Some of the Devil's Best Work

By Tom Purcell

The devil sat drunk and giddy in a bar, boasting about his recent "accomplishments."

"Enjoying yourself?" I said, sitting a few barstools away from him.

"Like I haven't in years, pal. I'm on a roll."

His breath was rank, his body crawling with bugs.

"A roll?"

"Look at my most recent work in Texas. I was present when a disturbed and angry young man murdered unarmed men, women and children while they worshiped. If that wasn't an act of pure evil, I don't know what is!"

"You're a real jerk, devil. The New York Times reports that a church video camera captured the horrific event. The Times says the soulless shooter was intent on shooting everyone in the church in a methodical manner - that he shot his terrified victims, even small children, in the head, execution-style."

"I was also present at Las Vegas in October when 58 innocent concertgoers were murdered by a barrage of bullets from another disturbed man. And let's not forget the recent attack on the bike path in Manhattan. I'm doing some of my best work with radicals who think they can advance their mission through terrorist acts."

"Explain."

"I'm using the oldest lure in my toolkit with those boys: pride. I got them thinking they're pious and subservient, when they're actually trapped in the narrowness of their own piety. I got them thinking murdering innocents is what their God wants them to do."

"You're sick."

"But my biggest successes of late have been in America - a place that's been a thorn in my side from its beginning."

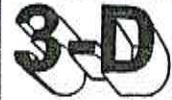

"How so?"

"America is founded on freedom, pal. It's not easy for somebody in my line of work to influence people who believe that their creator has given them the unalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"I'm not following."

"Look, your Founders had very clear values about what is and isn't moral and good. For the most part, they did not yield to the sin of pride, but instead yielded to the principles of my opponent. They built the Constitution upon the basic virtues that unleash the human heart."

"That bothers you, devil?"

"Of course, pal. Your country's values have produced order and civility. Your freedom has unleashed ingenuity, productivity and incredible wealth. Your values are the reasons America has been the most successful country in the history of mankind."

"Has been?"

"I'm making terrific progress in America. Incivility, the breakdown of families and communities, crassness, vulgarity - I'm able to promote these things because Americans are becoming more self-centered, more worldly and materialistic, and less concerned for their fellow man."

"How delightful."

"Ignorance is one of my favorite tools. Ironically, the more information Americans have access to through 24/7 news channels and social media, they more rigid-minded they become. So many Americans are losing their ability to reason, to follow a logical, objective thread, that they're easy for me to confuse now."

"Very clever, devil."

"I'm doing some of my best work to shout down free discussion and debate. Political correctness is one of my most useful tools. I have your people angry and divided - just where I want them to be."

"I really hate you, devil."

The devil laughed a deep, horrible laugh, while slapping his claws on his knee.

"That's just where I want you to be. Full of negative emotion and empty of reason. I love it when you hate!"

"Why don't you go to hell, devil?"

He downed a double shot of bourbon and a quart of beer.

"I'm already there, pal, and I'm doing everything in my power to bring your country with me."

Christmas Tree Permits Available

If your Christmas spirit gets a boost from going to the woods to cut your own Christmas tree, then the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management can help out.

With a permit, you can cut a Christmas tree in all the national forests in Montana and on public lands served by BLM's Missoula, Dillon, and Butte field offices.

Forest Service offices selling permits in Southwest Montana are located in Philipsburg, Butte, Dillon, Wisdom, Sheridan, and Ennis.

Christmas tree-cutting permits are $5, and each family may purchase up to three permits. Cutting trees without a permit is subject to a citation and fine.

Free Permits for 4th Graders! As part of the 'Every Kid in a Park' (EKIP) national initiative which strives to connect youth with nature, the Beaverhead-Deerlodge NF and the BLM are offering one free Christmas tree permit to every fourth grader. To participate in the free holiday tree program visit www.everykidinapark.gov. Fourth graders must present a valid EKIP Pass or paper voucher at their local Forest Service or BLM office (not vendors) to receive their free permit.

Tree cutting is not allowed in wilderness areas or in BLM-administered wilderness study areas.

When you purchase a permit, you will also receive a helpful information sheet that gives advice on how to best cut and care for your Christmas tree.

Forest Service and BLM offices are open weekdays, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The following locations also sell permits:

- Lima: Ralph's Exxon
- Sheridan: McLeod Mercantile
- Whitehall: Ace Hardware

You may also buy permits by mail. Send a check for $5 to the nearest Forest Service office (make the check out to "USDA Forest Service") or to the nearest BLM office (make the check out to "USDI Bureau of Land Management"). Be sure to include your name and address.

For more information contact the Forest Service at (406) 683-3900, or the BLM at (406) 533-7600.

