MONTANA WESTERN RANKED AMONG TOP UNIVERSITIES FOR VALUE & AFFORDABILITY

The University of Montana Western was recently ranked among the top 40 universities in the west in the "Best Bang for the Buck" category by Washington Monthly magazine.

Washington Monthly has published annual rankings of U.S. colleges and universities since 2005. Their survey is based on recruiting and graduating low-income students, research and encouraging students to give back to their country.

"We're very encouraged by the Washington Monthly ranking which puts us in the same category with many larger and more well known institutions," Montana Western Chancellor Beth Weatherby said. "This helps us in spreading the word that students can obtain a quality education at an affordable price from our university."

The "Best Bang for the Buck" ranking includes an exclusive list of schools in the west who help students attain marketable degrees at affordable prices. The top 40 list includes Stanford University, the University of California at Los Angeles, the University of Utah and Arizona State University.

The ranking comes on the heels of several national rankings recognizing Montana Western's innovative Experience One program, affordability, small class sizes and location.

Last month Money Magazine named Montana Western the best university in the state.

Washington Monthly's rankings are supported by the Lumina Foundation, The Kresge Foundation, and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

West Nile Virus

1. West Nile Virus: Montana Department of Livestock received reports of three new West Nile Virus (WNV) positive horses this week, bringing our annual total to 5. The new cases were in Cascade, Valley, and Carbon Counties. None of the animals were current vaccinates. One of the three was euthanized, consistent with our historical fatality rate of 30%. This information is shared with DPHHS for public health outreach purposes. For information on all WNV activity in Montana, a summary including human, equine, and mosquito positives is available here. Montana has had 6 human cases of WNV this year, including one fatality in McCone County. By Tahnee Szymanski

2. Equine Piroplasmiasis in Wyoming: A cluster of horses with piroplasmiasis have been detected in Wyoming. High risk practices (i.e. reusing needles or syringes) on the racing Quarter Horse circuit have been linked to prior outbreaks in other states, and these may have also been a factor in this incident. It's important to note that only racing Quarter Horses are at risk in this outbreak.

Equine Piroplasmiasis found in Wyoming race horses

On August 25, Wyoming State Veterinarian Jim Logan was notified by USDA APHIS that a Wyoming origin race horse had tested positive in California for Equine Piroplasmiasis, a reportable horse disease. Subsequent testing of other horses in Wyoming that were associated with the positive animal has shown there are 13 additional infected horses involved that belong to one owner in Wyoming as well as another horse belonging to one owner from Utah.

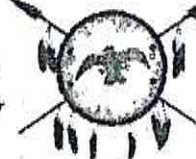

Soon after receiving news of the infected horse in California, Dr. Logan, along with USDA APHIS and the Wyoming Pari-Mutuel Commission, were able to establish quarantine, testing and movement protocols on the associated horses in Wyoming. These animals are currently under quarantine at the owner's property.

"We are currently dealing with a horse disease in Wyoming that is specific to race track activities and is not a threat to the general equine population in the state," said Logan.

Equine Piroplasmiasis (EP) is a parasitic infection of equidae that can be spread naturally to equids by ticks or by humans to equids through contaminated needles, syringes, and treatment/surgical equipment and products. The organism that causes the disease is a protozoa named Theileria equi and another strain named Babesia caballi. Clinical signs of the disease are fever, anemia, anorexia, depression, and jaundice. Some infected animals may carry the disease without showing any clinical signs.

Horses affected with Equine Piroplasmiasis may be treated under quarantine at the owner's expense. This is an expensive and very time-consuming process that can take over two years. Other options include lifetime quarantine at a state-monitored location or euthanasia. Dr. Logan and veterinary staff are working with the owner to determine the future disposition of affected animals.

Title 9 of the Code of Federal Regulations prohibits the interstate movement of EP positive equine, but it does not restrict intra-state movement of exposed animals. Therefore, following consultation with the USDA APHIS Equine Epidemiologist, Wyoming Livestock Board (WLSB) veterinarians may allow permitted movement of test negative animals to other Wyoming race tracks this racing season.

