On the lighter side
By: MJ

The following might define men and their life from a women's point of view.

Men pack 1 suitcase for 5 day vacation, men can open all the jars, men's wrinkles add character, and men have 2 pairs of shoes that do not blister or cut into their feet. Men's phone conversations are over in 30 seconds. Everything on a man's face stays the same color, hairstyle last for years, they never see wrinkles in their clothes and they only have to shave their face and neck.

Men can play with toys all their life, wear shorts no matter how the legs look, 'do' their nails with a pocket knife and do Christmas shopping for everyone on their list on the 24th and 25th.

When women friends go out to dinner they address each other by their given names. When men go out they use nicknames like Fat Boy, Bubba, Wildman, Easy Money... Men will each put money on the table to pay however a women gets the calculator out.

Bathrooms: A man has 6-7 items in the bathroom and women has triple that.

Arguments: A man would say that a woman has the last word in any argument and anything a man would say is the beginning of another argument.

Women marry men thinking they will change and man marries women expecting that she won't change, (she does). A woman knows all about the children, when appointments are, who is romancing who, favorite foods, their hopes, dreams... Men are vaguely aware of some short people living in the house.

. Men wake up as good-looking as they went to bed. Women somehow deteriorate during the night.

. A married man should forget his mistakes. There's no use in two people remembering the same thing.

Montana Joins $18.5M Settlement with Target Corporation over 2013 Data Breach

Attorney General Tim Fox announced that Montana has joined with 46 other states and the District of Columbia in an $18.5 million settlement with the Target Corporation to resolve the states' investigation into the retail company's 2013 data breach. The settlement represents to largest multistate data breach settlement achieved to date.

The states' investigation, led by Connecticut and Illinois, found that, on or about November 12, 2013, cyber attackers accessed Target's gateway server through credentials stolen from a third-party vendor. The credentials were then used to exploit weaknesses in Target's system, which allowed the attackers to access a customer service database; to install malware on the system and to capture data, including consumer data comprised of full names, telephone numbers, email addresses and mailing addresses; payment card numbers, expiration dates and CVV1 codes; and encrypted debit PINs.

The breach affected more than 41 million customer payment card accounts and contact information for more than 60 million customers. It's estimated that between 150,000 and 210,000 Montana consumers may have been affected by the data breach.

"Target's failure to safeguard customer information resulted in exposure to identity theft for thousands of Montanans during the holiday shopping season four years ago," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Today's settlement is a step in the right direction toward restoring the confidence Montanans should expect when they shop, especially at major retailers, that their payment card information and personal data is safe."

In addition to the monetary payment to the states, the settlement agreement requires Target to develop, implement and maintain a comprehensive information security program and to employ an executive or officer who is responsible for executing the plan. The company is required to hire an independent, qualified third-party to conduct a comprehensive security assessment.

The settlement further requires Target to maintain and support software on its network; to maintain appropriate encryption policies, particularly as pertains to cardholder and personal information data; to segment its cardholder data environment from the rest of its computer network; and to undertake steps to control access to its network,

"Through the fee implementation we will be able to make improvements to the site, said Eric Tomasik, acting District Ranger. Future improvements to Piney Boat launch will include repairs to the boat ramp, picnic areas, shoreline protection, and signing. Implementation of fees at Piney, and other recreation sites across the forest, were identified in a 2008 Recreation Facility Analysis that made recommendations to address deteriorating facilities, increased user demand, and program costs.

Beginning July 1 and continuing through September fees at the Piney Boat Launch will be $5/day per vehicle. A season pass will available for $50 from BSRC at Piney Campground. Senior and Golden Age passes will be honored for day use fees. Fees will not be charged fall through spring when the concessionaire does not manage recreation sites around Georgetown Lake.

For additional information, contact the Pintler Ranger District at (406) 859-3211.
