Saint James' Church Bell - It Tolls for Thee

On Thursday afternoon, November 5, 2015, people in the vicinity of Saint James Episcopal Church, on the corner of Washington and East Glendale Streets, may witness something that very few have seen up close since August 31, 1887. You will not want to park too close to the church. A crane will move Saint James' 1,000-pound church bell, which rang for the first time 128 years ago, from its current position on the gable end of the church to a temporary resting place nearby, so work on a new roof for the church entry can begin. The bell bears the maker's inscription, Henry McShane Company of Baltimore Maryland, 1887. Since 1856 McShane has produced more than 300,000 bells for churches across the nation, as well as ship, train, courthouse bells and chimes. How many other McShane bells do we have in Dillon, one may ask?

The church was built in 1882, and moved to its current location in 1889. In 1953-54, the existing entry to Saint James' church, also known as the narthex, was built. It has a flat roof, surrounded by a parapet in the style of a castle, showing the connection of the Episcopal church in America with the Anglican Church of England. However, the design of this roof has made it impossible to maintain. The parapet itself is rotting, and leaks in the roof are damaging the building, inside and out. The plan is to rebuild the narthex roof in a new, vaulted-ceiling style similar to that of the historic church, and place the bell on the new gable end of the narthex.

Below the bell in the gable end of the church is a 6-foot diameter round stained glass window. This window will be covered until work is completed. It will remain in place to become an interior window. It is hoped this will help preserve the window, which is showing signs of stress from its age and weight, plus the tolling of the bell. Outside, the entry will receive a new ramp and stairs, and remodeling inside will add a restroom. The goal is to have a safe, accessible, welcoming entry to the historic church, in a style resonant with the vaulted timber framing of the church interior.

Funds for the project are being raised by the church during a capital campaign dedicated to bringing the facilities of Saint James into its second century of service. Thanks to many generous people, work on the narthex is underway, but contributions are still needed for other planned improvements. Details about the project plans and the Second Century capital campaign are available at the church, or at the website www.stjamesdillon.org. Saint James Episcopal church is working with local architect Kreg Jones and contractor Jared Payne, of Bridger Creek Development (dba KB Construction Inc.) on this project.

THANK YOU

The family of Jeff Mikunda wishes to express their deep appreciation to everyone who have offered their comfort and support to us during this difficult time. Thank you to our families and friends, the doctors and nurses at Barrett Hospital and Hospice, Brundage Funeral Home, and our work families at Murdoch's and KCI. We cannot say thank you enough for everything you all have done for us. Jeff was an amazing Dad, husband, and friend. He will be greatly missed but will be forever happily remembered in our hearts. Thank you all, Kim and Kaycie Mikunda.

Western volleyball sweeps Players of the Week honors

Following a shocking five-set victory over No. 5 Rocky Mountain College, three individuals were recognized for their efforts in their first conference victory of the season.

Mikayla Ness, a 5-foot-10 senior outside hitter from Spokane, Wash. tallied a career-high 25 kills in the match, five kills per set, with a .226 hitting percentage. For her performance she was named the Frontier Conference Attacker of the Week. The upset-win came on senior day, which Ness is the only Bulldog senior.

The Frontier Conference Defender of the Week was awarded to Brianna DeCock, a 5-foot-6 sophomore libero from Huntley, Mont. for her performance in the victory over Rocky. DeCock averaged 6.20 digs per set, 31 in the match, and was perfect in passing and serving.

Callie Hanson, a 5-foot-7 junior setter from Spokane, Wash. was named the Frontier Conference Setter of the Week for the second time this season. Hanson dished out 53 assists and recorded 11 digs in the match; 10.60 assists and 2.20 digs per set, in a win over No. 5 Rocky.

It is the first time all season that one school has swept the Frontier Conference Player of the Week honors.

Skyler Roope named Frontier Conference Defensive Player of the Week

Skyler Roope, a 5-foot-10, 190 lbs., senior defensive back from Helena, Mont. was named the Conference Defensive Player of the Week in then-No. 16 Montana Western's 27-23 conference road win over College of Idaho.

Roope recorded a career-high eight unassisted tackles, one tackle for loss and returned an interception 49-yards to give the Bulldogs great field position.

With his performance, Roope helped Montana Western move up to No. 13 in the latest NAIA Coaches' Poll.

MERCY

By: MJ

Mercy is like a brilliant shining diamond and can transform relationships.

Mercy means being patient with others flukes. Mercy means helping others around you who are hurting. Mercy will help you to love your neighbor as yourself. Mercy means giving people a second chance. Humans tend to want to get even when someone hurts them and often that means bitterness, anger, rudeness, back biting... Mercy means doing good things for others including those who hurt your heart. Mercy is giving people what they need and not what you perceive they need. Give love to your enemies and the rewards will come back to you. Mercy means being kind to those who offend you. Even if you fear being stained by someone else's ways have mercy. Mercy means building relationships over rules. If you truly want to participate in giving mercy you must put people first before policies. Put their needs before procedures and put relationships before regulations. Choose love over law.