"We are not concerned about horse to horse transmission of this disease," he said. "The transmission risk of concern is from human (trainer/owner) use of contaminated equipment or product among horses."

On the advice of Dr. Logan, the Wyoming Pari-Mutuel Commission has issued an order, which will go into effect on September 8, requiring all horses that enter a sanctioned race track in Wyoming to have a negative Theileria equi cELISA test within 12 months prior to the event. Dr. Logan and USDA APHIS are currently working with Director Will Laegreid of the Wyoming State Veterinary Laboratory (WSVL) to enable the lab to conduct testing for EP. This is expected to take about 10 days.

Until WSVL is able to conduct EP testing, veterinarians asked to test horses pursuant to the Pari-Mutuel Commission order can send samples to Colorado State University Laboratory, National Veterinary Services Laboratories or other approved laboratories.

FISHING RESTRICTIONS LIFTED ON MADISON, GALLATIN, & E. GALLATIN RIVERS

Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks lifted fishing restrictions Tuesday on three southwest Montana rivers given improved conditions.

The Madison, Gallatin, and East Gallatin River are now fully open to fishing.

Meanwhile, the three following sections of the Big Hole River remain closed to all fishing until further notice:

- Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks' Maiden Rock FAS to Notch Bottom FAS;
- Saginaw Bridge on Skinner Meadows Road to the confluence of the North Fork Big Hole River and Big Hole River;
- Notch Bottom FAS to confluence with the Beaverhead River.

The entire Jefferson also remains closed.

Although flows have improved on the Big Hole and the Jefferson, the criteria for reopening listed in drought management plans for these rivers have not yet been met.

ONCE A GREAT NATION

Last night you said I should be grateful to live in the greatest country in the world. The fact is I was grateful when I lived in the greatest country in the world. Grateful enough to have served that country for 9 continuous years for which I received very little compensation. 6 years in the military prepared to die for that country if necessary. In the military I received very little compensation as compared to civilian pay. The training I received there, while vital to the military had no practical use at all in the civilian world but I was glad to do it. In civilian life I also worked to support that country and try to make it better also for little compensation. The main compensation I received for those years was not monetary or job training but being able to meet and observe people of all kinds and nationalities and social standings, many of whom I wouldn't have probably met otherwise.

An equally or greater country existed before our time. It was so great that it's world wide influence is still evident today in many ways. That great nation no longer exists because of the things that are happening now in this once great nation. For this I cannot be grateful. The disease that destroyed Rome was apathy. People not getting involved because they are alright now and it doesn't affect them - they think.

For years our schools have changed from places of learning to places of indoctrination in the politically correct. And few are trying to do anything about it. The schools are teaching politically correct reading and writing and the history they teach is altered to the point that much of it is pure fiction. They teach only that part of history that they want kids to know. But the few who are protesting get little or no support from even the so called Christian society. Apathy!

What's going on in this country right now is what took place in Germany in the 1920's - 30's - and 40's. Indoctrination of the young especially - division and elimination of all non politically correct organization (Christians) by any means possible. Exterminate the Jews - exterminate the die hard Christian.

This country is on the verge of turning against the only ally we have in the Mideast - Isreal. Does anybody care? Not noticeably - without God's help. The national of Isreal will be destroyed in a few years - first the Jews, then the Christians.

Years ago when I witnessed the celebration of the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ turn into a Pagan ritual, I called the school principle to complain. The explanation I got was essentially that the religion of atheism has priority and cannot be challenged without fear of government punitive action. So we are stuck with it. To my knowledge no one else has made a direct challenge to this policy. People still send their kids to participate in these Pagan rites and applaud them for doing it.

This is what you consider to be the greatest nation on Earth?

To my knowledge no one else has stood up to protest the anti Christian people at our schools - not one.

Join the PC police and brand me a traitor if you will, but I can not and will not be grateful for the collapse of this once great nation. Just because for the moment I am doing just fine I will not sit in apathy waiting for the end.

If you're not part of the solution, you are part of the problem. To do nothing is to support the end of this once great nation.
