Clara Haven Loge

Clara Haven Loge, born on December 30, 1917, at the homestead of her Norwegian immigrant parents Nilla and Mathias Haven on the snow-covered prairie of rural McHenry, North Dakota, died in Dillon, Montana on October 24, 2017, a few weeks short of her 100th birthday. At her birth, their neighbor midwife declared, "Ja, ho er den fineste jente" ("Yes, she is the nicest girl"), an attribute branded on her then and lived out through her 99 years. Clara was grounded, along with her four siblings, in the Norwegian-American-Lutheran culture of the enclave of immigrant farmers--instilled with a strong sense of family, community, faith and love of music that defined her life.

Following graduation from Oak Grove Lutheran High School in Fargo, North Dakota, she obtained a teaching degree at Valley City State College. With our country engaged in World War II, her horizons stretched to California for work in the home-front war effort there. In North Dakota, she began a long career teaching elementary children that utilized her special talents of nurture and humor to make the school day fun for her pupils.

Clara met Maynard Loge, a recent Navy war veteran, on an arranged date in 1946. The sparks of that encounter blazed into love; marriage ensued on September 13 the same year. They bought a farm near Hannaford, North Dakota, renovated the farm buildings and grew crops and livestock. Three children soon filled their new home. With characteristic cheerfulness, Clara managed the family, taught school, cooked for threshing crews, engaged in church activities, and enjoyed friendships and mutual support of neighbors.

In 1964, the call of the West brought the family to St. Regis, Montana where they acquired a small ranch. Clara taught at schools in St. Regis and in Superior. The door to her home was always open, the coffee pot on, with laughter to share and homemade bread with strawberry-rhubarb jam spread for everyone who visited.

After retirement, Maynard and Clara traveled to Norway to meet cousins about whom they had heard so much growing up and to experience first-hand the iconic places of their parents and grandparents in the "old country."

Clara remained at St. Regis after Maynard's death in 2000. Her front porch with views of the ranch meadow and Sheep Mountain was a gathering place for family and friends and an occasional curious bear or cougar. Any unaware visitor who joined her for a game of Scrabble soon learned what it was like to play with a master--a skill not lost as she aged. She suffered a hip fracture at age 94 and moved to Dillon, Montana, for convalescence closer to her son Ron and his family. Despite physical setbacks and declining memory, in these final years of grace she developed close attachments to her young great grandchildren and the many caregivers at Parkview Kindred and assisted living residences who enriched her life the past five years. For those who walked by her side, her cheerful spirit and expressions of love surfaced often, even in her last words of "I love you all" and "Jesus, be near me." She left this world loving and much loved--a fitting benediction at the completion of a life well-lived.

Clara Loge was preceded in death by her parents, Matt and Nilla Haven, her sister Borghild Haven, brothers Clarence Haven, Rangvald Haven, and Melvin Haven, husband Maynard Loge, and grandson Jared Smith. She is survived by her three children, Nola Smith (Sherlund) of Arlington, WA, Ron Loge (Charlene) of Dillon, MT, and Denley Loge of St. Regis, MT, and by two granddaughters, Anna Loge (Brett Maki) of Dillon, MT, and Laura Loge (Nels Peterson) of Bellevue, WA, six great grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 2:00 p.m. Monday, November 13, 2017, in the multipurpose room of Superior High School, preceded by a private family graveside burial in St. Regis, Montana. A reception and time to share memories will follow the funeral at Trinity Lutheran Church in Superior, Montana.

Joan Taylor's Obituary

Our beloved mother, grandmother, great grandmother, sister and friend Joan Currell Taylor passed away on October 28, 2017.

Joan Currell Taylor was born July 5, 1936, the second of three daughters, born to Harold Currell and Bernice White Currell. Joan's childhood was filled with wonderful memories of time spent with her grandparents, roller skating, playing with neighborhood friends, and re-enacting old movies with her older sister Connie, who always got to play the lead actress. The highlight of Connie and Joan's youth was the birth of their baby sister LaRee. She was a little doll and they loved her dearly. During her high school years, she worked at the Spud-Nut Soda Shop which was the favorite high school hang out because they had the best homemade doughnuts, hamburgers, shakes and, best looking car hops in town. Joan and Connie were the best of friends and spent many wonderful adventures together before graduating.

Joan graduated from high school in 1954 and on June 4, 1954, she married her high school sweetheart, Richard Parson. They had four children, Clair, Joseph Craig, Dana Lynn and Creston Kyle. In 1965 they divorced. Joan and her three children moved from Mexico to Logan, Utah and began a new life, where she worked at the Logan Optical. In 1967 she met DeMar Taylor and on December 14, 1967 they were married. Joan and her three children moved to Montana with DeMar, who was the love of her life.

