Hunter Bonus Points

Starting July 3, hunters who did not apply for bonus points during this year's big game drawings or who are new to hunting, can now purchase a bonus point until Sept. 30 to help in next year's drawing.

This new feature at Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks was set up by House Bill 623, introduced by Rep. Kerry White during the 2017 Legislature, and allows anyone who missed applying for bonus points to still participate in the program by purchasing a bonus point for the drawings.

The legislation also ensured any bonus points accumulated will not expire, allowing hunters the ability to plan better and still be competitive in the bonus point program. It does not provide additional opportunity to gain bonus points because you cannot apply for and purchase bonus points in the same year.

In Montana, every hunter who applies for a special license through a big game drawing can participate in the bonus point system for an extra fee. Bonus points essentially allow more opportunities to get licenses through the drawing.

The fee to purchase a bonus point without applying for a license is $15 per species for residents and the nonresident fees are $25 per species except for moose, sheep, and goat which are $75 per species. Hunters can purchase bonus points for species which they have not yet applied for. For instance, if you've never applied for a moose license, you can purchase a moose bonus point.

To purchase bonus points, go to fwp.mt.gov, Buy a license or to any license provider.

Attorney General Fox Urges Federal Government to Take Action Against Spoof Robocalls

In a letter sent to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on Monday, Montana Attorney General Tim Fox and a bi-partisan group of 28 attorneys general are urging the federal government to adopt rules that would allow telephone providers to block illegal robocalls.

The FCC has requested public comment on rules that would allow providers to block several types of "spoofed" calls, in which a call appears to be coming from one number, but is actually coming from a different number. Scammers frequently use spoofed calls to hide their identity and to trick consumers into believing that their calls are legitimate.

"Last year, my Office of Consumer Protection fielded 2,867 complaints and inquiries regarding telephone scams; a 22 percent increase from 2015," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Most of these consumer complaints involved spoofed telephone numbers, and many of them were related to the IRS scam or other scams intended to intimidate Montanans into sending money to these swindlers. It's imperative for our nation's telecommunications providers to have the ability to block illegal robocalls to protect consumers from falling victim to this kind of fraud."

Currently, regulatory roadblocks prevent telecommunications companies from blocking many illegal robocalls. If the new rules are adopted, providers would be allowed to block calls coming from invalid numbers, unallocated numbers, and numbers whose owners have requested be blocked. For example, phone providers would be able to block a scammer that is using a telephone number that clearly can't exist because it

The letter sounds the alarm about the growing number of telephone scam complaints across the country and supports the FCC's proposal to remove regulatory roadblocks. As the letter points out, "legitimate businesses do not need to use any of these methods to contact consumers."

Attorney General Fox was joined on the letter by the attorneys general of Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

"Brilliant" - Niall O'Dowd, Founder of IrishCentral

It's hard to believe that three kids, aged just 17, 15 and 11, can already have clocked up over 25 years of musical development between them. Throw into the mix the fact that these young traditional Irish musicians are also classically trained and your interest is piqued. Finally, add a passion and flair for the nuances of traditional Irish music that only comes with years of immersion in their culture. The result is the pulsating music produced by The Maguires that will quickly draw you in and have your foot tapping.

Their magical journey started when Emma (17) came to her Dad, Philip, with a tin whistle in her hand, at just 4 years of age, and asked her Dad to teach her. The dream had started. Aoife (15) and Sean (11) followed suit when they reached 6 years of age respectively and very soon the family was sitting down playing music together on a daily basis. All three kids, and their Dad, play 5 instruments and their range includes fiddle, concertina, uilleann pipes, flute, whistle, bodhrán, piano and guitar. Their first stage performance was in March 2014 to a packed concert theatre of 200 people in Bray, Co. Wicklow. Now, three years later, the band has performed at festivals and concerts the length and breadth of Ireland, 18 counties so far. They will make their US debut in the summer of 2017 with performances in Montana, Milwaukee, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Connecticut.

The band's repertoire includes a mix of traditional favourites and modern tunes with syncopated, infectious rhythms, all delivered with a blend of youthful energy and musical maturity. The band has played live on The Ray D'Arcy Show, a primetime Saturday night national TV show, to an estimated audience of half a million viewers. They launched their debut album, Little Giants and Other Oxymorons, in December 2016 and one of the album tracks has already been picked up by Tourism Ireland and used as the soundtrack on a promotional video about Ireland and its musical heritage. Six of the eleven tracks on the album were composed by the band themselves. A video from the album launch featuring a bodhrán solo from 11-year old Seán and a set of reels from the group has had more than one million views online. The band has a strong fan base with over 30k followers on Facebook from around the globe.

Bill Margeson of Live Ireland Radio says "They are good. By that, we don't mean "good" in the sense of cute or fun in a family way. We mean good. This is really good, honest to God trad music played beautifully."

The Maguires' first ever performance in Montana will be on Thursday, July 6, at the Southwest Montana Arts Council's Dinner in the Park. The show starts at 6 p.m. in Jaycee Park. United Way of Beaverhead County will serve a dinner of steak sandwiches and sides. For more information, contact SMAcarts@gmail.com or 683-6208.

Letter to the Editor
ATTENTION SMALL ANIMAL LOVERS
 Lynn Westad

I had a very disappointing experience recently. At 5:30 on a Friday my cat suddenly had 2 seizures. I called my veterinarian immediately & got a recording that said closed go to Bozeman for emergency care. I happened to have a cell number & called & after several minutes of discussion with vet I realized they were still at the clinic and with reluctance they stayed & we were there in 10 min. After some shots we returned home with syringes & a warning that he was dangerous in this condition. It was made clear that for the rest of the weekend I was on my own.

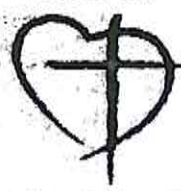

By the next morning it was clear he was beyond medical care & needed to be put down. Other local vets would only see their own clients. The vet in Sheridan said he was tired of serving Dillon pets. I knew there are more than vets in Dillon that do mostly large animals and thought one might help me but I didn't know any names. I shouted out on face book & hoped that someone would respond. It was looking like a 2 hour drive to Bozeman with a suffering animal for a 10 minute procedure. First thank you to all that gave suggestions on face book.

When it looked like there was no help coming someone mentioned the Beaverhead Shelter and I called & talked to Suzie Brown. They are open till 1:00 on Sat. & also have an after hours number. After I described what was happening she agreed the cat was beyond care & would put him down for me. God Bless you Suzie.

Vet's need time off but when I asked why they couldn't help each other to cover I was told they can't cooperate with each other. This is very unprofessional in my mind.

So a warning if you have small pets have a serious talk with your vet as to what services they extend after hours or on weekends so you are not put in this position.

We all love our animals & consider them a member of the family and when we get them make a commitment that they well cared for. So be sure your vet is available for you after hours as a drive to Bozeman is not the always a viable solution.
