Term Limits

By: MJ

We are hearing about "term limits" again now that another election year rolls around and some of the representative are terming out. We hear how terms limits are ruining the success and forward movement of our country that include federal, state and local governments.

We hear how freshman members are radical and don't know all the rules and regulations that go along with making policy. Really; where does it say that the seated members are the only ones with all the knowledge? They were new to congressional body at one time. They to experience a learning curve when they took office. Why do you not hear about that? There are numerous informational resources available for members.

Any job we take on there is a learning curve and we all make our share of mistakes. On the flip side of the coin new people bring innovative knowledge and concepts to the table. Old or new; no one is perfect. Perfection is like beauty, is subjective and only in the eyes of the beholder.

Could it be that the money, perks, social standing and lifestyle that have something to do with not wanting to lose a position as a representative? Could "term limits" it be all about the person losing the position and not the person that is replace them? Is it really in the best for our country to have representatives that remain in public office for 40 plus years? You decide.

THANK YOU

To the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the City of Dillon expresses sincere appreciation for raking up pine-cones during the annual pre Memorial Day clean-up at Mountain View Cemetery.

The work they do each year is invaluable, as the cemetery is a very important part of our community.

Hard to Believe It's Come Down to Hillary or Trump*Raging Moderate by Will Durst*

Every four years our nation's electoral eccentricities escalate exponentially and people throw up their hands and shout, "you know, every election cycle is wacky, but especially this one." But especially this one! With this one, the narrative changes faster than the score of a Wiffle Ball game played with aluminum bats. It's an election with the attention span of high-speed lint. It's an 18 month-long squirrel scamper.

First, everyone is talking about New York values. Then, low-energy debaters. Violent rallies. Domestic terrorists. KKK endorsements. Rigged rules. Palace coups. Naked wives. Tiny hands. Pope bashing. Lucifer comparing. Internecine warfare between orange people.

The phrase bubbling out of everyone's lips around the political circus this week is... "get me the hell out of here." No. No. It's... "third party candidate." Dark words of terror striking fear in the hearts of major party leaders, owing to a couple of dodgy characters named Ross Perot and Ralph Nader. Or as Donald Trump would call them, "losers." Third party candidates responsible for the downfall of Al Gore and George Herbert Walker Bush, making them not just losers, but loser enablers. Losers squared.

A legitimate third party candidacy hasn't afflicted a US election since 2000, but this time around, faced with two candidates less popular than acid rain at a paper mache sculpture garden, the fear is the populace could easily slide over to vote for less polarizing figures. And right now, an eighteen-foot alligator with irritable bowel syndrome would be less polarizing than the Donald or the Hillary.

It's too late to get on the Texas ballot for independent runs, and other state deadlines are approaching fast, so prospective 2016 aspirants need to get their proverbial poop together. The blueprint for chaos is waiting to be writ.

The Libertarian Party is close to being on the ballot in all 50 states and has already chosen their candidate- former Republican New Mexico governor Gary Johnson. The big challenge will be to bump his poll numbers north of 15 percent to qualify for the October debates. Although they might be better off buying canyon acreage in Utah and waiting for it to become oceanfront property. Probably happen faster.

Neocon Bill Kristol has floated a staff writer on his National Review magazine as the true conservative alternative to Trump.

Nobody knows anything about this man, David French, except he doesn't have the chance of a toothpick in a bonfire. Of course, that's what they said about Trump this time last year. The difference is, Trump didn't wear a beard. But he did threaten a third party run.

The Green Party, also a guaranteed player in about 35 states, is expected to choose Dr. Jill Stein at their Convention in August, expanding the slate of possible semi-legitimate contenders to 5. Which doesn't even bring us a tenth of the way to rolling like Venezuela, which has over 50 political parties. There's 350 in India and many folks maintain Israel has more political parties than voters.

What the American People desire is a real choice. Not more candidates, but a ballot option that reads "None of the Above." Of course, should that position garner the most votes, we might have to survive a vacated Oval Office. Which to many, considering the alternative, doesn't altogether sound like that bad of an idea.

SHOP LOCAL

Hi, this is Judy Siring from Farmers Union Insurance. Several studies have shown that when you buy from an independent, locally-owned business, more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses, service providers, and farms....this continues to strengthen the economic base of the community for the good of all who live here.....Remember to always shop local first.....Shop local....be local....

HAMBURGERS

Low military pay was not mentioned in The State Of The Union speech. Just increasing the minimum wage was ..Hamburgers or Minimum Wage For those fast food employees striking for $15 an hour, let's do some math At $15 an hour Johnny Fry-Boy would make $31,200 annually. An E1 (Private) in the military makes $18,378. An E5 (Sergeant) with 8 years of service only makes $35,067 annually. So you're telling me, LaTisha McBurgerflipper, that you deserve as much as those kids getting shot at, deploying for months in hostile environments, and putting their collective asses on the line every day protecting you.

Here's the deal, Baconator, you are working in a job designed for a kid in high school who is learning how to work and earning enough for gas, and hanging out with their equally goofy high school pals. If you have chosen this as your life long profession, you have failed. If you don't want minimum wage, don't have minimum skills.

If you can read this, thank a teacher.

If it's in English, thank a Veteran.

FLAG DAY FACTS

We salute it, sing songs to it and many of us pledge our allegiance to it daily, and the U.S. government encourages all Americans to pause and pay tribute to the flag on its official holiday, June 14. In honor of the this year's Flag Day, check out some things you should know about the Stars and Stripes.

In American history, June 14 isn't just a day to honor the flag.

While the 1777 resolution establishing a national flag was the impetus for the national holiday known as Flag Day, that date also holds great significance for the U.S. Army. Two years earlier, just weeks after the Battles of Lexington and Concord kicked off the American Revolution, the Congress formally authorized the enlistment of soldiers to fight in what became known as the Continental Army. So this Friday, remember to wish the U.S. Army a happy 238th birthday.

Only one state observes Flag Day as a legal state holiday.

It took more than a century after the creation of America's flag for anyone to suggest a holiday to honor it. In 1885, a Wisconsin grade school teacher named Bernard Cigrand held what's believed to be the first recognized Flag Day, which began a lifelong quest to establish a formal holiday. Woodrow Wilson issued a presidential proclamation calling for a June 14 commemoration in 1916, but it wasn't until 1949, 16 years after the death of the Cigrand, the "father of Flag Day," that Congress passed legislation as a national holiday. It is not, however, a federal holiday. In fact, it's only an official holiday in any capacity in one state. Perhaps fittingly, it's Pennsylvania, where the flag was officially created and legend holds (though it's wholly unsubstantiated) that local seamstress Betsy Ross sewed the original flag.