Before DeMar and Joan were married he brought her to Montana and took her to Elkhorn, she fell in love with the beautiful landscape and mountains. DeMar promised after they were married he would build her a cabin at Elkhorn. He Did!!!! Joan loved spending time in this special cabin built for her, skiing, snowmobiling, and riding her horse, Moon. She and DeMar traveled the world and had many adventures to share. They also spent many winters in Arizona where Joan learned to love and play tennis. She loved music, playing the piano, playing cards and spending time with friends and family. Joan was an amazing cook, seamstress and was a master at knitting where she received several grand champion awards at the fair for the sweaters she knit. She also loved quilting and her projects were made with beauty and love. She served in many Church callings, but her favorites were the Relief Society Activities Director and singing in the Ward Choir. Her wonderful sense of humor, laugh and beautiful smile will be missed by all who knew and loved her.

Joan is survived by her four children Judy (Steve) Goodsell, Craig (Jackie) Taylor, Dana (Steve) Huffaker and Kyle (Milonie) Taylor, 11 grandchildren, 29 great grandchildren and 7 great great grandchildren, sister Connie Bourgoin, brothers-in-law Max Jensen and Paul Taylor. Sisters-in law Diane Taylor Rhea Taylor, Norma Taylor and Loretta Taylor and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her son Clair, parents, husband DeMar and sister LaRee.

Funeral services will be held on November 3rd at 11:00 am at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Saints chapel in Dillon. A guestbook is available on line at www.brundagefuneralhomes.com.

Attorney General Fox Reminds Montanans of Trick-or-Treating Safety Tips

Check Montana's Online Sexual or

Violent Offender Registry Before Leaving Home

Attorney General Tim Fox today urged parents to review basic safety precautions with their children before they go trick-or-treating and to check Montana's Sexual or Violent Offender Registry (SVOR) online to ensure their children avoid potentially dangerous situations.

"It's important to talk to your children not only about how to trick-or-treat safely, but also about where," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "As families across Montana get ready for Halloween tomorrow, this is the time for parents and guardians to go on-line and visit Montana's Sexual or Violent Offender Registry to make sure your children don't trick-or-treat at the homes of registered offenders."

In addition to recommending that adults always accompany small children trick-or-treating, Attorney General Fox recommended taking children only to familiar neighborhoods on Halloween night. Children should also choose costumes with light or bright colors whenever possible, or trimming darker costumes with reflective tape. Children should be encouraged to wait to eat treats until an adult can inspect them. Parents should throw away any goodies that appear to be tampered with or are not commercially wrapped. For more safety tips, see the Consumer Product Safety Commission's alert on the Montana Department of Justice's website: <https://dojmt.gov/wp-content/uploads/Halloween-Safety-Tips.pdf>.

Montana's SVOR, which tracks an average of 2,300 sexual offenders and 3,300 violent offenders at any given time, is viewable online at <https://app.doj.mt.gov/apps/svow/default.aspx>. On-line visitors may also register for free email notifications that allow them to be automatically notified whenever a sexual or violent offender moves into a zip code of interest to subscribers. The registry's mapping feature allows the public to enter a specific address and city, and then search to generate a map showing the location of offenders within a certain radius of that address. The registry can also search for an offender by address, name, city, county, zip code, or offender type.

Letter to the Editor
This past week I returned from my high school class reunion on the San Francisco Peninsula, it was great. On the return trip my Expedition was burglarized. They broke the door and the lock as well. The garage did their best to get me back on the road to dillon. When I got back to Dillon the door seized up again and I couldn't get out of the car for love or money. It was 9 at night when I called the police. Officers Jeremy Alvarez and Seth Haggard came and succeeded in opening the door. I was rescued. And that's one good reason to vote for the police levy. They are there for us when we need them, now they need our support. Vote for the Police Levy.

What Is the Protestant Reformation after 500 Years? (Part 2)

On October 31, 1517 Fr. Martin Luther, professor of theology at the University of Wittenberg in Saxony (present-day Germany), posted an invitation to debate on the door of the church. The invitation was entitled "Disputation of Doctor Martin Luther on the Power and Efficacy of Indulgences" commonly referred to as the 95 Theses.

Follow the Money

In Luther's day the Bishop of Rome (called the Pope) was not only the religious head of Western Christianity he was also the political leader of the Papal States in the Italian Peninsula which had been given to the church in 756 by Pepin the Younger after the defeat of the Lombards. But running a state is expensive especially if you have a taste for wars and monumental building projects as Pope Julian II did in commissioning Michelangelo and Raphael. Julian's successor, Pope Leo X, had similar ambitions and a nephew he wanted to install as the new Duke of Urbino both of which cost a lot of money so that the papal income of 1517 reckoned at 580,000 ducats ($2.61M) vanished as quickly as they were received. Leo needed an influx of cash and resorted to pawning palace furniture, table plate, jewels, and relics. He sold cardinals' hats. He sold membership in the "Knights of Peter". He borrowed large sums from bankers, curials, princes and Jews. He also resorted to the medieval practice of selling indulgences to fund his projects and lifestyle.

