UMW HOSTS DR. JANE HELM MADDOCK SERVICE AWARD DINNER

The University of Montana Western will host the annual Dr. Jane Helm Maddock Service Award dinner Wednesday, April 13, 2016.

The 2016 award winners are David and Shelli Schuett and Cory Birkenbuel.

"This year's Jane Helm Maddock Service Award recipients truly embody the generous spirit of the award's namesake and we are honored to recognize them for their devotion to this community and campus," said UMW Foundation and Alumni Director Roxanne Engellant.

David Schuett was born and raised on his family farm in southeast Wisconsin. He received an animal science degree from Kansas State University and a doctor of veterinary medicine from Iowa State University in 1982. Schuett came to Dillon shortly after graduation and worked for a mixed animal practice for a few years before he purchased his first ranch south of Dillon. Schuett began his own large animal veterinary practice in 1985 focusing on cow-calf.

Over time Schuett added neighboring ranches to his land base and he currently raises malt barley, wheat and hay. He and his son Blade, who is involved in the ranch operation, have roughly 1,500 cows in addition to providing custom haying and farming for other area ranches.

Schuett bought Rolandson Equipment, a John Deer dealership in Dillon, in 1992, and changed the name to Dillon Implement. In June 2012, he traded equity in Dillon Implement for shares of Frontline Ag. This past May they merged with Moodie Implement to form Frontline Ag Solutions. Schuett manages the Dillon location and is chairman of the board of the company with close to 200 employees.

Recently, Schuett spearheaded the efforts to design and raise funds for a new livestock pavilion at the Beaverhead County Fairgrounds. He serves on the board of directors for the Montana Horsemanship Center that provides support for the Equine Studies Department at Montana Western.

Shelli Schuett was born and raised in Dillon and is a third generation Beaverhead County resident. She attended school in Spokane, Wash. after high school graduation in order to gain certification as a medical assistant. She spent 25 years working in the medical industry along with supporting her family's farm and ranch operations.

Schuett has been an advocate for farm safety for kids, putting on numerous safety camps in the area. She has been involved with Parent Council for 20 years and a 4H leader for 16 years. Shelli spends a great deal of time advocating for children with dyslexia and learning disabilities in the school system. She and David have served on the Montana Western Foundation board and have been strong supporters of the university over the past 30 years.

Cory Birkenbuel was born and raised in Dillon, Mont and is a fourth generation Montanan. He graduated from the University of Montana Western in 2013 with a business administration degree.

While attending Montana Western, Birkenbuel was the business club president and general manager for KDWG, the campus radio station.

In 2012 he undertook a project for his senior internship to bring awareness to Maverick Mountain and the 15 other ski areas in Montana. With his "Sweet 16" project, Birkenbuel brought recognition to Montana Western and its experiential learning program, Experience One. He was featured on several T.V. stations and newspapers throughout Montana during the filming and promoting of the project.

Birkenbuel worked with Montana State University film student and Dillon native, Kevin Hilton, to produce a second short film called "Somewhere in Montana." The highlight of his filmmaking career came in 2014 when he was asked to work with Warren Miller, legendary ski and snowboarding filmmaker.

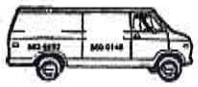

Birkenbuel has worked in the ski industry for 20 years and explored numerous projects around the arts in the Dillon community. In 2015 Cory opened his business, Highboy & Company, in downtown Dillon. He also started an online calendar for Dillon and the surrounding area called 683 Events.

In addition to his education and business pursuits, Birkenbuel has been involved in numerous service groups in Beaverhead County. He was a board member for Southwest Montana Arts Council, Dillon Cubs and the Chamber of Commerce. He is a current member of the Beaverhead Trails Coalition.

Additionally, Birkenbuel has been a spokesperson for suicide awareness since becoming a family member survivor of suicide in 2003. He plans to continue to promote local and regional awareness of suicide prevention.

The dinner is scheduled from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Lewis and Clark Room in Mathews Hall on the Montana Western campus. The cost to attend is $15 for faculty, staff and community, and $7 for students. Please contact the UMW Alumni Office at 406-683-7306 to purchase tickets.

Attorney General Fox Settles Claims Against Two Sham Cancer Charities

Charities Dissolved and Leader Banned From Working for Non-Profits

Concludes Action by FTC, All 50 States and D.C. Against Charities that Bilked More Than $75 Million from Donors

Attorney General Tim Fox, along with the Federal Trade Commission and agencies from all 50 states, has obtained a permanent injunction to dissolve two nationwide sham cancer charities and ban their president from profiting from any charity fund-raising in the future under a settlement filed in court today.

