FENCING PROJECT MAYBE SOONER THAN ONCE PLANNED

A fatal collision with an elk on interstate 90 that took the life of a Bozeman man may be what moves a $1.5 million fence project forward soon than it was planned.

The stretch of interstate that has been a problem for years is between Drummond and Gold Creek. The plan is to use fences to get roaming elk to go through four existing underpasses in the eight mile stretch of road. The Missoula district of Montana Department of Transportation and the Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks have been working on the issue for some time. There are many engineering issues as well as getting landowners and the FWP on the same page.

The fencing project would be part of safety and part interstate maintenance for funding. Safety funds require a cost-benefit analysis. Because of the tragic motorcycle, elk collision that cost a life this has risen to the top. The elk, along with other animals are very active in the early morning and late evening hours when there is limited visibility. We all know how sudden a deer or elk can appear in front of a vehicle and you don't have time to do anything. On a motorcycle you have nowhere to go, short of just laying the bike down and at 70 to 80 miles an hour your chances are not great to survive.

The Wallace Ranch at Jens has historically prohibited hunting and the herd grew until they were damaging crops and haystacks in the area. Elk were transplanted off the ranch at one time and then after Mr. Wallace passed in the early 90's, his wife allowed block management hunting. It moved the elk into public lands but did little to manage the number in the herd. In recent years the hunting has been more restricted again and the elk counts have climbed to as many as 1,400.

The fencing project is ultimately the responsibility of the MDT but Region 2 wildlife manager for FWP, Mike Thompson said we can help a lot. He said they have some good relationships with key people along the interstate and are willing to get some conversations going but we're certainly not going to convince them to do what they don't want to do. An eight mile stretch and some fence will not end all animal, vehicle collisions but every little bit will help prevent this kind of tragedy from happening to another family.

4th Of July Trivia Facts 2015: 15 Fun Things To Know About Independence Day

Happy birthday, America! Picnics, barbeques, cold drinks and fireworks: These are just some of the staples of the Fourth of July. But without America's Founding Fathers -- George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, James Madison, Alexander Hamilton and James Monroe -- there wouldn't be an Independence Day to celebrate.

While most Americans know that the U.S.'s birthday is celebrated on July 4, it's a misconception that all the signers of the Declaration of Independence signed it on the Fourth of July. For more fun facts about America's Independence Day, keep reading:

1. How many people signed the Declaration of Independence on July Fourth?

Two.

2. What day did most signers of the Declaration of Independence actually sign the document?

Aug. 2, 1776.

3. Did you know which president was born on July 4?

It was Calvin Coolidge, the 30th president, in 1872.

4. Which three presidents died on the Fourth of July:

They were three of the first five presidents: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe. The second president, Adams, and the third, Jefferson, both died in 1826, the 50th anniversary.

Rumors

By: MJ

Rumors are that zoning committee members would like the city to do a better job managing the requirements of the zoning document. It appears that people may be making improvements and other enhancements to their personal property without applying for a Compliance Certificate.

Compliance Certificates go through the Director of Operations office. The duties of the Director of Operations follow. NOTE: After reading the requirements one might wonder if the city needs to hire another person to oversee the requirements of the zoning document only.

Director of Operations Job Description: 2.18.010 The Director of Operations shall supervise, direct and plan the daily work activities of the water and sewer; street and alley; cemetery and parks departments of the City and generally assist the Mayor in managing the affairs of the City. He will perform such other duties as may be required by the Mayor or City Council. 2.18.040 The Director of Operations shall, as the City's zoning compliance officer, have charge of all matters relating to zoning compliance. 2.18.050 The Director of Operations shall attend all meetings of the Council and report to the Council the activities and projects of each department he supervises.

It has been implied at city meetings that it would be helpful for the city personnel if people in the community would report any neighbors, friends, enemies or other residents that they see making changes to their property. Maybe, just maybe instead of pitting people against people the zoning document needs to be tweaked thus making it more palatable for the people who own property within the city limits and easier for the city personnel to do their job.

There is always more than one (1) way to fix a problem. As humans we get tunnel vision and can only see one way. Reality is when you pit people against people you will tempt anger. Do we really want trust and belief in one another to go away? Do we really want to live where the rule of action is; "do it my way or hit the highway?" Many have "hit the highway" and built their dream homes out of the city limits.

