Open Letter to Mr. Dale Stewart:

Dale,

I welcome you to the race for Senate District 36. With the field now set for the June 7, Primary Election, I pledge a clean, transparent and enjoyable race. As your Current Representative and as of March 10, also your opponent, my door is always open.

Respectfully,

Rep. Jeff Welborn (R) 72nd District, Montana House of Representatives.
Candidate, Montana Senate 36th District.

Queen Nur

Clap your hands, stomp your feet and sing along as Queen Nur presents a highly interactive performance that brings audiences to their feet. Storytelling is the oldest art form and nationally known, award-winning storyteller Queen Nur exuberantly presents the African Oral Tradition, accompanied by Dwight James on drums. The duo have been performing and teaching across the United States and in Canada for over 22 years.

Queen Nur's stories teach universal values and weave a connective thread. An edge-of-your seat performance engages the audience from beginning to end and is fun for the whole family.

Queen Nur brings her energetic storytelling to Dillon on Thursday, March 24, as part of the Southwest Montana Arts Council's Showcase Series. The performance is at Beaverhead County High School Auditorium at 7 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door and are $10 for adults, $5 for kids ages 5-18 and free for kids under five and current UMW students. There will be a reception with Queen Nur following the performance at African Oasis, 36 N. Idaho Street, with refreshments and African wine. This event is sponsored by Pioneer Federal, Dillon Tribune and African Oasis. For more information, call 683-6208 or visit smacarts.org.

"The services the camp hosts provide are invaluable to our visitors and us."

Volunteer camp hosts help Forest visitors by providing information, cleaning amenities, and completing light maintenance. All supplies and equipment needed for the cleaning and maintenance are provided hookups. Hosts are needed Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Hosting opportunities are available at the following camp sites:

Burning to Begin near Anaconda Job Corps

Fire officials from the Pintler Ranger District are planning prescribed burning activities which may result in visible smoke periodically over the next 1 to 4 weeks. Firefighters will conduct two prescribed burns in the Anaconda Job Corps Wildland Urban Interface Hazardous Fuels Abatement Project area.

The Anaconda Job Corps hazardous fuels abatement project was approved in 2009 using stewardship authority and involved: timber harvest; fuels reduction treatments adjacent to the Anaconda Job Corps; and prescribed burning. The burning to be conducted includes two units for a total project area of 107 acres. Travelers and residents of the area may see smoke from these burns and are cautioned to drive carefully.

Fire crews will burn under prescribed conditions and monitor these burns after ignition to ensure the burns are contained within their boundaries. For more information regarding these prescribed burns, contact either Joe Brabender, or Jim Harrington at the Pintler Ranger District at (406) 859-3211.

Montana has one of the highest fatality rates in the nation for number of deaths caused by impaired drivers

Best prevention for Montana crash injuries: Seatbelts

By: Dr. Barry McKenzie

Last year, 80 percent of motorists fatally injured on Montana roads weren't wearing seat belts. According to Montana Highway Patrol data, 138 of the 184 motor vehicle occupants killed in 2015 were unbelted at the time of their fatal crash. Additionally, the state's 2015 highway death toll includes 24 motorcyclists, 15 pedestrians & 1 bicyclist.

At least 75 of last year's crash deaths involved drivers who had been drinking, according to MHP. Speed was a factor in 77 crashes. Ninety-seven deaths occurred at night. Thirty-seven happened on roads that were wet, icy or snow covered. No risk factor is more prevalent than lack of seat belt use.

A single-vehicle crash early Saturday north of Helena repeated the typical Montana tragedy: Neither occupant of the pickup was wearing a seat belt; both were ejected as the pickup rolled off the rural road. A 23-year-old man was killed, a 23-year-old woman was hospitalized with serious injuries, according to MHP.

Then on Sunday, The Gazette reported on another single-vehicle rollover on Interstate 90 near Hardin. The woman driving and two small children weren't buckled in, and all were thrown from the sport utility vehicle. All three suffered injuries, but survived. MHP reported that alcohol and speed were suspected factors.

The vast majority of Americans, including most Montanans, use seat belts and child safety seats regularly. The unbuckled minority accounts for the majority of fatalities and serious injuries.

Government policies should encourage responsible seat belt use, but Montana falls short. When Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety recently released its 13th annual report card grading all 50 states on their performance in adopting recommended traffic safety laws, Montana ranked among the nine worst states, along with our neighbors Wyoming, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Neither Montana nor those neighbor states enforce seat belt laws like they enforce traffic laws. In Montana, a law officer can only stop a driver for a seat belt violation if the officer also has cause to stop the driver for another violation. States that changed their laws to start enforcing seat belt requirements like other traffic laws have seen increased use of seat belts. People are more likely to use seat belts if they think they could get ticketed for violating the law.

Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety also points out the economic cost of highway fatalities in dollars: An average of $898 million per year in Montana between 2004 and 2014. That includes medical care, lost wages and productivity, public and private benefits for survivors.

Most states enforce their seat belt laws. Montana should, too. Let's reconsider the value of seat belt enforcement in when the 2017 Legislature convenes. Let's reduce the death toll from Montana crashes.
