REMINDER: NO FIREWORKS ON FWP LANDS

Visiting a Montana fishing access site on the July 4th is a great idea – just leave the fireworks at home.

Fire season in Montana is already underway in many parts of the state. This means it's all our responsibility to be careful with fire and any potential sources of ignition. It's been a long-standing policy with Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks to keep fireworks off our sites to ensure the safety of our public and to protect our recreation and habitat resources.

Fireworks are illegal on all state and federal land in Montana, including all FWP fishing access sites, wildlife management areas, State Parks and other sites.

"The recent high temperatures and dry conditions is elevating the wildfire danger across the state, particularly in the east and northeast parts of the state; where conditions are extremely dry. These conditions coupled with fireworks and increasing summer recreation have put firefighters on heightened alert," said FWP director Martha Williams. "One careless spark could ignite the next wildfire."

Anyone using fireworks on FWP lands may be charged with a misdemeanor that can result in a fine up to $500.

July 4th Pancake Breakfast

The Grasshopper Valley Volunteer Fire Dept. will be holding their July 4th Pancake Breakfast at the Fire Hall in Polaris from 8 to 11 am.

The Grasshopper Valley Ladies Club will also have their popular home baked goods table at the breakfast again.

Annual FREE 4th of July Family BBQ

The Dillon Jaycee Auxiliary is hosting their annual FREE 4th of July Family BBQ in conjunction with the DUI Task Force. Hosted at the Ray Lynch Memorial Field/Park. Food will be provided from 6:00 p.m. until food runs out. There will be kid friendly activities, such as face painting, 3-legged races, and water balloon toss. Bring chairs and blankets to watch the Dillon Jaycee firework show following food and games. No alcohol please.

Beaverhead-Deerlodge NF to Spray for Bark Beetles in Recreation Areas

The Forest Service will be applying insecticides in recreation sites throughout the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest over the next several weeks. The need for this is driven by current mountain pine beetle activity, which has heavily affected many areas throughout southwest Montana and has already impacted some individual trees within popular recreation areas.

If you're planning your annual family outing on the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest, or if it's your first visit to the vast 3.35-million acre forest, you may note that many of the recreation sites will look different than seen in years past or in pictures.

"Spraying will begin in early July with individual tree treatments in those places we know a large majority of forest visitors and users will be this summer — campgrounds, day-use areas, and trailheads," commented Silviculturist Anton Brennick. "To be effective, we must spray the live trees before the beetles fly again and bore into and, subsequently, lay their eggs in the new-found trees. "Campground users will notice packets stapled to trees. These 2"x2" packets contain Verbenone and/or MCH which are pheromones used to ward away bark beetles in Douglas-fir. Visitors will also notice a caulk-like substance containing Verbenone known as SPLAT applied to trees and is used to ward off beetles in lodgepole pine and in areas where we cannot spray Carbaryl pesticides due to its adjacency to water".

Beginning in early July and continuing through mid-July, depending upon the weather, a Forest Service workforce will be applying SPLAT and spraying Carbaryl to protect individual pine trees from mountain pine beetles in recreation sites on the following ranger districts of the Sites marked with () will not be closed but will have packets or SPLAT placed on trees to reduce impacts from bark beetles. Signs will be posted at locations where work is occurring with information on the chemical used, and closure period, including a potential time when the location can once again be used. Exposure of the public to Carbaryl spray, Verbenone SPLAT and MCH packets should be minimal to non-existent.

Weather will affect the spraying schedule as application will not occur on windy or rainy days, nor will it be done within 75 feet of water. Picnic tables, fire pits and restroom doors will be covered with plastic during spraying.

Montana Attorney General Tim Fox Defends Coal Lease Decision, Intervenes In Lawsuit

Responding to a lawsuit filed in Federal District Court against the U.S. Department of Interior, Montana Attorney General Tim Fox filed for intervention Thursday on behalf of the state of Montana, defending the U.S. DOI's reversal of the Obama Administration's moratorium on federal coal leases.

The lawsuit--filed by multiple environmental groups as well as attorneys general from New Mexico, California, New York and Washington--seeks to reverse a March 29 Secretarial Order issued by U.S. Department of Interior Secretary, Ryan Zinke, which ended the Obama Administration's moratorium on issuing coal mining leases on federal land. Montana has an estimated 25-percent of the nation's recoverable coal reserves.

"Secretary Zinke acted within his authority under the law to reverse a discretionary policy of the previous administration, and the lawsuits objecting to the new policy are purely political and ideological in nature," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "The state of Montana has a significant stake in the continuation of federal coal leases, and is well-positioned to benefit from increased coal mining on our federal lands."

Attorney General Fox's petition for intervention states, "Montana seeks to intervene in this case because it has a significant interest in ensuring that federal coal leasing located within the State continues. Montana would be grievously harmed if the Interest Groups and Plaintiff States prevail."

In fiscal year 2016 alone, the Department of Interior Office of Natural Resources Revenue reported a total of $31.5 million as coal royalties from federal lands within Montana. $15.4 million of which were paid to the state.

Fox also argues that, because Montana has a significant stake in the outcome of the case, the state must be granted intervention as only Montana can adequately represent its own unique interests.

The case was filed before Federal District Court Judge Brian Morris in Great Falls.

Montana Attorney General Tim Fox Defends Coal Lease Decision, Intervenes in Lawsuit

Responding to a lawsuit filed in Federal District Court against the U.S. Department of Interior, Montana Attorney General Tim Fox filed for intervention Thursday on behalf of the state of Montana, defending the U.S. DOI's reversal of the Obama Administration's moratorium on federal coal leases.

The lawsuit--filed by multiple environmental groups as well as attorneys general from New Mexico, California, New York and Washington--seeks to reverse a March 29 Secretarial Order issued by U.S. Department of Interior Secretary, Ryan Zinke, which ended the Obama Administration's moratorium on issuing coal mining leases on federal land. "Secretary Zinke acted within his authority under the law to reverse a discretionary policy of the previous administration, and the lawsuits objecting to the new policy are purely political and ideological in nature," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "The state of Montana has a significant stake in the continuation of federal coal leases, and is well-positioned to benefit from increased coal mining on our federal lands."

Attorney General Fox's petition for intervention states, "Montana seeks to intervene in this case because it has a significant interest in ensuring that federal coal leasing located within the State continues. Montana would be grievously harmed if the Interest Groups and Plaintiff States prevail."

In fiscal year 2016 alone, the Department of Interior Office of Natural Resources Revenue reported a total of $31.5 million as coal royalties from federal lands within Montana. $15.4 million of which were paid to the state.

Fox also argues that, because Montana has a significant stake in the outcome of the case, the state must be granted intervention as only Montana can adequately represent its own unique interests.

The case was filed before Federal District Court Judge Brian Morris in Great Falls.