QUESTION: Would the city be able to come up with extra money to hire a person to manage the zoning document without raising taxes? The city has a heavy load at this time with city streets begging for repairs, outstanding loans of millions, the city's water line needing million dollar plus repairs...

NOTE: Yes, the zoning committee has been working to change/remove conflicting, confusing and additional requirements to Title 17, Zoning Ordinance. Most of changes have been wordsmithery and not changes to the contents.

MONTANA WESTERN HOSTS SUMMER ATHLETIC CAMPS

Summer athletic camps are underway at the University of Montana Western.

The Montana Western athletics department puts on several sports camps each summer, including men's and women's basketball, volleyball and football.

The camps draw students from across Montana with campers ranging from fourth to 12th grade.

Most instructors are student-athletes and health and human performance (HHP) majors who are studying at Montana Western to become coaches and teachers.

"These camps fit in well with our dedication to experiential learning because it allows our students to gain hands-on experience with the age group they eventually want to teach," HHP Professor Janelle Handlos said. "Students also get to learn from coaching professionals who share their expertise and help advance the coaching field."

The facilities at Montana Western allow for students to practice all day at the Bulldog Athletic and Recreation Center and sleep and dine in the University's Mathews Hall.

"Montana Western has the ideal facilities to host summer athletic camps," women's basketball coach Lindsay Woolley said. "We have the space to accommodate more than two hundred campers in just one building and our community is a friendly and safe place to send kids."

Tremendous growth and returning athletes is evidence of the success of the camps, Woolley explained.

For information on upcoming basketball camps contact men's basketball coach Steve Keller at 406-683-7341.

For information on upcoming volleyball camps contact volleyball coach Brent Lewis at 406-683-7444.

Attorney General Fox Warns
Montanans of Paver Scams

Attorney General Tim Fox and the Office of Consumer Protection at the Montana Department of Justice want to warn Montanans of a door-to-door 'paver scam' that has been seen recently in Great Falls and Helena. Here's how it works:

A "contractor" will pull up in front of a consumer's house, usually in an unmarked van or truck and will knock on the consumer's door claiming they have leftover asphalt from another job they were working on nearby. The scammer will tell the homeowner that since they are going to use leftover material, they can offer a low price and sometimes a lifetime warranty on the paving or patching of the homeowner's driveway.

The "contractor" will then complete the work, sometimes without getting approval from the homeowner first. Alternatively, the homeowner might agree to have some areas of the driveway patched, but the pavers end up resurfacing the entire driveway. However, they often use substandard material that does not harden to an acceptable strength and will simply peel away from the driveway over time. The scammers will then demand a much higher price than was agreed on, if a price was agreed on at all. The con artists can become very aggressive and try to pressure the homeowner into paying them immediately, sometimes even threatening to tear up the driveway.

Another version of this scam involves the con artists writing up a bid, asking for a portion of the payment as a "deposit," and then never returning to do the work promised.

These cons are typically based outside of Montana and often move on to another community by the time the blacktop dries.

OCP's investigators report a surge of consumer complaints about this type of scam in the past few weeks for the Great Falls area, and the past few days for the Helena area.

"As always, the best defense against these particular scam artists is education," said Attorney General Fox. "Watch for some of the telltale signs of illegitimacy, such as a price quote that seems too good to be true, or a refusal to take 'no' for an answer."

Tip-offs to "fly-by-night" paver or home improvement swindlers include:

- Arrival in an unmarked truck or van;

- Refusal to provide a written estimate, contract or references;
- Very low bids; and
- The ability to "start tomorrow" on your project.

If you are approached by a contractor, ask for a business card that shows their registration and licensing information.

"You can also verify they are registered to do business in Montana by searching for their company online at mtcontractor.com or by calling the Montana Department of Labor at (406) 444 - 7734," said Attorney General Fox. "If you decide to move forward with paving, get a written description of the work to be done and the cost. And don't be afraid to say no. This should be a practice even if you make the first contact. It's also a good idea to get at least three estimates on any repair or construction work."

NEXT STEPS:

To report an attempted scam, call your local police department, or the Montana Department of Justice's Office of Consumer Protection at (800) 481-6896 or (406) 444-4500, or <https://dojmt.gov/consumer/>.
