Barrett Hospital & HealthCare's Asthma Clinic is Here to Serve You During Wildfire Season and Every Other Season

Asthma is a chronic disease that inflames and narrows the airways of a person's lungs. Asthma affected an estimated 90,600 Montana residents in 2012. A startling 9.1% of adults and 6.9% of children have asthma, and prevalence has remained consistent over the last decade. In Montana, some of the main triggers of asthma include smoke from wildfires, wood burning stove particulate matter in the air, cold air, and pollen.

As this wildfire season continues, there is good news for asthma patients. Asthma can be controlled with comprehensive asthma education and monitoring by Barrett Hospital & HealthCare's certified asthma educators. Our team of pharmacists will work with you and your provider to manage your asthma. Increasing education and monitoring may help improve daily management of symptoms and reduce the need for emergency room care and hospitalizations.

Visits include topics such as: Medication Review and Management, Asthma Education, Inhaler Training, Asthma Triggers in the Home and Workplace, and an Asthma Action Plan. If you are interested in the Asthma Clinic and would like more information, please contact your primary care provider or the Asthma Clinic at (406) 683-1104 or the Hospital Pharmacy at (406) 683-3102.

FWP BEGINS DRAW DOWN OF POND 3 AT CANYON FERRY DUCK HUNTERS SHOULD EXPECT LOW WATER

In an effort to improve habitat for waterfowl and shorebirds, beginning this month Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks will draw down water levels in Pond 3 at the Canyon Ferry Wildlife Management Area.

Drawing down the water level will reduce or eliminate invasive carp, which are prolific in the pond. With their feeding, carp stir up sediment which cause extremely muddy water conditions limiting sunlight penetration, vegetation growth and invertebrate viability.

The drawdown will also aerate wet pond soils.

"The goal will be to completely dry up the pond or to at least get water levels low enough in winter that carp will be winter killed. Then, if the draw down is successful, the pond will be kept dry for an extended time in order to promote a better invertebrate and submergent vegetation response to the drawdown," said FWP biologist Adam Grove.

FWP recently completed Environmental Assessment for the water drawdown.

Waterfowl hunters should expect Pond 3, which is on the east side of the WMA, to have low levels of water come this fall hunting season. With the lower water levels, the Pond 3 boat ramp will not be usable.

If successful, the drawdown will substantially improve water clarity and promote an increase in aquatic invertebrates and submergent vegetation which will improve waterfowl and shorebird habitat in the pond. The pond will likely start filling again with water seeping in from Canyon Ferry Reservoir sometime in the late spring or early summer of 2018.

The residents of Moose Lake have returned to their homes and cabins as the evacuation level was downgraded to YELLOW, or the preparedness level. READY, SET, GO. If the fire again becomes a danger to the area, they may be asked to evacuate at a moments notice.

It is imperative for all fire personnel as well as the general public to use extra caution when they are working or travelling through the area.

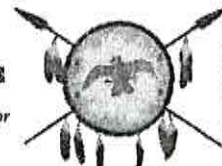

Heavy equipment, vehicles, people, and even aircraft are all working and often times will not have good visual of all the potential hazards around them. Use headlights, drive at slow speeds, be especially aware if you are walking through standing trees, snags as well as living trees who may have been weakened by ground disturbance or even water drops.

Evacuations for the Frog Pond Basin, and Copper Creek Campground areas remain unchanged at this time.

America's History

By: MJ

America was built by man-kind doing what they needed to do to survive and support their families. Our history started in the south. Even today the southern part of the country has its own way of life, its own culture, as does the western part of our country. We may or may not agree with history but to not admit it means we will repeat it.

Why are people destroying our history? Would it be wise for the betterment of the country's future to always be aware and have reminders of past history? Maybe instead of destroying history we need to acknowledge our own individual problems our own history within our souls that is driving the anger used to do away with statutes. Question: Should we spend the time it takes to tear down a historic statue or put that effort into working on why we are truly so irritated? Leave historical museums, statues and etc. to remind us where we have come from and what we do not want to repeat in the future.

History represents past cultures, past lifestyles, true stories of how people evolved and survived. Times gone by can be ugly, nevertheless destroying it does not make it beautiful. History shows us the nuts and bolts of how people survived and progressed with the available resources, the weather, money obtainable, medical support, how people worked with and survived where natives objected to them, create a platform that would allow a new county to stand on (constitution)...

NOTE: The same kinds of events seem to happen over and over when we don't know our history. George Santayana wrote; "Those who do not learn history are doomed to repeat it." Does this mean if you ignore and destroy history reminders that you will be doomed to repeat the very thing you are protesting in the future?

Reminder: Walking a mile in someone else's shoes before you judge them will give you the knowledge needed to understand the reasoning behind actions taken in the past. You will be a better person after you take that walk in the person's shoes you are judging.

Letter to the Editor

I write in response to Wednesday's letter by Tom Purcell on our eluding "happiness." Certainly he has a valid point when he denigrates the effectiveness of an ambitious pursuit of money beyond one's basic needs. However, I encourage his deeper search for that persevering happiness. He desperately needs to place his focus on the very SOURCE of one's life!

