KXLF to Release On the Mountain, a New Documentary of the Our Lady of the Rockies Story

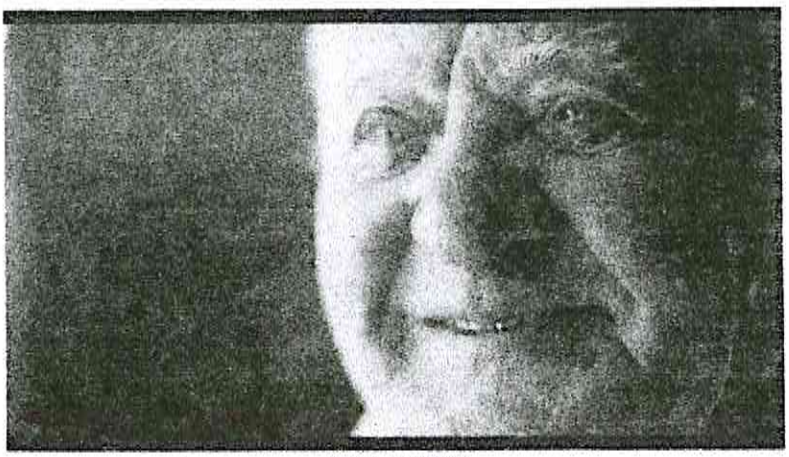

KXLF Communications along with Montana's Television Network is pleased to present On the Mountain, a documentary of the Our Lady of the Rockies story, produced with assistance from the Greater Montana Foundation. The Greater Montana Foundation provided a grant for the project, in the amount of $30,000 - matched by another $30,000 from KXLF Communications.

Earl Casagranda

The Greater Montana Foundation approached KXLF Communications to produce this documentary and ensure that the 30-year-old video footage would be preserved in digital format for generations to come. Many of the key volunteers responsible for the building of the statue were still able to share stories from a first-person perspective.

KXLF brought a team of 15 people to Butte for five days and shot the footage in 4k, 5k and 6k – cinema formats that are higher quality than high definition. In addition to the existing footage supplied by the Our Lady of the Rockies group, the

City is Asking You:

By: MJ

City is asking people too voluntarily park their motorhomes and trailers on their own property or in a storage location and remove them from the city streets. The city fathers have concerns about the safety of pedestrians and traffic accidents at intersections where visual view is possibly blocked. If the sight-triangle is blocked at intersections you can be held personally accountable by the city.

Fox Finalizes Membership for Sexual-assault Evidence Task Force

Work has begun to determine number of unsubmitted kits in Montana

Attorney General Tim Fox has appointed the final two members of the Sexual Assault Evidence Task Force, which he formed last month to examine the issue of unsubmitted sexual-assault evidence kits in Montana.

Alanna Sherstad will serve as the college campus representative on the task force. Alanna is director of the VOICE Center at Montana State University in Bozeman. Sherstad has served as director of the Center for seven years where students, faculty and staff can come receive support and resources for cases of sexual assault and relationship violence.

Debbie Mulcahy will serve as the certified sexual-assault nurse examiner (SANE) representative on the task force. Debbie is a registered nurse at Kalispell Regional Medical Center and has worked as a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner since 2003. She also instructs other Montana nurses to become SANE nurses.

"Alanna and Debbie bring much-needed perspectives to this task force," Fox said. "We have brought together a group of talented, experienced individuals from across the state who care about this issue deeply and are committed to ensuring victims of sexual assault receive the justice they deserve."

In the course of its investigation into an allegation of sexual assault, a law enforcement agency can request that a victim be examined for physical evidence of the assault. When the investigating agency or prosecutor has determined that the evidence should be submitted to the state crime laboratory for processing, that evidence is processed by the laboratory free of charge.

Last week, the Attorney General's Office sent a request to every county sheriff and city police chief in Montana asking for a census of unsubmitted kits in their possession. The requested information includes total number of kits, the date of each kit, and general reasons why each kit was not submitted to the crime lab for testing. Other preliminary work has been initiated as well, including research into how other jurisdictions have approached unsubmitted kits and potential funding sources for any needed testing.

Letter to the Editor:

I have always been concerned seeing dogs standing on tool boxes and flat beds as the driver whips around a corner in traffic. I have even seen one dog standing on top of the cab of the truck going down the road. What do you think happens, when that person get to their destination and the dog is gone…fell out, fell off, jumped out or blew out and maybe gets run over by the horse trailer in tow. I have noticed to over the last few years, cattle dogs getting smaller and smaller. I write this, after noticing the last few months, while doing my weekly drive to Dillon on Sunday, there is a dog smeared on the Interstate around mile marker 68 almost every time I come to Dillon now. Perhaps the smaller dogs have a harder time hanging on and resisting the wind. Sad that a good ranch dog, which is worth its weight in gold, would just be stashed next to the extra gas can in the back of the truck and at risk. Over 100,000 dogs, it is estimated, die from falling, jumping or being blown out of trucks on the road. Enough said…
