Billings Author Visits Dillon

Russell Rowland, native Montanan and acclaimed novelist will be signing copies of his new book, Fifty-Six Counties: A Montana Journey, on Thursday, June 16th at The Bookstore from 5:00-7:00. This is a book that deserves to be discovered by the reader. The author is a humble observer sharing with us all that Montana is, was and will be, giving us history, current events and his perspective on the people that share the boundaries of this magnificent land.

Rowland spent the better part of two years studying and traveling around his beloved home state. His journey took him from the mines of Butte to the pine forests of the Northwest, from the stark, wind-scrubbed badlands of the East to the tourist driven economies of the mountain west. Along the way, he considered our state's essential character. Concentrating on where we came from and, most of all, what we might be in the process of becoming. "Fifty-Six Counties is animated by the numinous even as it humbles us, makes us more sane, and draws us into a new and invigorating experience of the essence of life. This is a book for Montana, for the nation, and for the world. In writing the book Rowland says "he wanted to tap into the spirit of Montana.....to explore its heart" The result is soulful, defiant and revolutionary. He takes us through history, the scents of the forest, and arid lands, ranch and city life (equally), conservation, industry and ore. Rowland, a humble observer has dug deeply and bravely into the soul of the state of Montana. Offering astute reflections on everything exposing the charm and the dangers offered on this land we call home. He does not shy away from the harder issues and yet celebrates all that deserves our adoration. This book is unique and a must read for those of us that are Montanans as well as for those that want to be.

Montana Motor Vehicle Division Receives Prestigious Awards

The Montana Department of Justice today announced its Motor Vehicle Division (MVD) recently received two awards from the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators (AAMVA).

"Our Motor Vehicle Division has worked hard to offer outstanding customer service and convenience to the public, to Montana's auto dealers, and to our law enforcement community," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "I'm pleased our MVD team has been recognized for its efforts to integrate technology and best practices to offer tax payers improved and efficient services."

The first honor MVD received from AAMVA was its Customer Convenience Award for MVD's Drivers Services

Appointment Scheduling System. This system replaced an outdated program with an on-line system that's mobile friendly and enables customers to schedule, change, or cancel their appointments. The new system includes text message and email notifications and reminders, links to MVD's web page, and is easy to use for both customers and staff.

Secondly, AAMVA honored MVD with the Improvement through Efficiencies Award for the division's Montana Vehicle Dealer Licensing Efficiency Project. MVD Administrator Sarah Garcia said, "In the past, licensing Montana vehicle dealers was a paper-intensive and time consuming process involving multiple MVD employees. We've redefined the vehicle dealer licensing business process, applied a practical, already in-place technology that enabled dealer licensing files to be electronically exchanged, and allowed access to the same files to our staff so they can work through the licensing process simultaneously with our customers."

In 2015, MVD processed over 220,000 total cards, which includes standard licenses, commercial licenses, and identification cards for Montanans. In that same timeframe, MVD also licensed 1,146 vehicle dealers in the state. To access MVD's services, visit <https://dojmt.gov/driving/>.

Founded in 1933, AAMVA serves North American motor vehicle and law enforcement agencies to accomplish their missions. The association's vision of Safe Drivers, Safe Vehicles, Secure Identities, Saving Lives guides AAMVA's activities, resources, and programs in driver licensing, vehicle titling/registration, motor carrier services, identity management, and technology solutions. For more information about AAMVA and its awards program, visit www.AAMVA.org.

Shopping Dillon

By: MJ

Debbie at the Bookstore wrote an article on "shopping local" in Dillon. There are many reasons that determine whether one can shop and get what they need in Dillon at the time they need it. Debbie and her husband are hardworking business owners that has survived the changing times. Their business still exist because they take pride in serving their customers. The internet, along with large conglomerates have changed the way people shop in today's world. Greed and money has become king or one might say the ruler in today's world. This movement has been the undoing of many small family business that employed 0+.

In order to bring people into an area there must be leadership, long term planning, many organizations and committees working together. Example: At one time Dillon hosted the rodeo event of the year in the state of Montana. It brought hundreds of people to town that spend several days and spent an enormous amount of money. To make this event successful it took leadership with many heads and hands working together. It was a win/win for the entire town because outside (new) dollars helped filled the cash registers.

Instead of the city fathers making more rules and regulations that are beyond what the community requires today, would it be possible for them to have a meeting that says "what can we do to help Dillon survive" and not become a town supporting poverty. Instead of building costly intersections that bring no new dollars to the community would it be better for those hard working people to work toward events that can bring new dollars to community and be a benefit year after year? I understand the argument that the community must look nice however we need people to come and spend.

Dillon offers many opportunities. All it takes is for people to listen to people, put their thinking caps on, join hands and work together to take advantage of all that the area has to offer.

Dillon Community VBS Starts Monday, June 20: 9am-12pm

Six area churches will again host Community Vacation Bible School this coming Monday, June 20 through Friday, June 24 from 9am-12pm daily. All children ages 4 through 5th Grade (completed) are welcome to join the fun as we dive into "Cave Quest" adventures and learn about Jesus Christ, the Light of the World, through Bible teaching, song, games, themed snacks, crafts, and time with friends!

Registration fee is $25 per child or $60 per family and sign-up can be completed the morning of June 20th at the front entry of Our Savior's Lutheran at 715 E. Bannack Street in Dillon beginning at 8:30am. Please dress for the weather (we will spend time outdoors) and write names in everything!

We are excited to welcome the "Joshua" Summer Ministry Team from Association Free Lutheran Bible School in Plymouth, MN. Each summer, AFLBS, along with AFLC Home Missions, sends anywhere between seven and nine teams to encourage believers, reach young people for the Lord, and make disciples of Jesus Christ through Vacation Bible School, concerts, and Bible Camps.

