big Sheep Creek Road.

There will be traffic delays for approximately twenty (20) minutes throughout the length of the project.

For questions, please call the Commissioners at 683-3750 or the County Road office at 683-3780.

GRAD HONORED AMONG NATION'S TOP PRINCIPALS

Montana Western alumnus W.H. Aaron Griffin is among 59 outstanding elementary and middle school principals from across the nation.

Griffin was recently named a 2015 National Distinguished Principal by the National Association of Elementary School Principals. He is a principal at Frenchtown Elementary School in Frenchtown, Mont.

The school was recently named "Best Public Elementary School" in the state of Montana by the Niche ranking company.

He is credited with the implementation of a teacher mentoring program in which new teachers receive training in behavior, curriculum content and other topics from a grade-level mentor teacher.

Griffin was nominated by for the NDP award by teachers at Frenchtown Elementary, who cite his commitment to his students and inclusive administrative style as reasons for the nomination.

"Every day I make a point to visit each class at least twice and show the students unconditional positive regard," said Griffin. "For the students to know that I am committed to their success and well-being makes a tremendous difference in their education and lives."

A Montana native who grew up in the Bitterroot Valley, Griffin intentionally stayed in Montana to work as an educator and improve upon Montana's public schools.

"We're extremely proud to have Aaron Griffin as an alumnus of Montana Western," said Chancellor Beth Weatherby. "He is a shining example of the high quality educators UMW has been producing for many years who go on to better the lives of students throughout Montana."

Griffin was honored for his achievements on Oct. 16, 2015 in Washington, D.C. at an awards banquet which included opening remarks by U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan.

Griffin has been a principal for a total of seven years and taught previously for thirteen years. Griffin is a member of several local and state organizations and a coach for Frenchtown's little league and basketball teams.

A 1994 graduate of then Western Montana College, now University of Montana Western, Griffin went on to earn a masters in education, and special education and superintendent endorsements from the University of Montana.

UMW TO HOST
 ANNUAL "HALL-O-WEEN"
 TRICK OR TREAT

University of Montana Western student tour guides will lead K-5th graders through the campus residence halls for trick or treating and a "haunted house," if they dare.

The campus haunting takes place on Oct. 28, 2015 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The annual "Hall-o-ween" is an opportunity for UMW students to connect with their community and have fun at the same time.

The residence halls will be decorated for Halloween and student volunteers will ensure that the K-5th graders in attendance have a memorable time trick-or-treating.

Parents and children are asked to meet in the Keltz Arena on the UMW campus at 7 p.m. where tour guides will meet to lead them over to the residence halls.

The "Hall-o-ween" is free to the public and all local parents and children are encouraged to participate and wear their best costumes.

Attorney General Fox Announces
 Montana Joins Suit Against Federal Government to Halt "Carbon Rule"

Attorney General Tim Fox announced today that Montana, along with 23 other states, filed a lawsuit challenging the Obama Administration's Section 111(d) Rule, an unlawful plan to radically restructure the way electricity is produced and consumed throughout the country. The Rule, as promulgated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), would result in dramatically higher electricity bills and significantly less reliable service for families, businesses, hospitals and schools across America. Attorney General Fox was joined by Senator Steve Daines at this morning's announcement at the Attorney General's Office in Helena.

"Once again, the EPA has overstepped its rule-making authority granted by Congress, this time seeking to impose an unworkable, technically unfounded, and legally invalid national energy policy on the states," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "The new regulations don't bode well for states like Montana, which relies on abundant and inexpensive coal for stable, affordable electricity, or for the members and residents of the Crow Indian Reservation, who are also Montanans, and who rely on benefits from the mining of coal within their Reservation. The states have a right to develop, use, and market their natural resources for the benefits of their citizens and the communities they live in. Resource development and protecting our environment are not mutually exclusive. Our ability to do this is vital to Montana's future, and we felt it was imperative for us to join in the challenge of this rule."

The Rule purports to require States to reorganize their energy grids, in order to reduce carbon emissions from electric-generating plants by 32 percent below 2005 levels by 2030. The Rule could cost over $25 billion annually and these costs will ultimately be paid by consumers who could see their electric bills go up by 10% or more.

The Rule will also cause coal miners, union workers, and other hardworking people to lose their jobs, concentrating the pain from the unlawful rule on those who can least afford it.

In the documents filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, The States make clear that EPA has no legal authority to promulgate or enforce the 111(d) Rule.

"States have argued to the EPA for more than a year that the Rule is illegal for multiple reasons," Attorney General Fox added. "In particular, the EPA lacks authority to force States to fundamentally restructure their power portfolio to consume less coal-fired energy. The Rule is also illegal because it seeks to require States to regulate coal-fired power plants under Section 111(d) of the Clean Air Act, even though the EPA already regulates those same plants under Section 112 of the Act. This results in double regulation, which is flat out prohibited by the Clean Air Act."

The States challenging the Rule include West Virginia, Texas, Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, Wisconsin, Wyoming, the Arizona Corporation Commission, and the North Carolina Department of Environmental Quality.

A copy of the filed 111(d) Petition is available here: <https://dojmt.gov/wp-content/uploads/111dPetition-cl.pdf>
