Request for assistance

The Women's Resource Center is reaching out to our community to ask for help. The need for our shelter, food & fuel services has increased by over 675% from this time last year. That means in real terms that due to our shelter being full for an extended period of time, we have nearly maxed out our resources for food and fuel assistance. Therefore, we ask, can you reach into your pockets to help us by providing the Women's Resource Center with a monetary donation and/or by donating local merchant gas cards and/or grocery cards which we use to support the people who are staying in our shelter? Please consider making a tax deductible contribution today to help ensure that these valuable services are here for the next person in need. If you have questions, contact Alison or Valerie at 406-683-6106.

Thank you from all of us at the Women's Resource Center!

Dillon BLM seeks comments on abandoned mine cleanup plan

The Bureau of Land Management's Dillon Field Office is looking for public input on its proposal to eliminate physical safety hazards resulting from historic mining activity in the Silverstar Mining District, located about 11 miles north of Twin Bridges.

The Environmental Assessment analyzes numerous abandoned sites in the Silverstar area, the majority of which will be backfilled.

"These mine features were abandoned in the 1960s and left major impacts to the landscape regarding health, safety, and general welfare," said Keith Johnson, assistant field manager with the Dillon Field Office. "We are currently in the process of reviewing the type of work which could be done to make the abandoned mines safer for both humans and wildlife. Public safety and the good stewardship of natural resources are our main concerns."

The Environmental Assessment, which can be found online at <http://bit.ly/2w7X786>, lists the hazardous features as "vertical drop-offs, excavated pits, open adits, shafts and waste piles."

The BLM will take public comment on the Environmental Assessment until Sept. 5.

For more information or to submit comments, please contact the Dillon Field Office at (406) 683-8000, or by email to MT_Dillon_FO@blm.gov with "Silverstar Environmental Assessment" in the subject line.

Before including your address, phone number, e-mail address, or other personal identifying information in your comment, you should be aware that your entire comment—including your personal identifying information—may be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask us in your comment to withhold your personal identifying information from public review, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so.

For the latest BLM news and updates visit us on the web at www.blm.gov/mt, on Facebook at www.facebook.com/BLMMontana, or follow us on Twitter @BLM_MTDKs.

Money and the Pursuit of Happiness

By Tom Purcell

Money does make us happy, so long as we spend it right. According to the U.K. newspaper The Independent, "New research from the University of British Columbia has found that spending money to buy free time, such as paying others to cook or clean for you, does improve happiness, leave you feeling less stressed and generally more satisfied with life."

Beyond that, however, money does NOT necessarily make us happier.

According to Time magazine, Dan Gilbert, a Harvard University psychology professor and the author of "Stumbling on Happiness," says that money has its limitations.

"Once you get basic human needs met, a lot more money doesn't make a lot more happiness," says Gilbert.

Research shows, reports Time, that "going from earning less than $20,000 a year to making more than $50,000 makes you twice as likely to be happy, yet the payoff for then surpassing $90,000 is slight."

In other words, once you have enough money to pay your bills and enjoy going out to dinner now and then, additional increases in wealth do not necessarily correspond with greater happiness.

Where happiness is concerned, Americans are conflicted people. On one hand, we want wealth and fame. We want people to bow down to us when we walk into a public place. We want adulation and expensive cars and big houses staffed by a dozen servants. We believe in our bones that more money will make us happy and we work like crazy to acquire it.

But on the other hand, we know wealth and fame are bogus. You never know who your friends really are. You're surrounded by people looking for a handout. And if you ever do anything stupid, the newspapers will find out about it and your stupidity will be broadcast around the world.

Where happiness is concerned, I defer to the great singer-philosopher Kenny Rogers. A few years ago, he tweeted: "You need three things in your life to be happy: someone to love, something to do and something to look forward to."

We all know this. But we keep forgetting it.

We know that the happiest moments in our own lives involve friends and family. These are the people who affect the deeper part of our nature, our spirits and souls, where true happiness resides. These are the people who can make us laugh so hard our guts hurt or help us when we're down or engage us in deeply satisfying conversations.

There's a story about a fisherman sitting on the beach with his wife one afternoon and enjoying the surf. The fisherman had enjoyed a big catch that morning, so he came in for the day. A rich businessman approached him.

"Why didn't you keep fishing and bring in twice as many fish?" said the businessman.

"Why?" said the fisherman.

"Because then you could have bigger profits. Then you could buy another boat and hire employees."

"Why?" said the fisherman.

"Then you could keep growing and have more profit. You could buy more boats and hire more employees."

"Why?" said the fisherman.

"Because then you could work long and hard for many years and grow rich."

"Why?" said the fisherman.

"Because then you and your wife could retire and relax on the beach," said the businessman.

"But that's what I'm doing now."

We know the fisherman is right.

Why, then, do we spend most of our waking hours not nurturing our friends and families but chasing success and money and bigger houses, while we let the happiness that is right under our noses elude us?

SHOP LOCAL

Hi, this is Judy Siring from Farmers Union Insurance. Several studies have shown that when you buy from an independent, locally-owned business, more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses, service providers, and farms....this continues to strengthen the economic base of the community for the good of all who live here.....Remember to always shop local first.....Shop local....be local.....