Community VBS would not be possible without the tireless work of our volunteers and supporting churches: Grace Bible, Vineyard Christian Fellowship, Assembly of God, Our Savior's Lutheran, First Presbyterian, and Grace United Methodist.

Questions can be directed to Sarah Harrison at 834-3420 or Our Savior's Lutheran Church at 683-5374.

HANSEN AND TURK STAY IN HUNT AT CNFR

Tristan Hansen, the Big Sky Region All-around champion cowboy, notched a second straight 72 point ride Tuesday at the College National Finals Rodeo. Women's team leader Tess Turk threw down a 2.5 second breakaway run to place in a tie for fourth in the round and take the lead in the average.

Hansen, a sophomore from Victor, Idaho, is also competing in the bull riding at the CNFR, but has yet to record a score in the event which has seen only a handful of qualified rides through two rounds. In addition to placing in the breakaway, Turk, a junior from Elko, Nev., recorded a 13.4 second run in the second round of the goat tying.

Freshman Jeret Angell of St. Anthony, Idaho covered his second round saddle bronc to earn a score of 64.5 points. In the barrel racing junior Connlee Gray, Liberty Lake, Wash., nearly matched her first round time as she clocked 15.80 seconds on Tuesday.

The second round of the CNFR concludes Wednesday evening then moves to the final preliminary round which will conclude Friday, June 17. The top hands in each event will move on to the championship round on Saturday.

Blaming 'The Other' for Orlando

By Christine Flowers

I woke up, like everyone else, to tragedy Sunday morning.

Five minutes into my bleary-eyed view of the CNN reports, I already saw how this would go. First, there would be a wringing of hands about guns. Then there would be attempts to identify a motive. If a Muslim was somehow involved, a search for motives would cease. There would be moving disavowals of violence from Muslim-American leaders, and Facebook or Twitter would fill up with comments about how "they" never do enough to disavow violence.

Even while they were doing it.

There would be gun-control advocates wondering why a civilian would get his hands on a military-style automatic weapon, and others who'd respond that the carnage could have been avoided if there were other civilians with military-style weapons allowed in that presumably gun-free zone.

There would be the obligatory attack on President Obama if he didn't use the "right" words to describe the carnage, meaning that he didn't call it an attack of Islamic terror.

When it came out that the target was a gay club, people who have a thing against Christianity would be bummed because, darn it, they couldn't blame evangelical or Catholic haters for the violence. They'd like to blame Islam, but they wouldn't want to offend the wrong people.

And, this being an election year, the candidates would try to figure out a way to pick up electoral support, all the while pretending not to care about the polls.

My parents should have named me Cassandra, not Christine.
All of this came to pass. Not that it makes me happy to have the playbook for these tragedies imprinted on my mind.

When something like this happens, there is always the hope that something new or better will emerge. One prays (in the secular sense) that cooler heads and voices will prevail. One prays (in the real sense) that this will be the last time anything similar happens (except for the media, who exist for just such moments).

But there is always disappointment because we are human beings and we want to blame "the other."

That "other" could be a responsible gun owner, if you think gun access is too easy and gun-control laws are too lax. That

"other" could be a native-born U.S. citizen whose parents immigrated from Pakistan, and you think all refugees fleeing ISIS are actually jihadists in sheep's clothing. That "other" could be someone who opposes same-sex marriage if you think any criticism of gays amounts to bigotry.

I've been to this dance too many times to believe we're capable of change. We are so hard-wired to believe that "the other" is a threat that we don't want to listen to other views.

Gun-control advocates think those who defend gun ownership are natural enemies. They hate the NRA and blame all carnage on people who arm themselves, whether legally or not. Conversely, NRA members resent gun-control advocates for trying to eliminate their constitutional rights.

People who think a wall should be built blame jihad (or Mexicans) for mass murder, even when presented with the fact that killers are native-born-and-bred. People who think any discussion of the intersection between violence and ethnicity or nationality is racist feel superior to those knuckle-dragging bigots and discount their concerns.

And people who, like Hillary Clinton recently noted, think we should be able to "love who we love" think that anyone who defends their religious freedom to dissent is at best spouting hate speech and at worst, apologists for mass murder.

I'm sick of them all. What happened to the days when deaths were mourned, and fingers pointed afterwards when the heat of anger and despair had cooled to the equally painful but more manageable state of sad clarity? I think social media, including Facebook, Twitter and iPhones erased that possibility, forever.

We are pathetic, my friends, because we are predictable in the roles we play. It's not a Greek tragedy, but a reality Cassandra would recognize.

MONTANA WESTERN TO RESTORE DILLON HILLSIDE "M"

Work on restoring the "M" hillside letter above Dillon, Mont. has begun UMW Foundation Director Roxanne Engellant announced recently.

This spring Professor of Biology Wendy Ridenour's plant systematics class conducted a study of the vegetation near the "M." The findings from the study will guide the replanting effort of the vegetation dead areas around the letter.

"Over the course of a few days my biology students mapped the area around the "M" and identified dozens of plant species," Ridenour said. "This was valuable real-world work experience for the students and an important step in the overall restoration project."

The UMW biology and environmental sciences departments plan to create opportunities for their classes to assist with this project on an ongoing basis to help with the replanting efforts of the vegetation and provide hands-on experiences for their classes in the fall, Engellant said.

The process to restore the "M" is a collaborative effort involving various stakeholders including Montana Western leadership, faculty, students and alumni, the Beaverhead Trails Coalition, U.S. Forest Service and community members. The project will also require the expertise of Bureau of Land Management rangeland management specialists and USDA botanists.

The restoration project will be ongoing through summer 2016 and into 2017.