"Together, the FTC and state charity regulators across the country presented a united front against charity fraud and put an end to these sham charities and their egregious lies," Attorney General Fox said. "We will not sit idly by while scammers defraud consumers and deprive legitimate charities of much needed support. Charitable contributions enable numerous vital activities in our communities, and it's important for donors to feel confident their funds are solicited honestly and used as promised."

Cancer Fund of America Inc. (CFA), Cancer Support Services Inc. (CSS) and their leader, James Reynolds, Sr., agreed to settle charges that CFA and CSS claimed to help cancer patients, but instead, spent the overwhelming majority of donations on their operators, families and friends, and fundraisers.

The agencies' complaint, filed in May 2015, targeted four sham charities run by Reynolds and his family members that allegedly bilked more than $187 million from donors. CFA and CSS were responsible for more than $75 million of that amount. The other two sham charities settled in May 2015. The settlement announced today concludes the largest joint enforcement action ever undertaken by the FTC and state charity regulators.

Under the settlement order, CFA and CSS will be permanently closed and their assets liquidated. Reynolds is banned from profiting from charity fundraising and nonprofit work, and from serving as a charity's director or trustee or otherwise managing charitable assets. He is also prohibited from making misrepresentations about goods or services, and violating the FTC's Telemarketing Sales Rule and state laws.

The order imposes a judgment against CFA, CSS, and Reynolds, jointly and severally, of $75,825,653, the amount consumers donated to CFA and CSS between 2008 and 2012. The judgment against CFA and CSS will be partially satisfied via liquidation of their assets. The judgment against Reynolds will be suspended upon surrender of certain artwork, two pistols, and sale of a pontoon boat. The full judgment will become due immediately if he is found to have misrepresented his financial condition.

The other defendants in the case were CFA's and CSS's chief financial officer and CSS's former president, Kyle Effler; Children's Cancer Fund of America Inc. (CCFOA) and its president and executive director, Rose Perkins; and The Breast Cancer Society Inc. (BCS) and its executive director and former president, James Reynolds II. Under settlement orders, Effler, Perkins and Reynolds II were banned from fundraising, charity management, and oversight of charitable assets, and CCFOA and BCS are in receivership and will be dissolved after their assets are liquidated.

Stipulated orders have the force of law when approved and signed by the District Court judge.

Before giving to a charity, read these tips offered by the Office of Consumer Protection at the Montana Department of Justice: https://dojmt.gov/consumer/donations-to-charities/. Montanans may also call the Office of Consumer Protection in Helena at 1-(800)-481-6896 during business hours for more information.

Montana Department of Justice Warns Consumers of Deceptive Vehicle Warranty, Service Contract Notices

Attorney General Tim Fox and the Montana Department of Justice want to make Montanans aware of deceptive vehicle service contract "notices" that claim to be issued from the "Motor Vehicle Division" that may be appearing in consumers' mail boxes.

"We consider these notices deceptive because neither our Motor Vehicle Division nor the motor vehicle division of any other state is mailing them," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "These governmental entities are not in the business of selling vehicle service contracts. However, these notices are often addressed from senders going by names similar to the Montana Motor Vehicle Division. It's understandable that vehicle owners would be confused after opening one of these deceptive mailers; I've received them myself."

The notices can also appear to be coming from the car dealer or vehicle manufacturer, and may suggest that a previously purchased warranty has or is set to expire, even if no such warranty was purchased. The notice, which usually demands an immediate response on the part of the recipient, sometimes contains the year and model of the recipient's vehicle. Additionally, the envelopes which contain these notices include warnings similar to those placed on some official government mailings.

Sarah Garcia, Administrator of the Motor Vehicle Division at the Montana Department of Justice, said, "In Montana, these notices have been observed as having official-looking logos and are being sent from companies entitled "Motor Vehicle Division, "Vehicle Services Department," "National Warranty Services," and "Auto Repair Network," among others. I want to assure people that the Montana MVD has not issued these letters and does not offer vehicle warranties or service contracts."

Matthew Dale, Director of Montana's Office of Consumer Protection, says his office continues to receive calls from concerned consumers. Dale offers this advice: "If you respond to these notices by calling the number provided on the letter, be advised you would not be dealing with a government entity. Also, keep in mind that it's always a good idea to obtain a written copy of the contract being offered before purchasing any warranty or service contract, even if a representative says the warranty can be canceled and refunded at any time."

To see examples of these warranties and service contracts, visit: https://dojmt.gov/wp-content/uploads/Motor-Vehicle-Warranty-and-Service-K-Notices-Spring-2016.pdf