Meanwhile, in Germany, Albert of Brandenburg was a young professional on the fast track of church success. At age 23, he was archbishop of Magdeburg and administrator of Halberstadt. It was against canon law to hold more than one office, but everyone was doing it. It was a great way to play politics. So when the archbishopric of Mainz became available, Prince Albert sought to add a third office to his resume—this the most politically powerful of all. The problem was, Albert was low on cash too. Seems he had spent his liquid assets in getting the posts he already held, and Pope Leo was asking a colossal sum to consider him for the job in Mainz. The normal strategy, passing the cost on to the common folk in the form of taxes or fees, was impractical, since Mainz had gone through four archbishops in ten years and was nearly bankrupt from supporting all those pay-offs. But Albert had a good credit rating, and was able to borrow from the bank of Jacob Fugger, an Austrian merchant who was the money mogul of Europe at the time. How to pay back the loan? Indulgences again. Pope Leo would authorize the sale of indulgences in Germany, with half the proceeds going to pay back Fugger and half going to Rome to fund the building of a new St. Peter's basilica.

Indulgences?

To the medieval mind the greatest problem was how to be right with God. God demanded perfection; He required holiness and the Latin translation of the Bible said that Christians were to live "Poenitentiam agite", that is to live "doing penance". But how to do it? Was there ever enough you could do to show you were sorry for your sins? Was there ever enough you could do to get into God's favor? No, said the medieval church, ordinary people couldn't but there was a surplus of good works, laid up by the saints and Jesus, that believers could tap into to avoid the penalty of sin. For a fee, bereaved relatives could get a deceased loved one out of Purgatory. At the right price, they could also save up for their own future sins—sort of a spiritual IRA. Indulgences, they called them.

Enter Johann Tetzel. A Dominican monk and a popular preacher, Tetzel was named commissioner of indulgences for Germany. He was a regular P.T. Barnum, traveling through the towns and villages with his pitch for forgiveness of sins, cheap at any price. He even had a theme song: "As soon as the coin in the coffer rings/ The soul from Purgatory springs." Salvation for a price.

Reformation from Within

Martin Luther was born in 1483, the son of a miner who, through hard work, became part owner of six copper mines and, in time, became fairly wealthy. His parents sought a good education for their bright son; he earned the equivalent of Bachelor's and Master's degrees from the university at Erfurt (the latter in 1505 at age 22; he was second in a class of seventeen). His father persuaded him to enter law school, which he did with misgivings. In July of that year, in the midst of a violent thunderstorm, he was thrown to the ground by a flash of lightning. In great fear he cried out "St. Anne, help me!" and he promised to enter a monastery if his life were spared. He survived and entered the Augustinian monastery at Erfurt.

Luther dedicated himself to the Augustinian order, devoting himself to fasting, long hours in prayer, pilgrimage, and frequent confession. In 1508 Luther entered the priesthood and was sent to Rome on an errand of his monastery expecting enlightenment. Instead of the holiness, which he hoped to find, he found only corruption. Luther described this period of his life as one of deep spiritual despair. He said, "I lost touch with Christ the Savior and Comforter, and made of him the jailer and hangman of my poor soul." Johann von Staupitz, his superior, pointed Luther's mind away from continual reflection upon his sins toward the merits of Christ. He taught that true repentance does not involve self-inflicted penances and punishments but rather a change of heart. Yet Luther feared Christ seeing him only as the stern judge. Through further study received a doctor of divinity degree in 1512 and began teaching on the faculty of Wittenberg. As he was teaching Luther began reading the New Testament in Greek as well as Latin. Sometime in 1515 or 1516, when he was editing The German Theology of the German Mystics while, at the same time lecturing on the Psalms and on Romans, the breakthrough came:

Night and day I pondered until I saw the connection between the justice of God and the statement that "the just shall live by his faith." (Romans 1.17). Then I grasped that the justice of God is that righteousness by which through grace and sheer mercy God justifies us through faith. Thereupon I felt myself reborn and to have gone through the open doors into paradise. The whole of Scripture took on new meaning, and whereas before the "justice of God" had filled me with hate, now it became to me inexpressibly sweet in greater love. This passage of Paul became to me a gate to heaven.

The Reformation had taken place in Luther's soul.

Trust in God Alone

Luther's insight, that humans could be right with God by trusting in Jesus' righteousness, radically changed the monk. No longer would he seek to pay for his sins but instead he would live in gratitude

Luther referred to gratitude as "The basic Christian attitude." No longer was Jesus stern and distant but near and willing. God is the selfless giver of grace and the Christian's response is gratefulness that enables following in joyful obedience to God. Once Luther realized the sufficiency of Christ's sacrifice alone for our sins, he found indulgences and other practices revolting and attacked them unsparingly. The more he studied the Scriptures, the more he saw the need to show the church how it needed to trust Christ alone:

"Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life; whoever does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God remains on him" (John 3:36).

No one took up Luther's challenge to debate in 1517, but once news of his proposals became known, many began to discuss the issue Luther raised. Different councils of the Roman church contradicted each other: who was right? Indulgences, others said, were "things which the Catholic church has judged already, things that have passed into usage, rite, and observance" and these things shouldn't be questioned. Who would settle the matter? We hope next time to explore what happened to Martin Luther and to look more closely at what our "modern indulgences" might be.