The depravity of the heart of man from the days of Adam and Eve causes people to want to deny the Creator revealed in the Bible. This is still evident by today's theory of evolution, even though it is increasingly disproven. Our original created status was "very good" (Genesis 1:31), signifying we had complete ability for contentment and happiness. Adam and Eve's disobedience forced a departure of God from their souls, creating a vacancy in their posterity -- and in each of us (Romans 5:12).

Our Creator God, with infinite love, made provision by the Cross of His Son to fill that vacancy -- not only with forgiveness of sin for each one, but also with a vibrancy of New Life by an indwelling Presence of the resurrected Christ.

We can try to fill that hole in our hearts by all kinds of our self-efforts: decent living, self-righteous kindness on behalf of others, devoted deeds to our family and friends, partaking of alcohol and euphoric drugs, even religious participation. You name it; nothing brings that consistent "happiness" and eventual peace on our death beds apart from one's intimate identity in Christ's agonizing death and the surrender of one's soul to follow Him!

Indeed, it works in reality -- that imparting of HIS Spirit with love and righteousness. We read of Montana's national lead in depression and suicide -- among every group -- in spite of our splendid scenery and outdoor opportunities. Why, oh why, do we insist on ignoring the proven provision of peace and contentment from our wondrous Lord God?

Better than a pain pill?

Healing modality
'ortho-bionomy' has helped many local folks
resume normal lives

Sharon Sullivan
ssullivan@gjfreepress.com

Dan McKee gave up believing he'd ever play soccer again after he lost feeling in his left leg and foot after he developed complications in 2011 from treatment of Hodgkin's Lymphoma. An alternative bodywork treatment, however, called ortho-bionomy turned things around for him.

The Fruita Monument High School soccer coach was diagnosed with cancer in 2009. He began chemotherapy and lapsed into a coma for nine days. Later, McKee developed a fungus due to his compromised immune system.

Both the cancer and fungus were successfully treated and McKee, 39, returned to his job as coach in 2010.

Then, half-way through the soccer season, McKee began experiencing pain in his back. An MRI revealed that the fungus had returned and spread to his spinal column. A six-week medicine regimen cleared up the fungus and in March 2011, he underwent back surgery to alleviate the pain — but it didn't work; McKee continued to experience significant pain in his back. He also had peripheral neuropathy in his leg, which meant he felt nothing and could not walk.

That's when Debra Hesse, cancer survivorship program coordinator at St. Mary's Hospital, suggested he try ortho-bionomy, a structural and neurological approach to bodywork that allows the body to reorganize and heal by accessing neurological reflexes. Treatments encompass gentle massage or subtle adjustment-like movements by the practitioner.

After one treatment, McKee noted he was able to stop taking morphine for the pain and nerve medicine for the neuropathy.

"From the very beginning it helped," said McKee, who received a dozen ortho-bionomy treatments over the course of a year.

"You can feel it release the nerve. It took away the tingling and got progressively better," he said. "It's a weird feeling. You can actually feel that nerve come back to life. You can feel their hands getting warmer from your nerve firing back up."

Practitioners say the warmth that patients experience actually comes from inside themselves.

McKee said he's "99 percent" pain-free, and last year played soccer in the city men's league. "I had given up on the fact that I would play again," McKee said.

ROOTS IN OSTEOPATHY

For the past two years, certified ortho-bionomists Lori Parker, Barb Hampton, Tom Anson and Patty Nicolas have volunteered their services at St. Mary's Regional Cancer Center, Advanced Medicine Pavilion, 750 Wellington Ave. Practitioners come once a month to give three 30-minute sessions to patients who request it.

Biblical Truth... Bible truth about controversial subjects (part 1)

---We believe the following: (1) the Bible was given by the inspiration of God as stated in 2 Timothy 3:16-17; (2) all statements made in this and any ensuing articles will be based on what the Bible says; (3) the Bible only is the reliable source of spiritual & doctrinal truth; (4) all beliefs in conflict with Biblical teachings are false.--- Many Bible doctrines that are stated clearly in the scriptures have become controversial due to the insertion of false teachings by various church groups and/or individuals.

In addition to that we are being bombarded by demands (mostly by small groups with loud voices) that those believing in the Bible way of living be tolerant and accepting of the life style of those who reject God and His word.

In the next several articles scriptures will be given in response to some very important, controversial questions one might ask about various teachings found in the Bible.

The place to start in this pursuit of Biblical truth is with Jesus Christ, whom many consider to be the most controversial individual in history.

There was a controversy about his identity as found in Matthew 16:13-16 where some thought He was John the Baptist while others thought He was Elijah, Jeremiah or one of the other prophets.

In Matthew 21:9-11 when he rode into Jerusalem on a donkey some of the crowd hailed Him as being the son of David. Some were puzzled about His identity and, upon asking others who He was, were told He was "the prophet of Nazareth."

Matthew 21:46 states that the people believed He was prophet.

There was a great debate & division over His identity in John 7:40-43; John 9:13-16; & John 10:19-21 where some even thought that He was demon possessed.

So who is Jesus Christ? The answer is found in Matthew 16:15-17 where Jesus asked His disciples "...Whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus then told Peter that he was blessed by being led by the "the Father which is in heaven" to understand this truth.

Conclusion: "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God..." 1 John 5:1.
