Madeline Nygaard Zukauckas

Madeline (Lynne) Zukauckas passed away June 24, 2016 in Kalispell, MT. Lynne was born in Ballard, WA November 22, 1943 to Iris and Aage Nygaard.

The family moved back to Montana when Lynne was two years old and settled in Hamilton. They relocated to Dillon in 1957. Lynne attended school in Dillon for two years, but finished high school in Hamilton.

She moved back and forth from Hamilton and Dillon until 2011 when her and her husband, Walt Zukauckas moved to Libby.

Lynne was married four times. She had three children with her first husband, Barney Orand, then married Nels Nygren and gave birth to the fourth child. Later she married Daniel Block. Daniel adopted the children at that time.

Lynne enjoyed her life and loved her children and the good times they had. She spent many hours reading and learning the computer. She also liked to crochet.

Lynne is survived by her four children, Wayne Block of Libby, Teresa Soley of Lake Stevens, Washington, Cara Peters of Tuscan, Arizona, and Michael Block of Las Vegas, Nevada. Her eight grand children and five great grand children, sisters Diana Pemilland, Wilma Marchesseau, and Sheryl Woods, all of Dillon.

Forest Service Closes Hazardous Mine Openings

The Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest (BDNF) possesses a mining heritage with one of the most extensive and best-preserved compliments of historic mining in the Northern Rockies Region. Commonly encountered historic mining features such as open adits and/or shafts with unstable structures or debris have been abandoned and inactive for many years and present a public safety hazard. Inventory of the abandoned mine hazards is an ongoing program on the Forest.

The purpose of the inventory is to identify hazardous mine openings to close and reclaim. As part of this ongoing program to close hazardous openings, the BDNF proposes to close eleven to twelve mine openings this summer. The closure work this year will be located on the Pintler, Jefferson, Butte and Dillon Ranger Districts.

Adequate access routes necessary to perform the closure work exist and the Forest plans to close the openings by installing either bat-friendly structures, polyurethane foam, or backfilling with nearby materials. The Forest will keep disturbance of the surrounding area to a minimum and preserve the mining setting.

Direct any requests for additional information about the closure of these hazardous mine openings to Licette Hammer, (406) 683-3911 or lhammer@fs.fed.us.

Siblings
 By: MJ
 Do you have siblings? Of all people that we have relationships with our siblings may be an important link in our life. We shared parents, competition, laughter, tears, bedrooms, cars, clothes, battles, deepest secrets... As adults we watch our parents pass on, our children grow up, health issues, partners passing on, divorces... As we travel through life siblings share the same societies and the same time periods. From birth to death siblings are experiencing similar things.
 You may have been a sibling that was a needed care giver for younger siblings, you may have been a sibling that was required to work and help support family, you may have been a child that was expressive and outgoing, you may have been a quiet child, you may have been academically inclined, you may have been a child that struggled with school, you may have been good in sports... Whatever your experiences were you probably shared them with siblings and they had impact on who you were as an adult.
 Do you have siblings you are estranged from, don't speak to? You may have formed a false opinion about that sibling based on childhood days. Often it takes years to get to a place where we can communicate with alienated siblings. When siblings get together as adults they tend to revert back to the childhood relationship they had. Coupling that childhood communication with what life as an adult has taught us and our conversation will take on a total different perspectives often changes our relationships for the better.
 Restoring that sibling relationship may be a bright spot in your future.

Beware of Distracted Drivers this Summer
 By Tom Purcell
 As you hit the roadways this summer, here's a safety tip to keep in mind: Beware of distracted drivers.
 According to Distraction.gov, the official U.S. government website for distracted driving, this involves "any activity that could divert a person's attention away from the primary task of driving."
 Distractions include everything from eating and drinking to using a navigation system to adjusting a stereo -- or worse.
 When I lived in Washington, D.C., I saw people do some nutty things on the Beltway most mornings: applying makeup, working on computers, participating in video-phone conferences in which, I imagine, political types were concocting new strategies to fleece the American taxpayer.

The most dangerous distraction, however, continues to be texting because it "requires visual, manual and cognitive attention from the driver."

And, boy, is texting a problem.

According to the CTIA Wireless Association, Americans had sent nearly 170 billion text messages as of 2014 -- and many did so while behind the wheel.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that the percentage of drivers text messaging or visibly manipulating handheld devices increased from 1.7 percent in 2013 to 2.2 percent in 2014.