10 Grammar Errors That Can Ruin You

by: Joe Barnhart

1. Misplaced apostrophes. Your life might be golden but screw this up and you're dead meat. Apostrophes (from the Roman word, "semiconductor") get lost all the time. One minute they're where you want them, the next they've run off to a sleazy bar. Remember, an apostrophe indicates possession as in, "It was Jane's habit to suck worms up her nose."
2. Your/you're. Mix these up and folks will think your a moron. What is confusing is the stinking apostrophe. Does it show possession? Heck no! This is one reason English teachers are despised nationwide. And unfairly I might add. "Your" is something you possess and "you're" stands for you are as in, "You're better off not swallowing a 9 volt battery."
3. Its/it's. No big deal here. "It's" is a constriction... constipation...a C word that I can't remember. Anyway, it's means "it is" as in, "It's impossible to eat a dozen banana slugs in a minute." Use "its" when it sounds good because if I told you it was used for possession without an apostrophe, reality, as you know it, would turn into a Happy Meal.
4. Could/would/should of. This will obviously remind you of the joke where the punch line includes, "Would I. Would I." If you don't remember the rest of that joke I'm afraid I can't help you here.
5. Good/gooder/much gooder. Good is used to describe a condition. Gooder emphasizes an improvement in something like, "It is gooder to dance with a clean penguin." And, of course, much gooder implies awesomeness as in, "The toilet flushed much gooder when mommy removed daddy's slipper."
6. Amount/number. Can you guess which refers to a number of individual things and which refers to items which can't be counted (like politicians' IQs)? I have no idea either and really, who cares?
7. To/two/too. Habitual spitters often resort to this phrase but for us civilized folk mixing these up could crumble a substantial financial portfolio. "To" is an infinitive for a verb. (e.g. to vomit large chunks). It might also be a present perfect dangling participle - who knows? "Two" is a mathematical term and, as such, is often very confusing in word problems about trains traveling to Stockholm. "Too" is way too much to cover here.

8. Then/than. Say this real fast, "The train then turned tighter than those tinny tankers." Very good. You may have a future in radio broadcasting. It's easy to tell these apart using two simple rules: 1. "Then" has a hen whose time ended when the fox ate it. 2. "Than" has a han which compared to a hen isn't worth crap (pardon my vulgarity).

9. Affect/effect. These actually mean the same thing. I have no idea why they're spelled differently. Another reason the English language is so annoying to both, the novice writer and accomplished author like myself.

10. And the biggie, who/whom. This common conundrum (pronounced, 'corn - in' - @a - drum') deals with how we address people. "Who" is very passive whereas "whom" often includes multiple hand gestures. The first refers to the subject of a sentence the latter the object. In the neighborhood I came from, screwing that up typically ended in a fist fight.

Oh, sure, there are tons more of these goofy anomalies in the English language. If you're lucky, someday I might try to explain a few more. But why overload your brain now as I'm sure you have more important things to worry about - including one totally deranged U.S. President.

Beaver Head Hunters

The meeting of the Beaver Head Hunters Genealogical Society will be Tuesday, November 21, at 7:00 pm in the museum research room. This month, after our brief business meeting, we will be discussing "Skeletons in the Closet". We will take turns sharing a story about some skeleton in our own family tree. If you can't find a skeleton in your tree, we still would like to hear an ancestor's story, so come prepared. As always, the public is invited.

CELEBRATE OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

American Education Week will be celebrated nationwide on November 13-17, 2017. This is a time to celebrate the great educational system that has been created in America.

It is also a time when retired educators focus attention and support for our public schools and teaching staffs dedicated to educating children to their full capacity.

As retired educators, we still hold the torch of learning high. We try to re-enforce the good work being done by practicing teachers as they strive to teach students the skills needed to live productive lives. This week is an excellent time to take the opportunity to show appreciation to our teachers and administrators for their professional work.

To cite Alex Haley, author of Roots "...teachers should be honored and respected for their dedication in working with students. Teachers are magical people who sprinkle stardust in the lives of students..." Stardust indeed! No one could have expressed their appreciation for the dedication of teachers better than Alex Haley.

Our teachers are great motivators of students. They interact everyday with students at the feeling level. Teachers have strong rapport drives which are used to develop life-long relationships with students. At the elementary school level, our teachers are "student centered" and will do whatever is possible to create a nurturing learning environment.

So, thank you teachers for the way you challenge students in ways to make them use higher level thinking skills and set realistic creative goals to live productive lives.

American Education Week is a good time for parents and community members to focus attention on the good work being done in our public schools. These are just some of the reasons why we celebrate the world's greatest educational system.

Jim Keef, Ed.D. Retired Montana School District Superintendent, President, Southwest Retired Educators Association.
