Labor Day Parade

The Dillon Jaycee Auxiliary is seeking Labor Day Parade entries! Yes, it is that time of year again and Labor Day is quickly approaching! The theme this year is "Military Appreciation". Entries must be received by Aug. 30th to be eligible for a prize but all entries are welcome. Pick up an entry form at Womack's Printing, OrthoRehab, Bank of Commerce, or on the Jaycee or Jaycee Auxiliary websites.

Survey for Residents 60+

You will find a two sided survey insert in today's Dillonite Daily for Dillon residents aged 60 and older. The two-page survey reviews an individual's current living situation, asks if the individual has easy access to transportation for trips in and out of town, and if there's a need for assistance to get to local parks, businesses, churches, restaurants, etc. Questions also target physical needs, level of awareness of area wide social service programs, and involvement in community activities. Some questions, "Would you enjoy more companionship?", are geared around programs that exist but may be underutilized, i.e. Senior Companion Program.

Please feel out this survey and return it to the Women's Resource Center 221 1/2 S. Idaho St. by mail P.O. Box 888, Dillon, MT. or to Womack's Printing, 126 N. Montana St. Surveys must be completed and returned by August 25th. Contact Valerie at the Women's Resource Center with any questions. 683-6106

Letter to the Editor

AGENT ORANGE ALL OVER MONTANA

Again, I thought I should write about the thing that aggravates me the absolute most of SW Montana. That is that Agent Orange (2,4-D) is still being spread north, south and sideways, all over Montana.

I think I qualify as an expert about the problem. I receive a massive dose of it while spraying sagebrush for the BLM in the mountains west of Lima in 1963, just out of high-school. I was -directly sprayed by the helicopter about 10 times a day for 3 weeks, with no protective gear, no shower, no change of clothes. I am now one of the longest surviving victims of Agent Orange poisoning in the world today. But, that is a distinction that I would gladly give away, although I am the only surviving member of the crew. I have a terminal, incurable case of polyneuropathy from it, as well as several other lost senses, and basically totally disabled.

Now, my old friend Jack would tell us that 2,4-D is not Agent Orange, that is only 2,4,5-T: But, I have copies of several government reports that say the Agent Orange was the code words for 4 different chemicals used in Vietnam, including 2,4-D. I know of several people in Dillon who have died of Agent Orange poisoning by spraying 2,4-D. I also know of four small companies around Dillon that are engaged in spaying weeds with 2,4-D. There were some 1600 products on the market that contained the stuff.

Agent Orange, 2,4-D, is a far worse environmental problem than climate change or global warming but nobody seems to be worried about it. It kills people, babies, small pets and frogs.

The Total Solar Eclipse: One Curmudgeon's Opinion

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

Have you purchased your $500 bottle of Solar Red Wine?

It's one of countless products created to cash in on the total solar eclipse that will cut a swath 60 to 70 miles wide from Oregon to South Carolina on August 21.

Savvy shoppers can also obtain solar eclipse playing cards, solar eclipse neckties, solar eclipse dresses, glow-in-the-dark cakes and Darkest Hour black cherry soda. Festivals and tours? Oh, yeah! Discovery Channel may even throw together a last-minute "Things The Moon Blocks Your View Of Week," complete with Michael Phelps racing a simulated Buzz Aldrin.

My son Gideon's school is busing students to Nashville to get a better view of the eclipse. I hope the Music City crowd obeys safety warnings and does not generate new stereotypes of the city. ("I'm a-pickin'." "And I'm a-grinnin'." "And I'm a-gettin' my retinas burned beyond repair!")

Yes, NASA and a legion of optometrists are cautioning amateur astronomers not to view the eclipse without certified eye protection. Unfortunately, no one has run an algorithm to determine how many nitwits will flip a car while texting their destination, fall off a cliff while taking a selfie or receive ricochet wounds while shooting the roof out of a Porta Potty so as not to miss a second of the eclipse.

Heartwarming essays predict this rare celestial event will bring people together. Well, maybe. ("Isn't it amazing how God set this up like clockwork?" "God? This is just the way quantum physics has ordered the universe since the Big Bang." "Star Trek could work wonders with a solar eclipse storyline." "But Star Wars could do it better." "Tastes great." "Less filling." Etcetera.)

Luckily, the total eclipse will be confined to the United States and won't upset those primitives who think the sun is being devoured by a giant armadillo, instead of "the Electoral College and stuff." Aren't you glad we Americans don't have those superstitions? ("Looking forward to the festival, but couldn't it be rescheduled? My horoscope says the 21st is a bad day for me.")

Forgive me if I'm "once burned, twice shy" about all the hullabaloo. I spent most of my youth awaiting the glorious 1986 visit of Halley's Comet. Where I lived, it wound up being a tiny smudge in the sky. It wasn't politically correct; but believe me, I did some "heavenly body" shaming. 31 years ago, the comet that had heralded the birth of kings and the fall of empires was more like the "your turn signal is still on" warning.

Granted, I'm looking forward to seeing videos of the confusion and anxiety experienced by pets and wildlife when the sun is blotted out in the middle of the day. As a recently translated Hebrew scroll reveals, "God don't need no laser pointer."

I try not to be swayed by a NASA spokesman who assures us, "This eclipse will be an unforgettable, transcendent event -- the sort of experience you'll cherish regaling your grandchildren with someday. Unless you die prematurely or suffer memory loss due to dementia or become infertile because of constant use of a laptop computer or get turned down by the adoption agency for something you posted on Facebook in '02. Oh, let's just forget your theoretical grandchildren! Pop open that $500 bottle of Solar Red Wine and enjoy what time you have left, you poor doomed losers."