NHTSA also reported that since 2007, young drivers, ages 16 to 24, have been observed manipulating electronic devices at much higher rates than older drivers -- in part because older drivers don't know how to work their newfangled gadgets.

In any event, National Occupant Protection Use Surveys found out that at any given moment during the day, approximately 660,000 American drivers are using cellphones to talk, text or use apps while they are driving -- a number that has held steady since 2010.

And cellphone use is causing 1.6 million crashes each year, according to the National Safety Council. The council also reported nearly 330,000 injuries occur each year from accidents caused by texting while driving and that 1 out of every 4 car accidents in the United States is caused by texting and driving.

Which means we drivers need to knock it off.

Look, how many studies do we have to do to finally realize how dangerous cellphone use is in our cars?

Carnegie Mellon University found that talking on a cellphone reduces activity in the brain's parietal lobe by 37 percent -- and probably reduces the parietal lobe in men by 74 percent, since we men generally use only half a brain anyway.

Here's another troubling finding: According to the Virginia Tech Transportation Institute, texting while driving diverts your eyes from the road for an average of five seconds. At 55 mph, that's enough time to cover the length of a football field blindfolded.

The fact is people are not good at multitasking while driving -- certainly not good at using their cellphones while driving.

You'd think it would be simple common sense -- that people would know better than to try to text and drive or take cellphone calls while they're roaring down a highway at a high rate of speed -- but that isn't the case.

You'd think there would be no need for new laws and penalties to punish and prevent distracted driving, but, unfortunately, there is.

Every day, newspaper headlines feature tragedies that involve texting drivers -- and the subsequent manslaughter lawsuits that many of these texting drivers are facing.

And that is why many people -- people like me who are otherwise wary of our government -- agree that state and local governments need to crack down hard on this matter until a thick-headed public finally grasps the seriousness of cellphone use while driving.

So be careful when you hit the roadways this summer -- careful to avoid a still growing number of distracted American drivers.

Letter to the Editor

With the onset of deer hunting season still several months away..... Here's a question!

Looking forward to hunting season, I do have a question. If I shoot a buck, but I only have a doe-tag, can I claim that the buck wasn't really a buck? I mean... maybe he'd always wanted to be a doe, but with no choice of his own, he was born with the physical attributes of a male. And yet.... on the inside he'd always known he was truly a female. I'm just wondering if the game warden will buy it, because society and the Supreme Court do.

Animal Shelter Needs to Borrow a 4 Horse Trailer

By the front gate of the Beaverhead Animal Shelter, there is a large bin for cans to be recycled. The bin is FULL. The Shelter needs to borrow a 4 horse trailer with a bumper hitch so they can haul the cans to Butte. There are people at the Shelter who will load the trailer. Please contact the Shelter Manager, Susie Brown, at 406-683-8119 if (1) you have a 4 horse trailer they can borrow for several days, or (2) you have a pick-up and 4 horse trailer they can borrow for several days, or (3) you have a pick-up and 4 horse trailer and are willing to take the load to the recycle center in Butte. The Shelter will reimburse you for your gas expense. All the proceeds from the sale of these cans go to help with the expenses of the Shelter. Since the bin is FULL, we would like to do this yet this week.

Financial Assistance

Notification

If you have active insurance coverage & your household earns 200% or less of the published federal poverty level you are eligible to apply for assistance with your Barrett Hospital & HealthCare bills. For details see below and contact Barrett Hospital & HealthCare.

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare (BHH) offers financial assistance to those who apply, qualify, and submit all required documentation timely for the program. The financial assistance program is a payer of last resort and applicants should check with Insurance Market Place the local Office of Public Assistance (OPA) to determine if they qualify for programs or coverage prior to applying.

BHH's financial assistance program is administered in conjunction with the Federal Poverty Guidelines that are used nationwide and that pertain to medical services provided at Barrett Hospital and Healthcare only. These guidelines incorporate rationale for age, number and ages of dependents and provide definitions of family and net income. The United States Department of Health and Human Services sets the Federal Poverty Income Guidelines and applies annual revisions to account for increases in the Consumer Price Index. BHH increases the federal poverty income levels from 100% to 200% for eligibility purposes.
