STRONG PEOPLE (Based On The Strong Women™ Program) WILL START ON January 4, 2016

Beginning January 4, 2016, the Dillon Strong Women™ Program will become STRONG PEOPLE and welcome men as well as women into the program. STRONG PEOPLE will use the same exercises that the Dillon Strong Women™ Program has been using.

The Strong Women™ Program is a national fitness program for women developed by Dr. Miriam Nelson, at Tufts University in Boston, Massachusetts. The program will help participants look and feel better while increasing strength, bone density, and balance. Since 2010, when the program began locally, participants have reported improvement in all of these areas. It is a good program for women of all ages and activity levels. One current participant is approaching her 101st birthday!

Participants use ankle weights and dumbbells (all provided) in exercises done slowly, beginning with minimal weight and increasing the weight very gradually as the exercise repetitions seem easily completed.

The program is not for profit and leaders volunteer their time. A minimal fee of $20 per month is charged so equipment can be purchased and rent paid to the Elks Lodge. New participants are encouraged to try the program for two meetings before making any payments. If they choose to continue the program, the fees are charged at that time.

Currently the program is being run two days per week (Monday and Thursday) in sessions eight to 12 weeks long, after which participants have the opportunity to continue a maintenance day (no fee charged) once a week on Mondays until the next session begins. A new session begins Monday, January 4, 2016, from 10:00 until 11:15 at the Dillon Elks Lodge, 27 E. Center St. All former and new participants (including men) are encouraged to attend. Wear comfortable clothing and closed toe shoes.

For further information contact Jeannette Pittman at 660-2777 (call or text) or Lois Volkening at 925-3774 (call only).

Zoning Board Dec. 17, 2015

By: MJ

Present: Board members, Mr. McIsaac, Mr. Mooney, Mr. Nye, Mr. Graham, Mr. Schwandt and mayor's assistant Mr. Miller. Minutes were read and approved with corrections.

Zoning Compliance Permit: Mr. Clark, a resident of the city submitted an application (#2301) for a home based business making hydraulic hoses. After much discussion amongst the board members the zoning compliance permit #2301 was rejected. There is a section in the zoning document that states the business must be in the home. The board rejected the permit on the grounds that the business was going to be in the garage next to the home. The applicant has 5± children living in the home. Would it have been a safety issue for the family to have this type of business in the home? NOTE: If the applicant wishes to proceed with the application he must pay $300.00 and apply to the Board of Adjustments.

The intent of the Zoning Ordinance is (1) to protect the public health, safety and general welfare of the residents of the City.

Marijuana Emergency Ordinance: This was tabled. Members had questions on the penalties outlined in the ordinance.

Signs: Discussion was held on the sign section of the zoning ordinance. Mr. Graham and Mr. Schwandt are creating a presentation package that will show the public what an electronic sign is, how it works...

2016: What To Expect
Raging Moderate by Will Durst
 It's hard to believe, but we're on the brink of another presidential election year. Let us pray. Every quadrennial, the American political process plays out as a big-top carnival sideshow featuring moral contortionists, ethical geeks and fat sweaty white guys teetering on slack media wires.
 Fortunately, we Americans have become as resilient to this format as fourth-generation cockroaches are to watered-down insecticide. To show how familiar, we here at Durstco have compiled a political forecast of what to expect over the coming year. Clip and save. All dates are approximate. Your mileage may differ.
FEBRUARY 1, 2016: The results of the Iowa Caucuses are dismissed by non-winning candidates as an irrational political stunt, much like a game of musical chairs without the music. And no chairs.
FEBRUARY 9, 2016: Some type of victory in the New Hampshire primary, moral or otherwise, is claimed by no fewer than seven candidates.
MARCH 1, 2016: Super Tuesday. So called for the quantity of primaries, not the quality.
MARCH 11, 2016: A rumor about a low-polling politico having an affair with an aide is revealed to be a last-ditch cynical attempt to humanize him.
MARCH 20, 2016: A flag factory in New Jersey bans all photo-ops by Presidential aspirants in an attempt to get some work done.
APRIL 16, 2016: Ronald Reagan is reported to be in a Swiss spa getting transfusions of Keith Richards' blood. "Draft Reagan" groups spring up in thirty-seven states.
APRIL 29, 2016: A New York Times poll says 40 percent of the American public sees a need for a third party.
APRIL 30, 2016: Ben Carson announces he will run as a third party candidate.
APRIL 31, 2016: A USA Today poll says 43 percent of the American public sees a need for a fourth party.
JULY 18, 2016: In Cleveland, the Republican National Convention outlines a platform that proposes hunting the homeless for food.
JULY 22, 2016: After the Republican National Convention, the conservative wing accuses the nominee of selling out the party. Cleveland cab drivers express disgust.

Helping Your Wife This Christmas (or New Years)

By Michael Shannon

Instead of another depressing rant on how the political class is selling us down the river, I'm offering practical advice this week on how to remain in the wife's good graces and still get to watch all the football you want on Christmas or New Year's Day.

Many consider lifting your feet so the wife can sweep up dinner crumbs a significant contribution to domestic tranquility, and in lands ruled by Sharia law it is (except no Christmas dinner). But here in the 1st world compromise is required, and it can be accomplished without damaging your self—esteem like doing the dishes or wrapping up the leftovers does.

