Father's Day: Things Your Dad Never Told You

Tyrades! By Danny Tyree

The demands of fatherhood (okay, and a cracked vertebra) have left me too distracted to string together a coherent Father's Day essay, so instead I'm sharing 14 random thoughts about the occasion:

1. A father is the sort of person who can't find a major national park with a detailed map and GPS, but CAN unerringly find a one-inch plastic soldier with a bare foot.
2. Fatherhood is no longer the safe gig it used to be; now you have to worry about Uber undercutting you on all the prime piggyback ride assignments. And where the "World's Best Dad" mug used to be a shoo-in, now nothing is sure until the superdelegate votes are counted.
3. In 1966 President Lyndon Johnson proclaimed Father's Day to be an official national holiday. LBJ was unsuccessful, however, in convincing Congress to guarantee that all prosthetic legs for fathers injured in the Vietnam War came readymade with sandals and black socks.
4. It wasn't until 1972 that President Richard Nixon signed into law a permanent U.S. Father's Day to be observed on the third Sunday of June. Said Nixon, "I am not a crook — just as I told those lobbyists from Acme Ugly Necktie Company and Acme Superfluous Screwdriver Company. Wink wink."
5. Only dads say things like, "Well, the FDA didn't say anything about banning sodium-heavy POWER TOOLS."
6. Dads occupy a special place. No, not the special place where they have us stash dirty dishes and dirty laundry while mom is away — a special place in our HEARTS. Good grief!
7. Upstanding fathers swell with pride and observe, "The apple doesn't fall far from the tree." Less upstanding fathers observe, "The apple doesn't fall far from the tree, but it falls far enough to trigger a personal injury suit. Grab a shady lawyer."
8. Fathers can't help but have a cynical streak. After all the innocent-looking boxes that promise "Some assembly required," they can't hear a DJ say, "Put your hands together," without thinking, "Swell! There will probably be at least three parts left over!"
9. According to years of research by the American Optometric Association, only a father could lose a grandmother, a favorite old dog and a pennant race all in the same day and pull that crap about "There must be something in my eye."
10. Only a father could bellyache, "Junior, I've heard you whine about that car payment for the hundredth time. I wish you'd just — hey! It's the MILLIONTH time the oldies station has played 'Layla'! Quick! Hand me my air guitar! No, no that one — the other one! And tell all your

- remaining friends to come over and watch!"
- At least advances in theoretical science are breathing new life into old fatherhood cliches. ("Why? Because quantum physics said so!")
 - Other dad speeches have evolved. ("When I was your age...Hmm, was I EVER your age? This Botox is some great stuff! If they could get Clydesdales to pull it, I'd never need anything else!")
 - Dads think having possession of a device for controlling the flatscreen TV is a national priority. Controlling the bean burritos they had for lunch? Eh, not so much.
 - In spite of an ongoing fascination with the occult, the world still hears fewer outbursts of "I'm turning into a werewolf!" than "I'm turning into my father!"

Headwaters RC&D Area, Inc. is holding a Homebuyer's Education Class:

JUNE 20TH & 21ST, 2016

from 5:00-9:00 p.m. both evenings

Happy Father's Day, Pop

With Father's Day being this Sunday I thought I would submit one of the many stories I have written about my wonderful Pop.

Even though he has been gone for 57 years he will always remain fresh in my memory bank.

Happy Father's Day, Pop from you chum!

Another memory from my past...

Chapped Lips

By Chuck Dishno

My Dad, Ed Dishno, was born on cattle ranch in 1884 in the Big Hole Valley near Jackson, Montana.

His Father was an early day homesteader in Montana and they knew many hard times as the weather then was much colder and harsher than now but they learned to make due with what was on hand.

Many years later my Dad lost his own ranch due to the Great Depression. Pop took it all in stride and went to Oregon with my Mom where I was born in 1934..

One thing Pop always had on hand was a tin of salve called Pazo. Pop said this was the best thing he had ever use in the harsh weather of Montana and Oregon for chapped lips. It seemed to do the trick and we all used it including my Mom, Grandmother and two half-brothers.

When I was about 15, Pop, who had been a timber faller for several years in Oregon followed his company's move to Dinuba, California.

I would join him in the summers and we would work side-by-side falling trees. It was a great time in my life, being able work with this wonderful man.

One Saturday we came out of the woods and went to Dinuba to stock up on supplies.

While Mom did most of the shopping, Pop said he was about out of Pazo so he went to a drugstore to purchase another tin or two. When he couldn't find any Pazo on the shelf, he asked the druggist if he carried it. The druggist said that he didn't carry that brand but had something else just as good for hemorrhoids. Pop, looked startled and said, "Hemorrhoids, is that what that stuff is for, hell, I've been using it for chapped lips for 50 years!"

The druggist just about fell over laughing and when he finally composed himself said, "Well, I guess what's good for one end is good for the other."

I asked Pop where he had heard about Pazo and said that one of his ranch hands had told him about it years ago and had been using it every since.

Pazo can still be found on some drugstore shelves. Goggle lists it as a pile or hemorrhoid ointment. They say nothing about chapped lips though

I can attest that it really does work on either end but I would suggest getting separate tins.

SHORT GO IN SIGHT FOR HANSEN AND TURK

Tristan Hansen, all-around hand from Victor, Idaho was the first Bulldog to put himself in position for the short round competition at the College National Finals Rodeo. Tess Turk, of Elko, Nev. recorded her third solid breakaway run moments later to place herself on the short go list as well.

In the first round, Hansen battled to a 72 point score on his second horse of the evening and then matched that score in the second round. On Wednesday night Hansen scored a 65 point ride to record three qualified rides in the competition, he also ended his work in the bull riding with a no score. Hansen is now left to watch the rest of the competition as the preliminary rounds conclude over the next two performances. Turk caught her three breakaway calves in a total of 9.4 seconds and still has a third run goat tying remaining to earn points toward the all-around title and a chance at the short go.

Senior Dakota Munns, saddle bronc, junior Connlee Gray, barrel racing, sophomore Jacob Worthen, steer wrestling, and freshman bull rider Ruger Piva will compete in the third round on Thursday and Friday evening.

Freshman Darby Yeager, breakaway, and Jaret Angell, saddle bronc, finished their first CNFR appearances with one score apiece in the three rounds, but will bring the experience back to lead Montana Western when the fall rodeo season kicks off in September. Senior Philip Shields, Philipsburg, Mont., concluded his collegiate career in the saddle bronc competition at the CNFR, five weeks after earning his bachelor's degree.

B.O.A. NEEDS VOLUNTEERS FOR KIDS FISH DAY

The Beaverhead Outdoors Association needs volunteers on Friday at 3 pm to set up tents for Kid's Fish Day on Saturday. Report to the kids pond and they will put you to work. The more help the faster it goes! Thank you for helping the kids.