My manly—man suggestion is to volunteer to smoke the holiday turkey, and by "smoke" I don't mean shooting the bird. You can outsource that to Butterball.

While the wife is at the grocery store, you go to the hardware store to get an empty 5—gallon paint bucket, ice pick and a vertical ice chest.

Smoking your turkey should be approached systematically, like any other scientific problem involving fire and booze.

A delicious smoked turkey is submerged in brine to infuse it with flavor as the salt kills bacteria if you forgot to wash your hands. There are plenty of Internet brine recipes and YouTube videos are particularly useful for first—time smokers. My preferred brine combines the best of Cracker Barrel and the ABC store = maple syrup and bourbon.

When selecting a recipe beware of fanatics. One YouTube chef concocted a brine that would set you back about $100 dollars just to give the bird a bath. He even soaked the wood chips in premium Maker's Mark bourbon, which at my house qualifies the chips as a side dish that would never see the fire.

No need to spend a fortune. Maple—flavored syrup of the quality found on the McDonalds' breakfast menu is fine. And I usually buy "Pappy Went Blind" brand bourbon in the convenient 55—gallon drum. Mix with the rest of the

MONTANA MENAGERIE PERMIT AFTER EXTENSIVE VIOLATION HISTORY

Citing more than two dozen violations in 2015 alone, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks announced Monday it has taken formal steps toward revoking the operating permit of a roadside menagerie northeast of Bozeman. FWP delivered the notice of the revocation process to Troy Hyde, the owner and permit holder of Animals of Montana, Inc.

The notice refers to 25 violations of state statute and administrative rule occurring between Feb. 1 and Nov. 17 of this year. Those include performing exhibitions without a permit; use of a weed whacker and hedge trimmer in an attempt to move an uncontrollable tiger; inadequate, unlocked, unmarked or overcrowded den boxes or cages containing an African lion, wolves, foxes, lynx, brown bears, coyotes, and more. It also notes unsanitary cage conditions marked by animal waste, and inhumane housing of caged animals.

State and other agency officials have tracked problems at the Animals of Montana facility since 2001, when an employee bitten by a brown bear sustained a broken arm. Numerous escaped wildlife, including African lions and a black leopard, have been reported. In 2012, an employee of Animals of Montana was killed by a grizzly bear in an incident that was not immediately reported to officials and which triggered a federal investigation and fine.

Since then, FWP has been monitoring the operations at the facility closely and formally warned Animals of Montana that it needed to strictly adhere to the conditions of its permit (and related indemnity agreements) or its permit would be revoked.

Regulatory agencies have cited Hyde numerous times. In 2013, Hyde was fined $9,000 by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration for unsafe working conditions. In 2009, Hyde was found guilty of violating the Endangered Species Act and the Lacey Act by trafficking an unlawfully sold tiger across state lines. That resulted in the loss of his roadside menagerie license subsequent to losing his USDA Class C Exhibitor's license, a prerequisite for the state license. Both were reinstated in 2011.

Animals of Montana was first licensed by FWP as a roadside menagerie in 1995.* The business's website states that its goal is to provide visitors "with the filming or photographic opportunity of a lifetime."

Hyde can challenge the proposed permit revocation by requesting a hearing by Jan. 27, 2016. Otherwise the roadside menagerie will be closed.

*FWP permits roadside menageries as required by state law. The permitting process is not one involving subjective decision making. Organizations are granted permits if they meet standard criteria. FWP has the authority to revoke this type of permit should terms of the permit be violated.

brine ingredients and you're ready to baptize the bird.

Brining a bird is like buying a burka: Total coverage is crucial. Fill your new orange plastic bucket with brine. Before immersing the bird take care to neutralize that great enemy of flavor, the skin. Perforate the bird with the ice pick as deeply and frequently as possible without losing perspective.

Then lower the turkey into the brine legs first, just like loading a mortar. The tall bucket lets the brine completely cover. Notice how the gobbler floats like a corpse in a horror movie without contacting the side.

Place the bucket in the cooler and surround with ice. Most recipes call for brining the bird 24—hours, but my family believes if a little is good; a whole lot must be really good.

Consequently, I brine for three to five days. Just remember to keep the bucket packed in ice, unless you really don't like the people you plan to feed.

Before smoking, wash the bird thoroughly. I also inject more bourbon into the breast and legs. Since the bird will never encounter a Breathalyzer, it doesn't matter how much you use. If you find yourself licking leaking bourbon off the counter it's time to stop.

The last step is applying a dry "rub," which you can make or buy pre—made at the store. This is disgusting, because the skin looks as if it came from a corpse, which technically it has, and it's loose. It's like giving Bernie Sanders a massage.

I use an electric smoker because the temperature is constant and I don't have to futz around with charcoal, but if you have annoying relatives you're trying to avoid, nothing says privacy like "I need to check the fire."

Cook at 225 degrees about a half hour for every pound and when a meat thermometer placed deep in the thigh area reads 180 the bird is done.

Let your masterpiece rest 45 minutes, carve and then you can take the remainder of the day off without any complaint from the wife.
